Court-Martial Called For Meyers, Stripped Of Medals, Pension

U. S. Grand Jury To Start Taking Evidence Today on Criminal Charges

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Air Force yesterday announced the preparation of court-martial charges against Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired, and a Federal Grand Jury here will start hearing evidence on criminal charges against him today.

Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington revealed that the general has already been stripped of his pension and military decorations as the result of evidence disclosed by the Senate War Investigating Committee. The order removing his military awards was signed by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower.

At the same time, the Air Secretary, whose nomination is now before the Senate, disclosed that:

1. The Air Force is reorganizing its entire inspection organization with Frank J. Wilson, retired head of the United States Secret Service as its adviser.

2. A general reorganization of the whole procurement structure is under way. Heading it up is the new Undersecretary, Arthur S. Barrows, for many years president of Sears, Roebuck and Co.

Meyers, wartime AAF materiel chief, figured in Senate evidence as a wartime speculator, who had illegal holdings of aviation stocks, and formed a "dummy" corporation for Government subcontracts from which he reaped $150,000 or more wartime profits.

Worn Throughout Hearings

Until yesterday Meyers had the Distinguished Service Medal and the Legion of Honor which he wore throughout the long Senate hearings into his wartime profits.

He had a pension of $550 a month from the Government, of which he received $461, the rest going into an insurance fund.

Symington, who called the Meyers case "one of the most shocking scandals ever exposed in the history of any branch of our Government," said the Army and the Air Force are working closely with the Department of Justice as to the proper charges to present against Meyers at a court-martial and the time when such charges will be brought.

Cites 96th Article of War

Gen. Carl Spaatz, Air Force Chief of Staff, bluntly stated that Meyers should be court-martialed under the Ninety-sixth Article of War referring to conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Obviously Spaatz referred to the procurement officer's unprecedented defense of his activities by attacking the honor of a woman. He could be tried, it was noted, on this charge without being placed in double jeopardy for an offense punishable under civil law.

In addition, the balding, 52-year-old retired general faces a probable suit for slander by pretty Mrs. Bleriot H. Lamarre, whom the general described as his "girl friend" for whom he established the Aviation Electric Co.

Grounds Will Not Interfere

Symington said the fact the general received his retirement and disability pension on psychoneurotic grounds would not interfere with court-martial action.

"He seems sane enough now," he commented flatly.

United States District Attorney George Morris Fay and Assistant United States District Attorney Edward Molenof will lead off before the grand jury today in presenting evidence against Meyers.

After the groundwork is laid, presumably by identifying the voluminous records of the Senate committee, the first charge to be taken up, it is believed, is one leveled by the committee of "subornation of perjury."

Senate investigators mentioned this charge after Bleriot H. Lamarre, $51.50 a week "dummy"

The House yesterday voted criminal contempt citations against 10 high-salaried movie writers and directors who refused to tell the Un-American Activites Committee whether they were Communists.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark immediately turned the citations over to United States District Attorney George M. Fay with an order that they be prosecuted promptly.

"The integrity of the Congress must be maintained," he told Fay. It was indicated that grand jury action might come as early as next week.

The accused—members of a group of 19 "hostile" witnesses who testified at the committee's recent hearings on pro-Moscow operations in Hollywood—each face a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $1000 fine if convicted.

The citations now go to the United States district attorney who in turn will ask the District of Columbia grand jury for indictments.

The case of movie writer Albert Maltz provided the first test of House sentiment. His citation was confirmed by the overwhelming roll call vote of 346 to 17 after a little band of legislators shouted that civil liberties were being snuffed out.

On this vote 15 Democrats, 1 Republican, Representative Claude I. Blakewell, Mo., and Representative Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) cast the dissents.

Others cited in a rapid-fire order either by standing or voice vote were:

Dalton Trumbo, 41-year-old writer who worked on the films, "A Guy Named Joe" and "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes." By a standing vote of 240 to 15.

Samuel Ornitz, author of a score of movie scrips since 1930. Including "Hit Parade of 1937" and "King of the Newsboys." By voice vote.

Robert Adrian Scott, 35, producer who collaborated on "Miss Susie Slagle's" and "Cornered." By voice vote.

John Howard Lawson, New York born writer who once edited a newspaper in Rome, and who wrote the script for "Algiers," "Sahara" and 'Counterattack." By a voice vote.

Edward Dmytryk, 39, director of "Murder, My Sweet" and "Cornered;" a native of Grand Forks, S. C. By a voice vote.

Arabs Lose 1st Test Vote On Partition

Committee Rejects, 25-18, Move to Have World Court Rule On Legality of Plan

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 24.—Arab attempts to have the World Court pass upon legality of Palestine partition met defeat narrowly tonight in the first test on the plan.

The 57-nation Palestine Committee voted down two parts of the Arab proposal which would have delayed partition for about a year.

The first vote rejected 25 to 18, with 11 nations abstaining, a request that the International Court of Justice advise on the legality of the British mandate to Palestine and whether partition can be made without consent of the indigenous population.

The second vote rejected 21 to 20, with 13 nations abstaining, a proposal that the court give an advisory opinion on the competence of the United Nations to enforce a decision to partition the Holy Land.

Threaten Jews in East

The votes came after closing of debate in which the Arabs bitterly warned of a "blood bath" against Jews throughout the Middle East if partition was decreed by the United Nations.

Supporters of both sides agreed that the vote on partition iself would be extremely close. At the time debate was closed in the committee 21 nations indicated they would approve the plan, 15 indicated they would vote no, and 13 said they would abstain.

The United States delegation obviously was making a last-minute fight to assure passage by lobbying for votes. Herschel V. Johnson was observed personally trying to persuade Sir Carl Berendsen of New Zeeland to change his previously announced intention of abstaining.

Warnings of race war came from practically all delegates of Moslem countries who spoke today.

Realize Risks, Say Jews

Jamal Husseini, chairman of the Palestine Arab delegation, told the committee that partition means "you will precipitate the country into a virtual blood bath." This, he added, should "not be taken as a threat to anyone."

Moshe Shertok, head of the political department for the Jewish Agency, declared the Jews of Palestine would never submit to any plan subjugating them to the Arabs. There would be unanimous, determined resistance by all 700,000 Jews in that country if they were forced to remain a perpetual minority and a clash would be unavoidable.

Threats of the Arab delegations were a combination of an attempt at terrorism and an alibi if such a thing came to pass, he declared. But the Jews were not alone in this fight and in any case the danger would be much greater if the United Nations abdicated its reponsibilities. The threat would not, he added, deter Jews who "have suffered so much." He said three out of every four Jews in Europe and one in every three in the world were killed during the war.

Dr. Hussein Heykal Pasha of Egypt declared all the people of the Near East would come to the aid of the Arabs in Palestine in a race war.

"If the United Nations decides to amputate a part of Palestine in order to establish a Jewish state,

Vandenberg Warns Russians On Misjudging U. S. Aims; Sees Move to Wreck Recovery

Senators Asked To Weigh Risks Before Rejecting Interim Aid Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) yesterday accused Russia of attempting to wreck recovery of western Europe and warned against misjudging America's purpose.

In a speech urging prompt Senate passage of the 597-million-dollar interim aid bill, he reminded Russia of the Allied pledge of a just peace—a peace that would insure "maximum self-determination for free men in a free world."

He told the Senate:

"Peace on any other basis would be no more than an uneasy truce which, through miscalculation of the tenacity of our ideals, might light the guns again. That must not occur."

Communist Attacks Denounced

Asking colleagues to weigh the "calculated risks if we turn our backs upon our foreign friends," he warned again:

"I can only assert my own deep belief that American rejection of this concept may only postpone an ultimate conflict which otherwise need never occur, and which never should be allowed to occur."

Stepping down from the rostrum to launch the stopgap aid measure on what looks like a short, three-day trip through the Senate, Vandenberg denounced Communist attacks on the United States as "a fantastic libel."

He said international unity which won the war has "fallen apart" and a new type of Communist aggression "is on the march." He said a new Comintern has set out to wreck a western Europe come-back "and there seems to be ample evidence that the wrecking crews already have been turned loose."

Vicious Propaganda Cited

Communist meanwhile have launched "the most viciously unfair propaganda which ever belabored the ears of the world," he told the Senate.

"We are said to be 'economic aggressors'—we who seek no reparations, no booty, no territory—we who protest the intolerant appetites of others in these respects.

"We are said to be 'warmongers'— we who demobilized so fast that our viewpoints may have been unfortunately misunderstood by those who still count their armed divisions by the hundreds—we who, possessing atomic bombs, unsuccessfully beg our critics to join us in dependably outlawing atomic warfare everywhere forever."

Economic War Unnecessary

He told the Senate that neither stopgap relief to France, Italy and Austria, nor the long-range Marshal recovery program, means economic war between western and eastern Europe "unless Moscow persists in its apparent pathetically mistaken purpose to make it such—to its own everlasting detriment."

The only thing involved, he said, is mutual self-help and cooperation between war-staggered nations "determined to recuperate in the pattern of freedom, and turning to a friendly United States for aid." He said achievement of that purpose "is almost as important to us as it is to them."

Unanimous Approval Urged

Vandenberg, whose Foreign Relations Committee unanimously approved the interim aid bill last week, asked the Senate for the "same degree" of support. Then for nearly four more hours he answered questions. As the "debate" continued he leaned against his desk. Finally, he sat on top of it.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee, trying in closed session to write a companion aid bill, meanwhile adjourned overnight without much headway.

Republican members of the House group were reported divided on whether to handle the measure as a "prelude to the Marshall Plan" or as a tapering off of former relief measures. The committee bill, in no event, will reach the floor of the House before next week. In contrast, the Senate has

Market Reacts

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Two Senate hearings at which methods to hold prices down and at the same time furnish grain to feed Europe were studied, sent wheat prices skyrocketing to their highest point in 30 years yesterday. The proposals included a suggestion that the Government buy the entire wheat crop, if necessary, to keep prices down.

The market apparently paid a lot more attention to the world shortage of grain as emphasized at the hearings, than it did to measures suggested to (1) hold prices down, and (2) conserve grain for domestic use.

December wheat reached $3.14, besting its previous high for this year of $3.12¾. The all-time high for any wheat future was $3.25 on May 11, 1917.

Cash oats hit an all-time high of $1.32 a bushel; and cash corn at Kansas City reached $2.65—the highest ever recorded in that market.

Proposals to Hold Prices

Proposals to hold prices down in the domestic market that grain operators apparently ignored, included:

1. A definite interest exhibited at the Senate Appropriations Committee to substitute other foods, such as peas, beans, peanut products, dried fruits and vegetables and canned fruits and vegetables and dried eggs in place of wheat for foreign relief.

Such a substitution might cut down by 100 million bushels the wheat the country would be called upon to furnish, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson estimated. At the same time it would use supplies of such commodities bought by the Government at "distress" prices in order to avoid waste, or, in other cases, bought under price support programs.

2. CONSIDERATION by the same committee of legislation authorizing the purchase, with relief funds, of grain supplies from Argentina and other countries for foreign use, instead of drawing entirely on domestic supplies.

3. REQUEST by the Agriculture Department's Production and Marketing Administration for broad allocation powers, permitting the Government to buy the

New French Government Acts To Check Red Strike Wave

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

IN STRIKE-BOUND MARSEILLE—Wheat from the United States freighter Empire State is being unloaded here by French soldiers in Marseille during the longshoremen's strike

Paris, Nov. 24 (HTNS).—Premier Robert Schuman met with his cabinet for the first time today to map out a vigorous policy to check the nation's spreading Communist-led strike wave.

There were strong indications that the government was prepared to grant immediate increases in the nation's minimum wage but would insist in return on an end to walkouts and a guarantee of the secret ballot in all subsequent strike votes.

M. Schuman is expected to present his new cabinet to the National Assembly tomorrow, and will confer with leaders of the General Federation of Labor on Wednesday. By then the cabinet will presumably have agreed on a new, firm labor policy. C. G. T. officials have already requested a meeting with the new Premier "at the earliest opportunity."

Daniel Mayer, the new Socialist Minister of Labor, declared today that the government intended to safeguard "the right to work"—a phrase that has become a slogan of non-Communist labor leaders in their fight to resist the spread of the politically inspired strike.

As the cabinet deliberated, Parisian postmen joined the walkout today, although telephone and telegraph services were still operating following an antistrike vote at the city's central exchange. Strikers were warned by the undersecretary of state for communications that anyone who left his job was subject to immediate dismissal.

The entire non-Communist Parisian press backed up the new government today, urging it to be firm to avert the threat of disorder and even civil war.

Meanwhile, paralysis struck most of France's ports this afternoon as longshoremen at Le Havre, Nantes, Lorient, Bordeaux and Algiers joined the general walkout. Here and there, throughout the country, miners, railway employes and steelworkers quit their jobs, sometimes after strike votes but more often by a show of hands demonstration called by C. G. T. organizers.

In other areas the back-to-work movement continued, notably in the Moselle Department, where miners voted by a 60-per cent majority to end their strike. Their action was praised by M. Schuman, who called it "a sign of confidence

Leave If Reds Tie Up Big 4, Marshall Told

London, Nov. 24 (HTNS).—The four-power Council of Foreign Ministers will convene at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow in the huge, mirrored and cream-and-gilt salon of Lancaster House, which was built in 1925 and was once the most palatial palace in London.

This fifth session of the Foreign Ministers of the United States, Great Britain, Soviet Russia and France is aimed at settlement of some of their long-range disputes over the future of Germany and Austria. They last met at Moscow seven months ago.

In preliminary talks, Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Secretary, conferred late today with Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Minister, and later with George C. Marshall, American Secretary of State. He will see Georges Bidault, French Foreign Minister, tomorrow morning.

Merely Courtesy Calls

A spokesman for Bevin said these talks were "only courtesy calls." They are not even intended to attempt to clear up the first obstacle facing the council tomorrow—the question of agenda. The three Western powers are agreed on the agenda, but the Soviet Union has held out steadfastly against their proposal and in favor of its own.

Bidault was the last of the Foreign Ministers to arrive. The chaotic situation in France is expected to force him into an awkward position, because he personally must avoid stirring up any new trouble in his domestic political difficulties.

He told reporters:

"We are hoping to succeed where previously we have failed. Despair is a mortal sin."

Other arrivals today included several members of Marshall's del-

Morning Papers Announce Workers Have Left Jobs

BULLETIN

Chicago, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Spokesmen for Chicago's three morning newspapers, the Tribune, Sun and Journal of Commerce, said tonight that typographical workers left their jobs at 9 p. m. CST.

Chicago, Nov. 24 (AP).—Union printers employed in Chicago's six daily newspapers were ordered to go on strike tonight at 9 p. m. (Central Standard Time).

The order was issued by John J. Pilch, president of the AFL Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, a few minutes after he had announced that union members had voted to strike by a count of 2330 to 61.

"Picketing will be established tonight," Pilch said. "We'll be docile."

The vote came shortly after the Chicago Newspaper Publishers Association, representing three Chicago morning newspapers and three afternoon publications, had rejected an ultimatum which the printers had issued at a meeting yesterday.

Wages Only One Issue

Shortly before the strike vote was announced, the printers voted that any strike called would be effective in all publications employing union printers. This later was announced as referring to the six daily newspapers.

The newspapers affected rae The Chicago Sun, the Tribune, and Journal of Commerce, all morning newspapers; The Daily Times, The Daily News, and The Herald-American, afternoon publications.

The publishers late today had issued a statement rejecting a wage increase demand of the printers without settlement of other issues.

"We cannot recognize a mandated wage scale." The publishers' statement said.

Chest Drive Lags But Tops 1946 Effort

'Preview of Victory' Rally Is Set for Tonight at Mayflower

New hope for successful completion of the lagging Community Chest Federation drive for $3,900,000 was expressed yesterday by Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, Jr.

After comparing progress in the current campaign to date with accomplishments during the same period last year, Foley stated:

"Although we cannot afford to slow down now, nor to be over optimistic, these statistics give us some concrete evidence that the job ahead is far from impossible. I believe we can do it."

The campaign, originally scheduled to end today, has been continued for another two weeks. At the last report meeting Friday less that 60 per cent of the quota was recorded.

Tonight at 6 o'clock in Hotel Mayflower, volunteers will attend a "preview of victory" rally at which latest receipts will be tabulated.

Although only $2,336,868 has been raised to date in the 1948 campaign, Foley pointed out, this sum is $38,000 above the amount recorded in the first six report sessions last year.

At tonight's report session, all gifts received up until 8 p. m. will be tabulated. Members of the public relations committee, working under Chairman Matt Meyer, will be among guests at the head table. Other invited guests include the presidents of five suburban Chest federations and their suburban unit campaign chairmen.

Traffic Ticket Adjustment Secrecy Decreed by Barrett

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, yesterday declared he will take steps immediately to keep all information about traffic ticket adjustments from the press and public.

A list of 177 ticket adjustments, made last week by precinct captains, was given to the press yesterday, as has been the custom for many years.

It will be the last such list released to the press until he can get a ruling from the corporation counsel's office on whether ticket adjustments are a matter of public record, Barrett stated. Last week he had refused a request from a District Traffic Court conference committee for information on adjustments on the grounds they were an administrative and not a public matter.

"Precinct captains should be allowed to use their own discretion in adjusting tickets. In most cases, adjustments are made only after the captain has made certain that the motorist had a reasonable excuse for violating a traffic regulation," Barrett declared.

"At times, some policemen are somewhat overanxious about giving out tickets. It is up to the captain then to straighten out the matter, where the motorist has a reasonable excuse. I see no reason why motorists should be embarrassed by publicity about adjustments," he stated.

Barrett said he will also take up the matter of releasing the lists with the District Commissioners. He said he understood that an order to release the lists to the press was given many years ago with the understanding that the lists would not be published.

Of the 177 ticket adjustments listed yesterday, 158 were classified as warnings and 19 as cancellations.

Among those receiving warnings a Congressman, a special assistant corporation counsel, a policemen, three doctors, two nurses, three newspapermen and a number of persons who were listed as being on official Government business. Tickets were canceled for six motorists because of diplomatic immunity. One ticket was canceled because the motorist was carrying a large payroll from a bank.

Adjustments were made for six persons, who were strangers in the city, for nine persons who said they were unfamiliar with the traffic regulations here and for 21 persons who had no previous warnings on traffic violations.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) received a warning on a ticket he was given for parking in a no parking 7 to 9:30 a. m. zone, according to the list. His administrative assistant, Albert Herman, said that the Senator's secretary had sent the ticket with money to pay the fine to the police

'Loser' at Russian Roulette Lives to Tell How It Feels

Burton N. Chassin walked out of Casualty Hospital last night as one of the few men who can tell how it feels to lose a game of Russian roulette.

Chassin, 30-year-old former combat engineer and a postwar grocer, stood in his grocery the night of November 5, demonstrating to a group of wide-eyed youths the precarious percentages of Russian roulette.

He removed four of five cartridges from a .38 caliber revolver, spun the cylinder, held the barrel to his head and pulled the trigger.

He lost.

The slug plowed into his right temple, passed through both sides of the brain, emerging from the left temple and destroying sections of the frontal lobes of the brain. Wit hone cartridge in the five-cartridge cylinder, Chassin had one chance in five of dying.

By the time he was admitted at the hospital, doctors gave him 4 chances in 100 of living.

But he walked out unaided last night, boarded a train for Buffalo, N. Y., where he will recuperate at the home of his father. With him were his father and his wife.

His reaction to the whole episode was terse.

"I feel fine," he said.

Dr. William Spence, who performed the operation on Chassin, described him as being "in good shape.' He will suffer no ill effects, no paralysis, no loss of locomotion or balance and no impairment of any of the senses.

As a Naval surgeon during the war, Dr. Spence performed many

Immediate Release Refused

6 American Soldiers Seized By Yugoslavs on Trieste Line

Trieste, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—United States Army headquarters announced tonight six American soldiers were seized today by Yugoslav troops on the northern border of Trieste Free Territory.

The men were identified as a staff sergeant and five other members of the Eighty-eighth Cavalry Reconnaissance Troop.

They were on frontier patrol at outposts. When they failed to return to their base on schedule at 3 p. m., a search party went to the border and called to Yugoslav troops.

The Yugoslavs replied that the men had been seized. The American search party promptly asked for their release under terms of a recent agreement which calls for the return of captured personnel on either side within 24 hours.

The Army said the case had been referred to the Yugoslav representative here but a headquarters spokesman feared it would "have to go through diplomatic channels."

The Eighty-eighth had to surrender a football to the Yugoslavs in the same border area 10 days ago.

The football bounced across the frontier, and the Yugoslavs would not throw it back. They said its return would "have to go through higher headquarters."

Later the cavalry unit signed a formal report awarding the ball to the Yugoslavs, "forever and in perpetuity . . . because the recent inclement weather has not given them sufficient time to learn the capitalistic game of football."

CourtMartial Ordered for Gen. Meyers

president of the Aviation Electric Corp., established by Meyers, disclosed that Meyers had first persuaded him to help in "concocting" a perjured story that it was Lamarre who got all the profits from the company and wasted them in "gambling and riotous living."

Lamarre's story broke down when T. E. Readnower, his brother-in-law, and one-time $25-a-week "dummy" treasurer of the company, refused to go along and told Senate investigators the story of the "kickbacks" the two paid from their lush "executive salaries" into the general's pockets.

The reorganization of the inspection organization is the direct result of the Meyers scandal, Symington said.

Whole Setup Under Fire

Air Inspector Junius W. (Jingling) Jones and the whole air inspection service have been under the concentrated fire of the Senate subcommittee because of a "cover-up" of their failure to investigate Meyers.

Symington and Spaatz were in agreement that the Air Force will not voluntarily separate the function of the air inspector from the chain of command. Spaatz was emphatic he must remain answerable to the commanding general.

Instead, Symington said, the Air Force is in the process of working out an arrangement whereby the Federal Bureau of Investigation will investigate all suggestions of criminal action by Air Force members.

Urged by Ferguson

The members of the Senate subcommittee, headed by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), have several times mentioned the desirability of an entirely separate inspection service, answerable only to the civilian Secretary, an end which can presumably be accomplished by legislation.

Symington said he was positive no other Air Forces officer was involved in any way in Meyers' wartime activities.

Meyers worked as "a lone wolf," Symington declared, and compared him to Ivar Krueger, Swedish match king.

No Others Under Probe

Asked if the possible aviation stock holdings of any other procurement officers were now being investigated, Symington and Spaatz at first replied that they were not, and that it would be an impossible task.

They had been investigated, it was pointed out, in a letter sent out during the war, and they replied that they held none.

A reporter asked if it were not true that Meyers made the same negative reply, and Spaatz angrily retorted with a question as to whether the intention was to say all the officers in the Air Force were liars.

Finally Symington replied that the Air Force would take up the necessity of this investigation with its new adviser, Wilson.

Symington also disclosed that a general reorganization of the entire procurement structure of the Air Force has been under way during the two months since the Air Force obtained autonomy.

"To that end, as Undersecretary, the Air Forces now has one of the Nation's foremost experts on procurement, planning and administration, Arthur B. Barrows, for many years president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.," the secretary added.

Procurement Under Study

"Mr. Barrows is presently engaged in a thorough study of all procurement matters incident to standardizing, streamlining and allocating of straight-line operating authority along with responsibility," he declared.

Congressional action to tighten up procurement practices in all the armed services, possibly in all branches of Government, appears in the offing anyway, as a result of the Ferguson subcommittee disclosures.

Congress already had extended the statute of limitations on war frauds cases.

Up to Army Secretary

Symington announced in his prepared statement that "court-martial charges are being prepared against Meyers. Later he told his press conference that the Secretary of the Army has final responsibility for deciding upon a court-martial.

There was an initial confusion about whether or not determination had been actually made that the retired officer would be court-martialled.

Under questioning, the matter appeared to boil down to this: The Army and the Air Force are agreed upon a court-martial, but the when and what of the charges are undetermined until it is discovered just how great penalties if any are imposed by the civil courts.

In other words, if the high-living, poker-playing general gets sentences in the civil courts which the Air and Army secretaries and Attorney General Tom Clark deem sufficient, the court-martial will be directed only at striking him from Army rolls.

It was noted that if he is convicted in civil court of a felony he can be droppped from the Army without court-martial but it appeared evident the service did not favor resting on that.

Symington said it was not clear that the Air Force had the legal right to stop the $550 pension without court-martial, but the Army action in doing so left it up to Meyers to challenge it in the courts. Meanwhile, the taxpayers are saved from paying him $550 a month, a fact Symington noted.

He can be, and was, stripped of his decorations and there is a penalty if he wears them again, Spaatz explained.

The Air Secretary paid particular attention to what he said was "an implied threat" by Meyers 1st October 11 to bring in "a lot of important people" in his testimony before the Senate subcommittee. It was a statement which Meyers reiterated at a press conference November 17.

"Until October 11," Symington told his press conference, "we had no facts to justify a court-martial. On that day, Heyers asked us for an interview, which was given.

"At that time he told us a shocking story, then suggested we court-martial him immediately 'to keep my name from being smeared across the Nation by Senator Ferguson'."

Saw Forestalling Program

The court-martial was refused, the Air Secretary said, because "we were convinced Meyers wanted a court-martial as a way of forestalling public hearing by the Senate committee."

The next day, Symington said, Meyers' story was related to Kenneth Royal, Secretary of the Army, Clark, and Ferguson.

Ferguson informed the officer that Meyers had told his superiors only "a small part" of the story, a statement Symington said he later found to be true. It was, he told his press conference, only a very small part of what later came out in hearings.

Quartet Hits Sour Chord At Capitol

A barber shop quartet from Flint, Mich., hit a wrong note at the Capitol yesterday by singing in a corridor at the House end of the Capitol.

They were promptly asked to stop by Sergeant at Arms William F. Russell.

He said the music was very good, but explained it would take formal permission from Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) to sing in the halls.

So, the quartet wound up singing—and guess where—in the barber shop. En route, they put on a special performance behind closed doors of the men's wash room in the House press gallery.

Earlier they had serenaded Congress members from one end of the Capitol to the other.

In the group were Willard Schindler, baritone; Hulin Augsbury, bass; Byron O. Brooks, lead; and Harry J. Morton, tenor.

They are members, they explained, of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

Washington and Baltimore chapters of the organization invited them to sing here. They accepted because, they said, they like to sing "at the drop of hat."

The Flint group joined seven District quartets in a program later in the evening at the Francis Asbury Methodist Church, 3140 16th st. nw. The program was sponsored by the Washington Chapter for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

Greek Premier Just Misses Road Mine

Athens, Greece, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—The afternoon newspaper Estia reported today that Premier Themistocles Sofoulis narrowly escaped a road mine yesterday near Kilkis, north of Salonika.

The newspaper said Greek guerillas mined the road and that a young soldier discovered the mine a few minutes before Sofoulis' car passed.

25 CIO Members Found Guilty on Contempt Charge

Chicago, Nov. 24 (AP).—Twenty-five members of a CIO United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of Amreica Union local today were found guilty of contempt of court chrages arising from violence at a strike-bound plant and Superior Court Judge Robert E. Crowe said he would sentence three top officials of the local to 90 days in jail tomorrow.

The union officials are Pat Amato, president; Irving Krane, business manager, and Lee Lundgren, field representative.

The union members were chraged with violating an injunction issued two weeks ago by Judge Crowe forbidding violence at the strike-bound Cory Corp. plant, and reducing the number of pickets from 10 to four.

Sen. Taft First Choice Of Chicago Publisher

Hong Kong, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, said today that he would support Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the Republican presidential nomination only if there is a deadlock over Senator Robert A. Taft.

He listed other acceptables as Senators Edward Martin, of Pennsylvania; Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, Gov. Earl Warren of California, and Representative Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, although not necessarily in that order.

He said his first choice was Taft, who is "right in there on the firing line."

Doctor's Order Needed for Milk

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 24 (AP).—This city of 300,000 was being fed milk on doctors' prescriptions tonight, end of the third day of a dairy workers strike.

The strikers voted late today to reject a proffered wage increase of 12½ cents an hour.

Invalids and children may obtain milk at two dairies through personal calls with prescriptions, but deliveries are being made to hospitals and institutions.

that if he was not notified by 8 p. m. (CST) tonight that the wage increase request had been put into effect, "the services of members of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 will be withdrawn upon adoption of a strike vote" which began at 6 p. m.

Publishers Demand Contract

The publishers, who asert that the issue in their five-month dispute is not wages but the union's "no-contract policy," declared.

"We have at all times been ready to negotiate a wage increase, if the union would agree to put the wage scale and other terms of employment in a lawful contract of reasonable duration."

Some 1700 members of the local yesterday voted approval of a union demand that wages be increased from $85.50 weekly to $100 for day workers and from $91 to $106 for night and early morning workers, effective today.

Pilch replied in a statement that "the issue is one of wages only."

He said the union had offered the publishers a contract "containing all the essentials of a collective bargaining agreement, so it is quite evident the so-called 'no-contract' policy is not the issue."

Nice Clean Strike

Negotiations, which began last July and continued after expiration of the printers' work contract with the newspapers October 21, were broken off recently after Woodruff Randolph, president of the International Typographical Union, and other high ITU officers, took part in the talks.

Randolph told the printers yesterday that a deadlock had been reached and that the course open was "a nice clean strike."

The Publishers Association has filed charges with the National Labor Relations Board accusing the union of using slow-down tactics in newspaper composing rooms in an effort to force an agreement.

Editions of several newspapers have been late the past three weeks in reaching the street, and some editions were eliminated entirely, due, the Publishers' Association said, to the composing room slow-down campaign.

Virginia Boy, 15, Gets 45 Years in Father's Slaying

Madison, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—A 15-year-old boy who testified he fired the shot that killed his father because "Mom told me to do it" was convicted of first degree murder here today and sentenced to 45 years in the State penitentiary.

The defendant, Floyd Butler, was the only defense witness. His mother, Mrs. Minnie Seal Butler, who wept quietly as the 12-man Madison Circuit Court jury heard the ease, is charged with aiding and abetting in the murder of her husband, William J. Butler, at their home near Syria September 6. Her trial is scheduled December 22.

Big 4 Council Opens Today; Marshall May Quit at Deadlock

cation who came on the United States liner SS. America. Among them were Charles E. Saltzman, Assistant Secretary of State.

It was understood that Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, would arrive by air tomorrow from New York to assist Molotov. Vishinsky has been representing the Soviet Union at the United Nations at Lake Success.)

The conference will open with the usual struggle over what the ministers should discusss. On this point their deputies have been divided for nearly three weeks of abortive efforts to reach an understanding. They have failed.

The three Western powers went to discuss the question of an Austrian treaty first. Russia wants to discuss it last and open the conference with the problem of procedure for preparation of a German peace treaty. The latter problem, however, is firmly regarded by the others as something which should only be tackled after the more basic problems of Germany have been settled.

Marshall was understood tonight to feel that the Austrian treaty problem must be dealt with first. Then the conference should settle once and for all the old wrangle of political and economic unification of Germany—a problem complicated not only by the attitude of the Soviet Union but of France, too. Failure to achieve agreement on either of these two problems could break up the conference.

Quick Showdown Urged

(The Associated Press said it was reported top American advisers urged Marshall to seek a quick showdown with Russia on Austrian independence and German unity.

(In the event of a complete deadlock, Marshall should move to adjourn the conference for a long period, since such an impasse would doom the Big Four meeting in any event, the advisers were reported to have told him.

(Many observers believe the conference may be the last four-power attempt to reach unified peace settlements with Germany and Austria.

(Marshall conferred today with all his top advisers thrashing out some problems at a three-hour luncheon given by Ambassador Lewis Douglas. Included were Republican Adviser John Foster Dulles, Ambassador Robert Murphy and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany.

(Informants said Marshall's advisers fear a prolonged acrimonious debate on Austria independence and Germany unity might result not only in a breakup of the Council of Foreign Ministers but collapse of the Allied Control Council, leaving no machinery to mend the split in Germany.

(It is also feared that Molotov will use a prolonged meeting of the Foreign Ministers for a Soviet propaganda attack aimed at the German people and stressing the Russian program for a strong centralized German government. The United States, Britain and France have urged establishment of a weaker federalized government in Germany to prevent the rise of another totalitarian regime there.

(Britain and the United States, it was said, will press for immediate consideration of the Austrian treaty.

(Some American advisers, the informants said, are urging concessions to heavy Soviet reparations demands in Austria even at a cost to the Western powers, arguing that it would be worth such a price to get Soviet troops out of Austria, Hungary and Romania.

(Occupation forces would be required to leave Austria within 90 days after the signing of an Austrian treaty, and similarly Russian "line of communication" troops would leave Romania and Hungary.

(It was predicted that the crisis in the conference would come during the discussion of economic and political unity for Germany. Some sources said it was possible that the Western powers will see in 10 days whether a compromise was likely.)

Ruhr, Rhineland at Issue

The question of political and economic unification of Germany is put into sharp focus by the chaos presently dominating both Italy and France as well as by the four-power disagreement over future control of the Ruhr and Rhineland, which are of vast importance in plans for the economic recovery of the whole of Europe.

The Ruhr and Rhineland problem is complicated by two factors: First, the Soviet desire for a share in the control of the rich coal and industrial area, and, second, France's fear that the area may be left in German hands and thus, perhaps, aid Germany in becoming a menace to the peace of Europe for the third time.

Meanwhile, it was understood tonight that even if the London conference collapses, the United States does not contemplate a formal peace treaty with western Germany. Exactly what would be done is still uncertain, but some sort of temporary arrangement would be set up to revive the economy and political life of the area occupied by the United States and Britain, and if possible, France.

40-Year Treaty

The question of a four-power treaty to guarantee the demilitarization and disarmament of Germany for 40 years is on the agenda proposed by the United States, Britain and France. Whether the treaty will be seriously discussed is expected to depend mainly on developments on other problems, notably the Austrian treaty and the political and economic unity of Germany. They are considered far more urgent at this stage, at least by the Western powers.

no force on earth could prevent blood from flooding," he said.

"Moreover, once such bloodshed has commenced, no force on earth can confine it to the borders of Palestine itself."

Not even American assurance of Security Council action to preserve peace would be sufficient, he asserted.

Sir Zafrullah Khan of Pakistan, which recently achieved independence by partition from India and is now involved in a race war between Moslem and Hindu, also declared partition might set "off a conflagration."

The British, rebuked by Herschel Johnson for "desultory assistance" to partition, heard another rebuke today by the Soviets who objected to her "peculiar attitude."

"All the statements of the British," said Semyon Tsarapkin of Russia, "cannot be understood otherwise than as a decision, in fact, to work against the settlement of the Palestine question."

British "Loophole" Charged

Conditions laid down by the British he declared "constitutes a loophole for all those who are ready to provide opposition to any implementation of the plan." The conditions are "harmful, dangerous and might involve difficult consequences," he added.

Argentines Arrive On Trade Mission

By the United Press

An official Argentine mission arrived here yesterday expecting to remain five months in the United States to survey means of increasing two-away trade between the two countries.

The mission, composed of four men, was headed by Rolando Lagomarsino, former Argentine minister of commerce and industry. Lagomarsino said his group would spend the next two months between New York and Washington conferring with officials and business leaders, and then would visit important industrial cities in the East, Midwest, South and Far West.

Schuman Acts To End Strikes

in my government which I appreciate."

All told, close to one million men were idle on the new Centrist government's first day in office. It is almost impossible to estimate the exact extent of the strike, for the labor crisis is the most confused and fluctuating that France has known since its liberation.

It has gradually developed into a showdown fight between the government and non-Communist labor leaders on the one hand, and the Communist Party on the other.

Supporting the Communists are millions of French workers who are neither party members nor unpatriotic citizens but who want and need higher wages to cope with spiraling living costs.

This is one reason why the new government will do its utmost to satisfy their immediate demands before cracking down on political labor agitators.

When Mr. Schuman faces the National Assembly with his new cabinet it appeared likely that he would encounter rightist dissatisfaction because former Premier Paul Reynaud was denied a portfolio.

The Republican Party of Liberty (P. R. L.), a rightist faction, announced its intention tonight to question M. Schuman on composing a cabinet out of tune" with the popular will as it was expressed October 19" (the day of General de Gaulle's R. P. F. victory in the municipal elections) and with the majority received by the premier last Saturday.

The P. R. L. supported Mr. Schuman, as did other rightist elements. At the time, it was thought that Mr. Reynaud, an Independent Republican of the right, would be accorded a vice premiership and charged with supervising a broad program of economic and financial reforms.

But the Socialist Party, whose support Mr. Schuman had to have in constituting his cabinet, objected to Mr. Reynaud as an opponent of the Socialist policy of state control.

U. S. Air Policy Group Given Two Opinions

Ralph Damon, president of American Airlines, told President Truman's Air Policy Commission yesterday that 750 million dollars is the minimum annual business volume necessary to maintenance of the aircraft manufacturing industry.

At the same time David J. McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the United Steelworkers of America, urged the commission to oppose "further concentration in the aviation and allied industries" and advocate competition "as a basic principle of our air policy."

Assign MacArthur To China, Bullitt Urges

New York, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to France and Russia, urged today that General Douglas MacArthur be named ambassador to China.

Bullitt said MacArthur and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek could work out a plan to "prevent conquest of China by the Soviet Union."

Bullitt urged that Congress appropriate immediately a sum of 60 million dollars to 75 million dollars for China and turn over thousands of tons of munitions and aircraft now "rotting" in the Pacific.

Wheat Reaches Highest Price in 30 Years

entire wheat crop if necessary, to avoid higher prices due to Government buying in a free market as at present. This request was made by Carl C. Farrington, chief of PMA, to the Joint Committee on the Economic Report.

4. REQUEST for continuation of export controls over grain, as well as petroleum, coal, steel, lumber, fibers, chemicals and some manufactured equipment. This request, before the same committee, also was presented by PMA officials.

Previous proposals to furnish other foods in place of wheat for foreign consumption have been blocked by their higher cost per calorie, Anderson said.

Clay Balks on Prune Price

He related that he is now engaged in a "friendly controversy" with Gen. Lucius Clay, American commander of the Occupation Forces in Germany, over substituting dried prunes for wheat.

Clay, Anderson said, protested he could not pay more than six cents a pound for prunes. Anderson countered that he was unable, under the law, to sell the prunes below parity. He asked that this part of the law be repealed.

An interesting side play between Anderson and Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) marked the morning's session. Ferguson demanded that Anderson answer his question: "Is the price of wheat too high now?"

"I always try to avoid answering that question," Anderson replied. "As the biggest buyer of wheat in the world, if I say the price is too high, then I am considered bearish; if I say it is too low, then I'm a bull.

"Whatever answer I give might aid one group of speculators against another."

Buying Program Defended

He added that he could tell better what the price should be if he knew the size of next year's crop, and whether the present high domestic demand for foodstuffs, made possible by the high national income, will continue.

Ferguson didn't get his answer.

Anderson added that efforts to get foreign purchasing commissions to take other foods in place of wheat had failed because of their higher costs per calorie.

He defended the Government program of buying wheat for other nations through the Commodity Credit Corporation. Otherwise, he argued, foreign governments would be in American markets bidding against themselves and Government agencies, such as the armed services.

MacArthur Seeks More Grain

Anderson injected two interesting angles into his testimony. First, he declared that General MacArthur had recently called upon him for much larger supplies of grain for Japan and Korea than had been allocated.

He also admitted that $500,000 had been made available to the Citizens Food Committee for its campaign for food conservation out of funds voted for foreign relief. Most of that sum, he said, had not been expended

He also added that a part of that committee's program to conserve wheat by inducing bakers to end consignment selling of bread, had not been generally put into effect.

The Agriculture chief urged legislation providing for rationing and price controls.

"There are some areas, particularly meat, where prices will be very hard to live with without some control over prices," he said.

He then add that "if we have a bad wheat crop Congress will be very receptive to controls over cereal grains."

He admitted that "there is nothing harder to enforce, particularly as to livestock," than price controls.

He agreed with a suggestion from Senator Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.), that if wheat prices should decline a great deal would be fed to livestock.

If rationing and controls are not placed upon wheat, Anderson recommended that Government allocations be provided. Among these he suggested:

1. Power to limit millers to flour production to as little as 75 per cent the amount milled the year previous.

2. Require bakers to stop consignment selling of bread—by which they take back from retailers bread more than a day or two old.

3. Require that mixed feeds be limited as to the amount of wheat or other grains used.

4. Strict control over amounts of grain to be used by distillers and brewers.

5. Limited types of grain used in manufacture of prepared poultry feeds.

6. Reduce grain shipments into some areas and increase them into others—particularly to increase them into dairying areas to assure plentiful milk supplies.

7. Power to limit hatching of chickens by commercial hatcheries.

Anderson declared that his department was working with the Bureau of the Budget, the Commerce Department "and one or two others" on a proposed allocation program.

Anderson denied that any great quantities of grain was going into the manufacture of liquors; in foreign countries. The entire importation of whiskies, he said, amount to about 4 per cent of domestic production. About half comes from Canada and the other half from Great Britain, neither of which would be beneficiaries under the interim relief program.

Dope Ring Hunted After Death

New York, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Federal officials said today they expect soon to arrest leaders of an international narcotics smuggling ring as a result of the seizure of a fortune in heroin in the luggage of a man who died aboard a transcontinental plane. They said Ralph Masey, whose death on a plane en route to Los Angeles led to discovery of the smuggled drug, was a member of a narcotics mob with headquarters in New York.

The ring, for which Masey was believed to be a messenger, is said to have operated on the scale of an international corporation, growing the drug in Asia and then smuggling it from Europe to headquarters here. The drugs he carried were valued at from $800,000 to three million dollars when diluted for marketing.

Dewey Asks Quick China Aid, Agrees We Must Help Europe

New York, Nov. 24 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declared tonight the American Government was "bankrupt as far as Chinese policy is concerned" and said that, unless aid was sent China, "the 450 million free people" of that country might well fall into Communist hands.

Dewey

The United States and "all other nations which resist totalitarian dictatorship are being attacked by all means short of war," Dewey told Columbia University Law School alumni at a dinner, "but the program of Communist world conquest of the remaining free nations is further advanced in China, the largest nation of all.

"The cold war, which has become a warm war in Europe, is a very hot and successful war in China. The inescapable fact is that unless we change our national policy immediately there is good reason to believe that the 450 million free people of China will soon fall wholly into Communist hands."

No Question of Not Acting

Before launching into a broad attack on the Administration's postwar policy toward China, Dewey noted he was speaking on a "nonpolitical occasion" but said "in the state of the world today, there is no subject which is not deeply fraught with heavy political implications."

The titular Republican Party leader said the Nation generally was agreed "that we have no choice today whether or not to act in the world emergency.

"We are going to act because it is unthinkable that after winning a war we should surrender the fruits of victory by allowing the free nations to fall into economic chaos and then under Soviet control."

But, he added, if the 275 million people in western Europe are important, "it seems to me that 450 million people are also important . . ."

Dismayed at Omission

"Accordingly, I was dismayed to discover that in the emergency program presented to the Congress by the President last Monday, there was not even a mention of China. This is utterly incomprehensible at a moment when the world is in imminent peril of losing a free China."

Dewey said "the tragic result of our Government's ineptitude and lack of policy in Asia has been to allow the Soviets and their allies to make rapid progress in liquidating their problems there and completing their expansion in the Orient so as to be free to turn all their effort to the subjugation of Europe."

However, he said, "it is still not too late," commenting that "the tremendous resiliency, the hard work, the great loyalty of the Chinese people can still be mobilized if aid is extended."

"A comparatively small expenditure by our country should produce enormous results," the Governor said, especially in view of the great Chinese inflation which has caused each American dollar to be worth 100,000 Chinese dollars.

Urges 75 Million Now

He suggested inclusion of 75 million dollars to 100 million dollars for China in the emergency-aid program now before Congress and said it had been estimated an annual program of 250 million dollars for three or four years would maintain China's economic life "while she wages the struggle against her Communist enemies."

Surplus Army supplies now in the Pacific also could be shipped to China, Dewey said.

"If China falls," Dewey declared, "we may reasonably assume that all Asia is gone, and western Europe and the Americas will stand alone—very much alone in a hostile world."

House Cites 10 Film Figures For Contempt in Red Inquiry

ALBERT MALTZ
House Cites Him First

plays "If I Had a Million," "None Shall Escape" and "The Invisible Man Returns." By voice vote.

Alvas Bessie, 43, New York writer who began turning out film scripts after a career of free-lance writing for New Masses, Scribners and Colliers magazines. By voice vote.

Herbert J. Biberman, 47, director of such pictures as "One-Way Ticket," "Meet Nero Wolfe" and "The Master Race." By voice vote.

Ring Lardner, jr., son of the late humorist. Young Lardner is a sreenwriter who worked on the films "Manila Calling," "Bermuda Mystery," and "The Dolly Sisters." By a voice vote.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas told the House his Un-American Activities Committee had every right to ask the 10 men for a yes or no answer to the question, "are you or have you ever been a member of the Communist Party?"

"They refused to answer because they were Communists," he said. "They knew that we had the evidence."

Thomas brushed aside the argument of the witnesses that the committee had violated their constitutional rights just as much as if it had asked whether they were Republicans or Democrats.

"To say that a committee of Congress cannot inquire into the subversive affiliation—the treasonable affiliation, if you please—of an individual, is ridiculous," the New Jersey Republican said.

Inquiry Only Begun

He said his committee had only begun to investigate Communism in Hollywood, and that it would make "a full exposure in the very near future."

Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.) took sharp issue with Thomas, warning that "we are treading on dangerous ground . . . wading into a quicksand which will engulf our liberties . . . invading the field of thought, of opinion, of political conviction."

Holifield said congressional committees certainly have the power to investigate, but should do so "discreetly."

"One of the real issues before Congress," he said, "is whether the committee has used its power wisely . . . or has abused its power and caused ridicule and loss of prestige to Congress."

Thomas said it would be "one of the greatest mistakes" this country can make "to put the Communist Party in the category of a political party."

"The evidence is overwhelming," he said, "that the Communist Party is first of all a foreign-directed conspiracy to destroy the American system of government . . . and carry out the objectives of the Soviet government."

Called Unconstitutional

Marcantonio charged that the committee's questions about Communist affiliation were unconstitutional because Congress has no power to legislate in the field of party membership.

"It seems," he said, "that this committee and this Congress in the past few years have taken the position that democracy is synonymous with monopoly capitalism . . . America will never survive if we place it in that kind of strait jacket."

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.), a former movie actress, described the committee's hearings as a "traffic farce." She said she was not defending Hollywood or any individual, but added that she felt the committee was unfair in "condemning" the entire movie industry on charges of fostering Communist propaganda and then refusing to list the films which allegedly contain such propaganda.

"You can't fight communism by abandoning American principles," she said.

Representative Richard M. Vail (R., Ill.), presented the committee's "test case" against Maltz, and said the committee had a photostatic copy of Maltz's Communist Party membership card, and evidence connecting him with a number of communist front organizatios.

Representative Herman P. Eberharter (D., Pa.) opposed the citations and bitterly criticized the committee

"We cannot support the Un-American Committee and at the same time support free speech," he said. "The American people did not intend to give this small body of men the right to censor or dictate what should go in or be cut out of a movie, except on moral grounds."

Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) said he supported the citations because there was no doubt in his mind that the witnesses should have answered the committee's questions, but he charged that much of the committee's work has been "unfortunate" and proposed that the Thomas group be abolished and replaced by a joint Senate-House committee.

Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) told the House that "Communist witnesses are instructed to create confusion and disrupt the orderly proceedings which would be desirable" at the committee hearings. He said it "is highly desirable that Communists be purged out of the motion picture industry"

[The New York Herald-Tribune quoted Representative Bakewell, 35-year-old Republican Navy veteran, as saving he voted against citations because while the writers and others were accused of "disseminating subversive propaganda" still "no specific movie or book or writing was offered as evidence that they had disseminated such propaganda."—Editor's Note.]

The Democrats who voted against the citations were Blatnik (Minn.), Bloom (N. Y.), Carroll (Colo), Celler (N. Y.), Douglas (Calif), Eberharter (Pa.), Havenner (Calif.), Holifield (Calif.), Huber (Ohio), Karsten (Mo.), Klein, (N. Y.), Morgan (Pa.), Pfeifer (N. Y.), Powell (N. Y.), Sadowski (Mich.).

Canada Puts Price Ceilings On Many Foods

Ottawa, Nov. 24 (AP).—The Canadian government—beset by rising prices and reports of panic buying since imposition of its "austerity" program—announced today price ceilings will be reimposed on many processed foods.

Finance Minister Douglas Abbott said he had instructed the Prices and Trade Board to take necessary action to restore controls on the "more important varieties of canned fruits and vegetables."

He said he also ordered the board to be "prepared to reimpose mark-up (price) control on fresh fruits and vegetables and canned fruit juices."

The "austerity" program, announced last week, is designed to ease a shortage of United States dollars by cutting imports on articles ranging from automobiles and jewelry to fresh fruits. The action has produced a wave of protests. Prices have soared, rocketing as high at $500 in the case of some automobiles.

There have been runs on fruits and vegetables in some places. Canada imports citrus and other fruits from the United States. Most of Canada's wartime price controls on food were lifted September 15. On October 21 the meat ceilings came off.

Churchill Says He Might Have Kept Lend-Lease

London, Nov. 24 (AP).—Winston Churchill said tonight he believed he could have persuaded President Truman to continue lend-lease after the war if he had not been swept from power by the Labor Party landslide in 1945.

"I see that the Socialists have been saying that the reason for the present shortages is that I neglected to make arrangements with President Roosevelt for the prolongation of lend-lease after the war," he said.

"President Roosevelt died in April, 1945, and I believe I could have make a good working arrangement with his successor, President Truman, if I had not been turned out by the Socialists at the general elections. It is like them that, having taken the power into their own hands, they should try to thrust the blame of their own failure onto me, of all people."

Va. Woman Is Held In Neighbor's Slaying

Appalachia, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Lillian Phipps Saylor of Appalachia, is in Wise County jail tonight, charged with the murder of her next-door neighbor, Walter Clifton Hash, 54.

Hash, shot twice through the shoulder and twice through the stomach, died Sunday morning in the Appalachia General Hospital.

Commonwealth's Attorney John Roberts of Wise County said a warrant charging Mrs. Saylor with the shooting was issued after Hash died from his wounds.

Control Seen Likely On Time Purchases

Majority of Senate Banking Group Appears in Favor of Evans' Proposal

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A majority of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee appeared yesterday to be in favor of restoring wartime controls over instalment buying, although the proposal was attacked by half a dozen spokesmen for banking and credit organizations.

Evans

The proposal was formally presented to the committee by Governor R. M. Evans of the Federal Reserve Board, speaking for that organization and presumably also for the Administration. He appeared at the opening day of committee hearings on Point One of President Truman's 10-point anti-inflation program.

Among the committee, only Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) took an active role yesterday in opposing the recommendation. Chairman Tobey (R., N. H.), clearly favored the move, and the ranking Republican member, Senator Buck (Del.), is the author of a resolution to grant the required congressional authorization.

Against Permanent Order

Tobey and apparently other committee members, were opposed, however, to a suggestion of the Federal Reserve Board that the controls be made permanent. Failing this, Evans had argued for a grant of authority for at least three years.

Buck's resolution would permit the controls only until next June 30, but Tobey indicated he thought March 15, 1949, would be a better expiration date.

Evans asked for what amounted to a restoration of "Regulation W," in effect from 1941 until the first of this month. Under it, the Federal Reserve Board required a minimum down payment on installment prchases of 33 1-3 per cent (20 per cent on furniture) and a maximum period of 15 months for the amount to be paid off in full.

Evans argued that installment selling was one of the current inflationary forces. In the three weeks since the end of Regulation W, he said, "installmen credit terms have been growing more and more liberal in many fields . . . (and) have already become too easy for these boom times."

Expansion Cited

Installment credit, he continued, has expanded in the last year by more than two billion dollars.

"The economic effect of adding borrowed dollars to current income, together with the unprecedently large volume of savings in the hands of the public generally, can only be to prolong the period of inflated prices," he said.

"At the present time this is the really crucial point. Easy credit terms would make no more goods available. They would only help to hold prices high in the marketplace . . .

"Excessive credit extended during a business boom accentuates the boom and then has to be liquidated out of current income on the downswing, which accentuates depression."

Senators Buck and Sparkman (D., Ala.) called attention to recent advertisements indicating that sellers of radios and other durable consumers' good were already offering their wares for "no down payment" and granting long-term periods in which to pay off.

Argument Challenged

Capehart, however, challenged Evans on the ground that his proposal would deny the poor man the right to enjoy the consumers' goods he wanted. It would hurt the former GI particularly severly, he said. How are the one-third of the people who are underpaid and who don't have enough money, to get what they want, he asked, "when you're going to tell them they can't buy?" Who would benefit, Capehart wanted to know.

Evans replied that the whole economy would benefit and even the GI would be a lot better off if he did not incur debt that he could not afford.

Capehart's point of view was the one taken by other witnesses yesterday speaking for the American Bankers Association, the American Industrial Bankers Association, and the Retail Credit Institute.

M. I. Behrens, jr., of the last-named group, summarized the argument in three points.

1. The amount of instalment credit is less than 1 per cent of the national income and accordingly is relatively inmaterial in its effect on inflation.

2. Restoratioin of the credit curbs would not be of utility because they were not effective against inflation when they were in force.

3. Restoration of controls would actually be inflationary, because "if we stop purchases of plentiful durable goods, consumers will have more money left with which to demand scarce consumption items such as food."

Myron R. Bone, vice president of the American Industrial Bankers Association, termed the controls part of a "Communistic program." They would "deny to the individual his inherent right to use his credit on the best terms he can secure for the purpose of buying necessities," he said.

Regulation Indorsed

But he added that his organization always indorsed the provisions of Regulation W and would have incorporated them in its own operating code if it were not for the Anti-Trust law.

Thomas F. Kelly of the Vacuum Cleaners Association pled for an exemption from controls for the sale of vacuum cleaners because of their contribution to health and disease prevention.

Tobey said that hearings on the proposed resolution would end today, with the testimony of Henry Kaiser, nationally-known industrialist.

Murder Charged To Arlington Man In Woman's Death

A formal charge of murder has been placed against Napoleon Ballantine, Arlington laborer, in the fatal shooting of a 40-year-old woman in her S. Glebe rd. trailer home early Sunday.

Ballantine, who lives at 2133 S. Oakland st., was held under $2000 bond on the murder charge early yesterday, shortly after Mrs. Eleanor Caldwell, 2444 S. Glebe rd., died at Arlington Hospital of a head wound apparently inflicted by .38-caliber revolver, police said. He previously had been charged with felonious assault.

Police said Mrs. Caldwell in a deathbed statement, absolved Ballantine by saying she was shot when a pistol he was examining was accidentally discharged. He was charged, however, on the basis of testimony by witnesses that the two were engaged in an argument a short time prior to the shooting.

Police have been unable to find the murder weapon which Ballantine contended was fired by an unknown person from outside the trailer.

Supreme Court Backs Girl in $50,000 Suit

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Some very tough customers are apt to hang out in the railroad yards at night. And it's up to the roads—the Supreme Court said yesterday—to see that they don't beat up people.

All the justices agreed—for the second time this term—in upholding the appeal of Verble Singleton Lillie, a girl telegraph operator for the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad. She sued for $50,000 after a tough customer injured her for life when beaten in the yards at Memphis, Tenn.

Sylvester Jones, as a result of the beating went to prison for 20 years—for robbery, attempted murder and attempted rape.

The Federal court in Tennessee threw out Miss Lillie's $50,000 suit, when the railroad claimed it was not responsible for criminal acts of Jones, who did not work on the road. The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals said last April that the road was right.

She appealed to the court here. Without holding a hearing the justices decided the railroad was as much bound to keep its yards safe from criminals as from other dangers. So now, Miss Lillie's damage suit will be heard by the Federal court in Tennessee.

Witnesses' Appeal Denied

The court swung back to its regular 5 to 4 split in turning down the appeal of three Jehovahs' witnesses who got three years in jail for walking out of civilian service camps. The men were:

Wesley William Cox, 29, a truck driver who objected to induction in 1944 because he was, he said, doing 150 hours a month of church work;

Theodore R. Thompson, 37, a grocer, who claimed he worked about 45 hours a month as a pastor, and

Wilbur Roisum, 29, who claimed both that he was a full-time minister and was needed on his father's farm.

The draft board sent all three to camps. They left the camps and were tried for draft-dodging. Justice Reed spoke for himself, Justices Jackson and Burton and the Chief Justice in holding they would have to stay in jail. Reed said the men had a right to question—at their trials—whether the draft board was right in refusing to treat them as ministers But he said they had no right to put this question up to the jury.

Frankfurter Agrees

Justice Frankfurter agreed with the result.

Justice Douglas dissented, saying the trial judge ought to have held the three men to be ministers. Black agreed with him.

Justice Murphy said part-time preachers were common in many sects, and as much entitled to draft exemption as those whose churches could hire them full time. He said the record showed the three Witnesses were ministers and ought to be released from jail. Rutledge joined in Murphy's dissent.

The court yesterday, also:

Refused to hear the appeal of a Jewish orthodox school, which found its classroom plans barred by the Cleveland Heights, Ohio, zoning commission.

Pollution Law Upheld

Upheld the Louisiana law against pouring waste from oil fields into creeks and rivers, where it is said to kill the fish;

Agreed to hear the appeal of Louis Krieger, who got a Nevada divorce in 1944 but was ordered by a New York court to keep on paying his wife $60 a week allowed her in a legal separation in New York in 1940;

Refused to declare the United States the "owner" of the marginal sea oil beds off California, as asked by Robert E. Lee Jordan; and Admitted Senator Wherry (R., Nebr.) to its bar, on motion of former Senator Burke of Nebraska.

U. S. Road Building Experts to Aid Turks

The State Department said yesterday Government road building experts will be sent to Turkey to supervise design and construction of a five-million-dollar highway network.

The Public Roads Administration has agreed to assume this responsibility, the State Department said, as part of the 100-million dollar Turkish aid program.

such operations during the war—150 on Okinawa alone. He said only 4 per cent of the operations are successful.

Surgery in Chassin's case consisted in removal of all destroyed brain tissue and the blood clot, halting of internal bleeding and closing of the wound. The patient was in a coma four days after surgery. After eight days his senses began to clear and 15 days after the shot ripped through his brain he was sitting up in bed.

After time for recovery at the home of his father, Chassin plans to return to work at the Bennings Market, 3012 Minnesota ave. ne., of which he is a part owner.

Adm. Hardison Named Pan-American Chief

By The Associated Press

Naval officials said yesterday that Rear Admiral Osborne Hardison, veteran of two wars on the sea, has been named chief of the Navy's Pan-American division.

Admiral Hardison, these informants said, has been designated for the post now held by Rear Admiral Marshall N. Greer, in Navy orders already issued. There has been no public announcement of his new assignment.

Navy officers said Greer would take command of a division of aircraft carriers.

Fate of Attlee Tied to Food

London, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Britain is headed for a new food crisis which may provide a threat to the Labor government, political quarters said today.

Cripps

Most observers believe, however, that if the crisis abates as expected early next year Prime Minister Attlee may be able to survive it by making cabinet changes.

The test will come when the government cuts the food ration still further to save American dollars.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps already has told Commons the average calory diet will be reduced from the present 2870 a day to less than 2700.

Political quarters believe that the government will be compelled after Christmas to reduce the potato ration from 3 pounds a person weekly to 2½ pounds and to boost the point rations on other foods.

All cereals and most canned goods are rationed by points, including canned meats, preserves, fruits and fish. Dried eggs, on which housewives depend to eke out the ration of about one real egg a person per week, also are rationed. But they have practically disappeared anyway from grocers' shelves.

Taft 'No. 1' Choice Of Col. McCormick

Hong Kong, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, told newsmen today that Senator Robert A. Taft is his No. 1 choice for the 1948 Republican nomination.

McCormick said at a press conference that he would support Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur for the nomination "only if there is a deadlock over Taft"

Stassen Asks Campaign Funds in Milwaukee

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Milwaukee, Wisc., Nov. 24.—Harold E. Stassen tonight appealed to America's millions to back him in his "hard, uphill fight" for the Presidency.

He was on historic political ground. Here, Teddy Roosevelt was shot by a would-be assassin in Bull Moose days, and here Wendell Willkie met his political Waterloo in the 1944 Republican primary.

Stassen, first entry in the battle for the Republican Presidential nomination in '48, spoke tonight at a major rally in the Milwaukee Auditorium that had all the razzle-dazzle of an election eve.

A crowd of 4500—including 1200 Stassen boosters from Minnesota—whooped it up for the candidate after United States Senator Joe McCarthy (R., Wis.) introduced him as "the next President of the United States." In the throng were 20 "hook-em-cow" riders from St. Paul, attired in gaudy woolen shirts and fleecy chaps, and students from Marquette and 19 other colleges and universities.

Stassen had flown to his political testing ground in his chartered United Air Line plane earlier in the day, winding up a two-week delegate hunt that took him into 12 States.

Although Stassen threw his hat in the ring as far back as last December 17, he called tonight's rally the opening of his "definite drive" for the 547 delegates a candidate will need to win at the GOP National Convention in Philadelphia next June.

His speech was aimed over the heads of the bosses—"President Pickers," as he called them—and was in tune with the unorthodoxy that has marked his entire campaign.

He even went so far as to appeal for campaign funds—"$1 or $10 or $100, as it takes money to carry on a Nation-wide campaign."

He called his speech "Straight From the Shoulder," and at the very outset he slammed his No. 1 rival by saying he had not come here on a "vacation trip"—a reference to the "nonpolitical" tour which Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, took through the Midwest and the Rockies last summer.

In this thrust, Stassen acknowledged that Dewey is the man he must beat in Wisconsin's preferential primary, April 9.

But the battle may turn out to be less simple than that. It all depends on what Gen. Douglas MacArthur says or does. If MacArthur comes back to this, his home State, before the primary, and if he comes back an avowed or even a receptive candidate then, say the politicians, "All bets are off."

They don't know exactly what will happen, but they don't think it would be good news for either Stassen or Dewey.

If MacArthur stays out of the fight for Wisconsin's 27 delegates, and Stassen and Dewey slug it out, it is conceivable that one or the other of them will be eliminated from the '48 race.

Wendell Willkie promptly withdrew after Dewey overwhelmed him here in '44.

In his speech tonight, Stassen conceded that what he was going to say would not be considered "politically wise."

"I know that the powerful President Pickers consider that it is wrong to be so frank and forthright with the members of the Republican Party and with the people of America," he said.

Should Avoid Issues

"It is their view that the correct thing to do is go through elaborate operations of looking the other way; that the difficult, hard, controversial issues of the day should be avoided and the people should not be told our views upon them; that a long vacation trip should be taken admiring mountains and lakes and rivers and flowers and crops and livestock; but that great care should be taken never to meet a difficult real problem face to face.

"These riders of regal reaction hold that a position of photogenic availability should be maintained until such time as a key group of their men, with delegates in their pockets, make hard, tough, secret deals for a nomination and a subsequent administration."

He said that, whatever be his own political future, he did not believe that this type of politics will yield the kind of leadership America needs at this critical period in world history.

It was the second time Stassen had taken a crack at Dewey within 10 days. In a speech in Denver, he called the New Yorker an evasive "me, too," politician.

Lists His Two Goals

Aside from his pokes at the old-line bosses and Dewey, Stassen had little that was exciting or provocative in his speech. This was deliberate. He had spoken on almost every conceivable issue in the course of a 12-State tour that started in Washington, D. C., on Armistice Day and ended here tonight. And so he simply listed his two goals:

"First, to gain an increasingly better life for ourselves and for others, avoiding booms and busts and vigorously maintaining a free economy.

"Second, to win an expanding individual freedom for Americans and for mankind, without the jeopardy of a third world war."

In his peroration, Stassen said: "It will be a hard, uphill fight. We will need to overcome some of the entrenched prejudice within our party. We will need to reach the millions of the people of the country with our message. We will need to win primaries and win conventions.

"The fight will be an uphill fight, but it will be a fight worth waging for the future of America."

MRS. KENNETH MORROW, active in the League of Women Voters and mother of three, says: "After reading all about County Fair Bread in the papers, I served it to my family and was delighted with the way they liked it. Mrs. Nellie Procter Hewitt must be a fine baker, for County Fair Bread is really delicious."

MRS. DANIEL D. SWINNEY, 2706 Holly Street, Alexandria, Va., active church worker and member of the Mt. Vernon P.T.A., says: "It's a pleasure to find bread with that real 'homemade' taste. County Fair Bread has it—plus the high nutrition we mothers want in the bread we serve our children!"

Scientist's Appeal To Stalin Balked

State Department Invokes Logan Act; Forbids Plea for End of Controversies

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Asserting its authority under the 148-year-old Logan Act, the State Department has refused to let an American scientist appeal directly to Josef Stalin for a settlement of Soviet-American controversies.

The scientist is Dr. Leo Szilard, Hungarian-born University of Chicago physicist, who was one of the first to bring the news of atomic fission to President Roosevelt's attention in 1939.

His proposed letter to Stalin suggested that the Soviet dictator make a series of radio speeches to the American people. It also suggests that he help arrange a conference of American, Soviet and other "citizens from all walks of life" to work out some "bold and constructive solution" of Soviet-American issues.

Szilard said his "general sentiments" were shared by "the majority of the atomic scientists who take an active interest in matters of public policy," but that in his specific suggestions I spoke only for himself.

Before sending the letter to Stalin he sent a draft of it to Attorney General Clark for "permission and authority of the Government," under the Logan Act of 1799.

This enactment makes it a crime for any American citizen, "without the permission or authority of the Government," to carry on "any verbal or written correspondence or intercourse" with any foreign government, with an intent to influence a foreign country's conduct "in relation to any disputes or controversies with the United States" or "to defeat the measures of the Government of the United States." The penalties are set at not more than a $5,000 fine and three years imprisonment.

Solicitor General Philip Perlman answered with a noncommittal letter to Szilard on November 11, saying that the Attorney General "does not advise private individuals as to the consequences of their acts under the criminal statutes." He said Szilard could, of course, ask his own lawyer whether the Logan Act would apply.

Lovett Is Positive

But Perlman also enclosed a letter from Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett which was anything but noncommittal. The Lovett letter, dated November 11, explained that the Department of Justice had sought the State Department's views.

"An examination of the text of the letter," Lovett wrote, "reveals that it purports to deal with matters affecting the foreign policy of the United States which have been and are now under active discussion between the Governments of the United States and the Soviet Union, as well as among the states members of the United Nations. It is not believed that transmission of the letter would be of help in resolving the problems under discussion.

"It is, of course, the right of every citizen to give public expression of his personal views concerning the conduct of American foreign policy, as well as his opinions regarding the measures which he feels would further the interests of the United States and the cause of world peace.

"The department does not feel called upon to comment concerning the validity of Dr. Szilard's views or his right to give public expression to them.

Not in National Interest

"It is the view of the department that the granting of permission or authority to Dr. Szilard to transmit the letter in question to the Chief of State of the Soviet Union would be construed as an approval of the views expressed in the letter which, as has been stated above, are not of a nature to assist in the solution of the problems with which the letter deals. It is therefore concluded that it would not be in the national interest to grant the request."

According, Szilard did not send the letter to Stalin, but had it published instead as an article in the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, which appears today. In an editorial note, as in his letter to the Attorney General, he said he would have preferred not to have published the article but would rather have sent it to Stalin directly.

As published, his letter to Stalin warned that if present Soviet-American tension continued for six months, "it would be merely a question of time—a few short years, perhaps—until the peace would be at the mercy of some Yugoslav general in the Balkans or some American admiral in the Mediterranean who may willfully or through bungling create an incident that will inevitably result in war."

Fairfax Man's Trial In Bank Case Delayed

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 24 (AP).—Federal Judge John W. Murphy today continued until January 19 at Lewisburg, Pa., the trial of Robert Gordon Finney of Fairfax, Va., charged with misappropriating $30,774 while serving as vice president of the Citizen's National Bank at Muncy, Pa.

The case originally was scheduled for trial at Harrisburg, Pa., December 2. The continuation was granted at the request of Joseph M. McNerney, Williamsport, Pa., defense counsel.

Finney worked as a national bank examiner before going to the Muncy bank. He was indicted October 24. The alleged misappropriations took place between January 17, 1946, and October 30, 1946.

Acts to Rid Films Of Communists

ERIC JOHNSTON
Discussions Under Way

Film Magnates Discuss Firing Of Listed Reds

New York, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—The most powerful group of Hollywood brass ever grouped around one conference table held a three-hour closed meeting today on what the motion picture industry should do about its Communist employes.

Some 50 top movie executives met with movie czar Eric Johnston to "consider problems presented by the alleged subversive and disloyal activities of persons connected with the motion picture industry."

No statement was issued at the close of the meeting, but a spokesman for the Motion Picture Association which Johnston heads said discussions were "harmonious" and would continue until a decision was reached. The conference will resume at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Discharge of Reds Is Issue

It was clearly implied that the "decision" the movie bosses were seeking concerned discharging all known Communists. The executives at a meeting in May voted down Johnston's suggestion to dismiss Communists in their employ because they feared law suits. But the executives now are expected to take definite steps against movie Reds.

Johnston, who presumably speaks for the industry, has been active lately in denouncing communism.

He has declared also that the film industry has not defended the 10 Hollywood witnesses who were cited for contempt of the congressional Un-American Activities Committee by the full House today.

"We did not defend them," he said, "we do not defend them now." On the contrary, we believe that they have done a tremendous disservice to the industry."

Among those present at today's meeting were Spyros Skouras, president of the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp., whose directors voted unanimously last week to discharge any employe who is cited for contempt by Congress for refusal to answer questions about Communist affiliations or any employe who admits being a Communist.

Others present included Louis B. Mayer, production chief of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and Edward J. Mannix, MGM director-writer; Barney Balaban and Henry Ginsberg, president and vice president of Paramount; Harry and Jack Cohn, president and vice president of Columbia Pictures; Dore Schary, head of RKO; Jack Warner of Warner Bros., and representatives of Universal, Republic, Wanger and Walt Disney productions.

"It was a perfect turnout," the MPA spokesman said. "I have never seen such a gathering of top-fighters from Hollywood and New York under one roof or a meeting so representative of the movie industry."

CTC Motorman Exonerated in Traffic Fatality

John T. Gregory, 39, Beltsville, Md., a Capital Transit Company streetcar operator, was acquitted in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday of manslaughter charges growing out of the traffic death of William B. Ridgeway, 52, of 5805 Ruatan st., Berwyn, Md., on October 22.

Gregory was operator of a streetcar which struck Ridgeway in front of the County Service Building in Hyattsville. A reckless driving charge, also placed against Gregory, was dropped for lack of prosecution at the request of his attorney, Dudley Digges.

Kilday Bill Seeks U. S. Air Academy

Legislation to establish a "United States Air Academy" at Randolph Field, San Antonio, Tex., —similar to the West Point military and Annapolis naval academies—was introduced yesterday by Representative Kelday (D., Tex.).

The academy would be under the jurisdiction of the secretary of the Air Force. Course of instruction would include aerodynamics, flying, navigation, bombing and the use of atomic weapons. Graduates would be commissioned in the Air Forces.

A two-flavor stuffing —fall table tips, too

by Carol Drake

EASY TO PLEASE THE "LIKE OYSTER STUFFING" AND THE "DON'T LIKE DITTO" CROWD with two roast chickens. Make a double quantity of plain stuffing (with lots of sage and onion, of course) and stuff one chicken. To remaining stuffing, add oysters; stuff other chicken. Roast at 350° F. 25 to 30 minutes per pound. Tom Turkey takes to same treatment—fill half of cavity with oysters, half with plain stuffing.

SWEET POTATOES! SO GOOD WITH PEANUT BUTTER AND PINEAPPLE. Bake 6 sweet potatoes; halve lengthwise; scoop out carefully. Fluffy-mash with 1½ cups hot milk, salt and about 6 tablespoons peanut butter. Pile into shells and set half a pineapple slice, curved side up, in each potato "boat." Sail into oven to reheat. Mm-M-Mm.

A GOOD SHELLACKING, JUST WHAT A PUMPKIN CENTERPIECE NEEDS to make it last longer. Give Mr. Pumpkin a coat or two of shellac and he'll keep that fine "figger" for many a dinner.

AND GILDING GIVES PUMPKIN ALL THE GLAMOUR of a coach for Cinderella.

FAT CANDLES IN AUTUMNAL GARB make good guards for pumpkin centerpieces. Wind with a string of cranberries, barber pole style, or tape colored leaves or button chrysanthemums about midway.

THE MAYFLOWER OF 1947 IS A HUBBARD SQUASH. Sail, paper; mast, skewer or pointed stick inserted in center of squash; rigging, yellow ribbons extending from top of mast to ends of squash; "Mayflower" banner, paper; cargo, fruits, nuts, and autumn leaves. All ready to set sail on your table come Thanksgiving. (See illustration.)

"A QUICK REVIEW OF A LOST ART—CANDY MAKING" AND "CHOICE CANDY RECIPES," our two newest leaflets, herald the return of sugar aplenty. Looks like the sweetest holiday season in years as teen agers revive an almost forgotten phrase—"Let's go out in the kitchen and make some fudge." Say Merry Christmas with a gift of homemade candy this year. For free copies of the leaflets, write to Carol Drake, Box 2110, Dept. CC, San Francisco 26, Calif.

Va. Segregation Law Defied By 3000 to Hear Wallace

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—Spurred on by Dr. Clarke Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, 3000 persons defied a segregation law last night to hear Henry A. Wallace, former Vice President, speak under conference sponsorship.

The white and Negro audience cheered for three full minutes as Wallace walked to the platform and later punctuated his talk with frequent applause.

The man whose first public blast against this Nation's foreign policy brought his dismissal from President Truman's Cabinet, declared "men with large financial interests abroad" will cause a third World War unless this country's present policy abroad is abolished.

Earlier, in a speech at Hampton, Va., Wallace said a personal meeting between President Truman and Premier Stalin of Russia is "absolutely vital" in an effort to settle differences between the United States and Russia.

Taking a stand before the white and Negro audience, Dr. Foreman told his cheering listeners:

"There appears to be a State law which prohibits people from meeting publicly.

"If the officers of the law will not allow us to continue our meeting here, we will walk into the streets and hold our meeting there."

Just a few minutes earlier, E. M. French, acting director of the auditorium arena where Wallace was due to arrive momentarily, had told reporters there would be no speeches until segregation laws were observed.

After Foreman continued with "we will not accept segregation. If anyone here feels uncomfortable he may leave," there was a moment of silence. When none of the uniformed policemen or Navy Shore Patrolmen made a move, Foreman said:

11 Defendants Deny Guilt

Prince Frederick, Md., Nov. 24 (AP).—The validity of 47 gambling indictments was attacked in Calvert County circuit court today, while 11 defendants pleaded innocent to charges and asked for jury trials.

The indictments, accusing a total of 36 persons with maintaining gambling devices in their business establishments, were returned by the grand jury November 14.

The defendants were presented today to Judge John B. Gray, jr.

The demurrers to the 47 presentments contended that the indictments, while charging the defendants with keeping places for gambling, failed to specify the exact location of the establishments in question.

Judge Gray was expected to rule on the demurrers before Monday, when the jury trials are to begin.

The indictments were returned after Chief Judge William Loker asked the grand jury to investigate what he termed "the unscrupulous activities of gambling interests within the boundaries of Calvert County."

Marines Ready for Atom War, Gen. Vandegrift Announces

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, retiring Marine commandant, said yesterday that his corps is as ready for atomic war "as anyone can be."

Gen. Cates

The Leatherneck chief held a joint press conference yesterday with his newly appointed successor, Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates. He declared that a postwar reorganization of the Marine Corps just had been completed.

"Combat components of the Marines are ready to sail at any time with the Navy," Vandegrift said. "They are an integral part of both the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets."

General Cates said that he did not believe airborne invasions would supplant the Marines' historic specialty—amphibious operations.

"War tactics will change," he declared. "We must have improved landing boats. Perhaps submarines will be employed. Our reorganization program was in the direction of smaller units. Dispersion is essential. We can't have big concentrations like Iwo Jima or Okinawa again."

Vandegrift added that the Marines are not ignoring the future prospects of aeiral invasions.

"We are training our people in airborne work—air transportable and parachute operations," he said. "Recently 7000 Marines were moved by air to familiarize them with such tactics."

Both Vandegrift and Cates said they were satisfied with the way unification is working out. Most of the Marine Corps fought the original merger proposal, and the final draft of the legislation contained a guarantee that the Corps would be retained.

Under this "charter," Vandegrift said, the Marines will be maintained, "just so long as they can build a better mouse trap than anyone else." Unless they can, he added, the Corps doesn't deserve to continue.

The unification fight is "water over the dam," Cates commented, adding that "everyone is going to make it work."

Vandegrift said his successor will take over from him on January 1, with the rank of four-star general. Under a special law, the former will not retire but be "on inactive duty."

"I'm going down to my place in Lynchburg," he said, "and be a Virginia squire."

Cates was seven times wounded in France during World War I and led Marines in fighting on Guadalcanal, Saipan, Tinian and Iwo Jima.

Recruitment Is Underway In Palestine

Jerusalem, Nov. 24 (AP).—The Jewish Agency said today it was already recruiting young men and women for government service in a Jewish state.

Mrs. Golda Myerson, political chairman of the agency and a former Milwaukee, Wisc., labor leader, said "tens of thousands" were recruited by the agency for "possible military service if the need arises."

"We do not expect trouble, but we are prepared for it," she said. "We would appear weak from the start if we had to call on the United Nations to defend us."

Farben Cited As Backing SS

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 24 (AP).—American prosecutors today introduced documents stating that I. G. Farben took the initiative in experimenting with vaccines on concentration camp inmates who had been artificially infected with typhus, typhoid, dysentery and other diseases.

One affidavit accused the chemical combine of using the Nazi SS (Elite Guard) to "do its dirty work." The documents were received by the United States military tribunal trying 23 Farben directors on war crimes charges.

The documents said Farben supplied the disease vaccines to the SS and received regular reports on the results of the tests.

Dr. Waldemar Hoven, SS camp physician who was condemned to death earlier this year, stated in an affidavit the combine "was eager to use every means to determine the efficiency of its preparations."

3 Die in Riots In Old Delhi

New Delhi, Nov. 24 (HTNS).—Rioting has broken out again in bazaars and residential districts of Old Delhi, where Moslems had returned to their shops and homes. In the riots of last September several thousand persons died.

When Hindu refugees from east Punjab attempted to occupy a house in which Moslems were living, a general free-for-all developed. Three people were fatally stabbed.

A 24-hour curfew was immediately imposed, but when it was relayed today, at least a dozen people were injured and large angry mobs collected in the main street.

Bay State Skins Rated Worst, Southern Next

Boston, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Mrs. Veronica Dengle, author and faculty member of New York University, tonight told an audience of Boston women that they had, among other things, the worst complexions in the Nation. She attributed what she called the frightful New England complexion to extremes in temperature and not enough make-up.

Next to New England women, Mrs. Dengle said, Southern women have the worst complexions "because of improper diet." Those of the Far West have dry skin, she said.

The best complexions, she opined, are to be found in the Midwest—Chicago and Detroit.

Writer Sees Soviet Gold 'Hoard' as Secret Weapon

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov 24 (U.P.).—An article in the magazine United Nations World said today Russia might use a secret hoard of gold to fight the Marshall Plan.

The article, terming the hoard "Russia's secret weapon," said that by 1967 it "probably will equal or surpass the fabulous United States gold reserve of 22 billion dollars.

The Russian, according to the article, could employ this arsenal of gold to "attack the Marshall Plan, which they conceive to be directed toward American domination of Europe, and to speed the United States toward that depression which Soviet economics experts 'declare is inevitable.'

They could use the gold to purchase goods they need and "force up the price of those goods and materials in terms of dollars and pounds," it said.

The article was vague, however, on the value of the Soviet gold hoard, placing its present value at from 3 to 17 billion dollars.

The estimate of Russian gold resources was written by Charles Prince, one-time specialist on Russian economic problems for the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Carpenter's Holiday

Milwaukee (U.P.).—Frank Gratz, a 62-year-old carpenter, has solved his housing situation. During his 2-week-vacation, Gratz bought an 80 by 125-foot lot and, with the help of his wife and occasional assistance of a married son, built a four-room, one-story home.

No Formal Opposition Speech

Vandenberg in his Senate speech indorsed a long-range recovery program as well as interim relief for western Europe but took pains to point out to questioning colleagues that a vote for relief is not a commitment to the Marshall Plan.

SEN. ARTHUR VANDENBERG
Opens Debate in the Senate

In the "debate" that followed, there was no speech formally opposing the interim bill. Most of the questions centered around "safeguards" already in the bill, or even tighter ones to be offered in the form of amendments, making certain relief reaches those who need it, and cutting down administrative discretion.

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) complained of the bill's failure to provide immediate relief for China. He said "Communist encirclement" is just as much a threat in Asia as it is in western Europe.

Questioned at Length

Vandenberg said he "regretted" the omission but noted China will be included in plans submitted later by the State Department. Under questioning by Morse, Vandenberg denied intimate knowledge of the China aid plan, saying he had not been consulted on Asiatic policy.

Senate Republican Whip Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) and Senate GOP Conference Chairman Eugene Millikin (Colo.) questioned Vandenberg at length, seeking "assurances" that the food will get "to the hungry."

Millikin said Coloradoans favored aid "but don't want any black market gravy train."

Vandenberg said he would be glad to consider "any language that would amplify safeguards we have in the bill."

Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) meanwhile offered an amendment requiring use of "buying policies and methods that will exert the least possible upward pressure on prices in the United States."

Denying interim aid purchases will have any "significant" effect on inflation, Vandenberg criticized the President for tying "this interim air program into his anti-inflation program."

The Michigan Republican said it gave the public the "erroneous" impression that the interim aid program required the anti-inflation measures he proposed. Vandenberg said he agreed inflation curbs are important in relation to the long range recovery program.

He said he agreed also that the subject "urgently requires Congressional attention." He said it is not true, however, that relatively light interim relief purchases will materially affect prices.

Idea of Using Tobacco in Aid Plan Favored

Senator Hoey (D., N. C.) said today "some headway has been made toward including tobacco in plans for stopgap aid to Europe."

Hoey told a reporter tobacco-State Senators have conferred with Government agencies and with the Departments of Agriculture and National Defense "to work out removal of Government restrictions" in order to expedite export of tobacco to occupied countries.

"We want to be sure no regulations hold up delivery of Government-held tobacco, for instance, to German cigarette factories in case we get that proposed program ready," he added.

A special Congressional Tobacco Committee will hold its first session tomorrow morning to consider three industry proposals to increase exports: 1. To ship 50 million pounds of tobacco to start German cigarette factories; 2. To get financial aid through the Export-Import Bank, and 3. To include tobacco among commodities to be sent under foreign-aid programs.

D. C. Men Held For Grand Jury In Md. Robbery

Two Washington men were held for the Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday on charges of assaulting and robbing a Washington novelty jewelry salesman on September 2. Bonds were fixed at $1000 each.

The man, Samuel H. Craddock, jr., 23 and Earl Childress, 26, both of 710 6th st. sw., were held to the grand jury after their attorney, Robert W. McCullough, waived preliminary hearings in Hyattsville Police Court.

The men are charged with the assault-robbery of Charles K. Raker, 53, of 257 Rock Creek Church rd. nw., near the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club. He was beaten and robbed of his automobile and more than $2000 in jewelry and cash.

Craddock and Childress were arrested in Washington Thursday and turned over to Prince Georges County police. The FBI, it was learned, has arrested a woman who allegedly accompanied the men. She is expected to be turned over to Prince Georges authorities tomorrow.

Maryland Checks Contractor Fees

Baltimore, Nov. 24 (AP).—Six investigators from the State license bureau today began a State-wide checkup on contractors who owe back license fees plus the 10 per cent monthly penalty for delinquency.

The agency said investigators already are questioning contractors in Baltimore and Cumberland and eventually will tour every county in the State.

The fee is $15 monthly for contractors grossing more than $5000 a year.

Mathew A. Powers, chief inspector of State licenses, said there were approximately 3000 or more delinquent contractors in this city alone, but no estimate has been made yet for the entire State.

Maryland Seeks Jury Trial For 14 Charged With Gaming

Assistant State's Attorney Hervey G. Machen asked a jury trial for 14 persons charged with gambling-law violations yesterday when they appeared for preliminary hearings in Hyattsville Police Court.

Machen said the jury trials prboably will be held Monday in Prince Georges County Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro.

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie overruled a motion for change of venue filed for seven of the defendants by Attorneys Robert W. McCullough and Ignatius J. Keane when the State asked for the jury trial.

McCullough represents Hugh J. Crawley, 48, proprietor of the Crawley's Sea Food Restaurant in Brentwood. Crawley is charged with permitting bookmaking. The charge resulted from a raid on his restaurant building Friday. Three others also were arrested and charged with bookmaking by accepting horse racing bets.

The other three, represented by Keane, are Sam Brown, 37, of Miami, Fla., residing at the Hamilton Hotel here; Leo R. Walters, 26, of 2011 Columbia rd. nw., and James B. Baker, 23, of 2703 Arundel rd., Mount Rainier, Md.

McCullough also represents three men arrested in a raid Saturday on the home of James K. Ryan, 41, a former Colmar Manor town policeman, 9031 48th pl., Berwyn, Md. Ryan was charged with permitting bookmaking. Arrested and charged with bookmaking in the raid were James J. Gilhooley, 40, of 2025 I st. nw., and Salvatore J. Mancuso, 29, 1211 10th st. nw. They were released on $500 bonds.

Seven other persons arrested in a raid on 700 60th ave., Fairmount Heights, last Thursday also appeared in the Police Court and their cases were continued for jury trials. They were Edward K. Morris, 44, of the 60th ave. address, and Alfred D. Paulson, 35, 638 Kenyon st. nw., charged with operating a lottery by writing numbers, who were released on $500 bonds; and Willie E. Brant, 45, 143 W st. nw.; Walter R. Powell, 45, 1822 Vernon st. nw; Helen M. Hayes, 34, 5520 Jay st. ne.; Beatrice Hasty, 42, Accokeek, Md., and Minnie M. Chase, 25, 1727 1st st. nw., all held as State's witnesses but charged yesterday with operating a lottery in amended warrants. All were released on $100 bonds.

Tax Proposals Would Benefit Business, Poor

By The Associated Press

The fuse of an explosive tax battle was lighted yesterday by separate proposals for removal of about six million low-income persons from the tax rolls, and for tax exemption of the first $25,000 of net income of all corporatoins.

Bridges

Representative Ploeser (R., Mo.), chairman of the House Small Business Committee, presented the corporate exemption to the House Ways and Means Committee to settle the Nation-wide controversy over the tax-exempt privilege of co-ops."

Simultaneously, though unrelated to Ploeser's proposal, a movement of undetermined strength was astir to put into the next tax-cutting bill a provision for an increase in personal exemptions—probably from the present $500 to $600.

This would remove from income taxation millions of the lowest-income persons.

A bill to eliminate present inequalities between community and noncommunity property States in Federal taxation was introduced today by Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Bridges said his measure goes farther than previous bills on community property taxation in that it includes provisions for equalizing present estate and gift tax statutes as well as income tax laws.

The bill follows closely, Bridges said, proposals by the American Bar Association's committee on taxation and will have the effect of substantially reducing taxes on all married persons.

Ways and Means Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.) told reporters that Ploeser's proposal "is certainly worth looking into."

"The thinking is in the right direction," he said, "tax reduction tends to accelerate business and actually to increase over-all tax collections."

But on tax relief for individuals, he stuck by his idea for percentage cuts for all the 48,500,000 taxpayers. Bills embodying this principle were killed twice by presidential vetoes earlier in the year.

Knutson said his new four-million-dollar tax-slashing measure, to be introduced in mid-December, probably will include no provision for increased individual exemptions.

However, others were in favor of the increased exemptions, and Knutson conceded they "might be written into the bill when it reaches the Senate."

Knutson plans to add a provision for Nation-wide application of the community property principle, allowing husbands and wives to divide the family income equally for tax reporting purposes. Now applicable in 13 States by local law, this results in lower taxes for many people.

A new showdown on tax reduction has been put off by the Republican leadership, until January.

Representative Engel (R., Mich.) said he is working on a bill to adjust exemptions so as to give the greatest tax relief to the lowest incomes. He is working on a special "head of family" exemption.

Ploeser told the Ways and Means group that his Small Business Committee's study has shown clearly that all enterprises, whether cooperative or othervise, should compete "under the same ground rules," regarding Government regulation, operation and taxation.

Tax exemption now enables coops to grow "far more effectively" than privately-owned businesses, he said.

A $25,000 tax exemption for all corporations, he testified, would "put on an equal competitive basis as much as 80 per cent of all corporations, whether proprietary or cooperatives."

Ploeser said "I am convinced—and I am glad to say this publicly—that farm cooperatives, where not monopolistic, seem to be a logical part of a competitive capitalistic profit system."

Many Slogans Submitted in X-Ray Contest

Already described as "the most vital health campaign Washington has ever attempted," the Chest X-ray Survey slogan contest goes into its third day today.

William E. Leahy, chairman of the survey committee, said yesterday hundreds of contest slogans have poured into committee headquarters. The winner will receive $150; second place $25. The contest closes Saturday midnight. The survey objective is to chest X-ray every person 15 years and up in Washington as the first step in ultimate control of tuberculosis. The project, to begin January 12, is expected to require six months to X-ray about 60,000 persons.

It is being sponsored by the District Health Department, the U. S. Public Health Service and the District Tuberculosis Association.

No limit is placed on the number of slogans which may be submitted and all entries should be addressed to the Washington Chest-X-ray Survey, Washington (4) D. C.

Jury Awards Man $3000 In Arrest Suit

A Montgomery County petit jury of six men and six women yesterday awarded $3000 in damages to James T. Crouch, Veterans Administration lawyer, who sued a Navy captain charging "false arrest."

The defendant in the Circuit Court case was Capt. Thomas J. Kennedy, USNR, who signed a warrant charging Crouch with disorderly conduct. The charge was heard in Silver Spring police court but dismissed for lack of evidence.

In his suit, Crouch said Captain Kennedy, a member of the Navy Retirement Board, who lives at 1203 Brookville rd., Chevy Chase, Md., caused him to be falsely arrested. He asked for $5000 in damages, claiming his reputation had been injured.

Captain Kennedy testified last week that Crouch called at his home with a request to sign a zoning petition. When the naval officer refused to sign, according to testimony, Crouch, who lives at 9601 Riley pl., Woodside Hills, Md., became indignant and called him "an old screwball."

The arrest was a result of "my alarm at Crouch's manner," Captain Kennedy said.

J. Robert Carey, attorney for the high-ranking Navy medical officer, said a motion for a new trial will undoubtedly be filed.

Senora Christens Ship

Baltimore, Nov. 24 (AP).—Senora Isabel Espionsa De Valarino, wife of the Panamanian ambassador to the United States, today christened the S. S. Ulua, a refrigerated cargo-passenger vessel bound for service between the Americas.

She was sponsor at launching ceremonies for the 4600-ton ship, eighth of nine sister ships being built by the Bethlehem-Sparrows Point shipyard for the United Fruit Company.

The ship is named after the Ulua River, principal inland waterway of Honduras.

Whitton Resignation Accepted By Alexandria Hospital Board

The Alexandria Hospital's board of directors yesterday accepted resignation of Hospital Administrator Robert G. Whitton and offered to accept indigent patients at rates recommended in the Clemmons' survey report.

Aceptance of Whitton's resignation, which was tendered Saturday, was unanimous. The board asked, however, that he stay on, not longer than April 1, 1948, to assist in changing some of the hospital's operational methods and to give the board time to find a successor.

Whitton resigned a week after release of the report of a hospital survey which severely criticized his administration. He said he submitted the resignation in the "best interest of the hospital." The Board will meet Wednesday to consider changes as recommended in the survey report.

The Alexandria City Councill is scheduled to meet tonight to consider the hospital board's offer to accept indigent patients at a daily rate of $8.81 plus a $20,000 annual grant, which is the maximum recommendation of the survey report. The council previously offered a flat $7 a day in reply to the hospital's request for $8.81 and a $30,000 grant.

Alexandria City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast said yesterday he could not advise the city to make an outright grant to the hospital without a court ruling. The hospital is controlled by a corporation, consisting in large part of representatives appointed from churches. Such a grant, Pancoast said, could be constured as municipal support of churches.

C. & O. to Provide Phone Service on 2 Express Trains

Orange, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—The Federal Communications Commission today authorized the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. to establish toll telephone service for passengers on two of its fast trains between Orange and Cincinnati, Ohio.

The operation will involve construction of wire lines along the right of way at an etsimated cost of $358,000. The telephone circuits will employ radio communications between the observation cars of the trains and these lines. This will make possible incoming and outgoing calls to any point while the train is in motion, through connection with the Bell Telephone System.

A similar system was authorized last year for the Southern Railway Co. trains between Kansas City, Mo., and Shreveport, La. The Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio railroads have also inaugurated telephone service to and from trains on the Washington and New York run.

Gen. Hawley Quits As VA Medical Chief

Probable Successor Is Dr. Magnuson, His Subordinate and Famed Orthopedist

Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley will retire December 31 as Veterans' Administration medical director, it was announced yesterday.

Gen. Hawley

The 56-year-old surgeon-soldier actually turned in his resignation last week, but announcement was withheld.

Appointment of a new VA medical director will be left up to Carl R. Gray, successor to Gen. Omar N. Bradley as VA head.

Observers here believe the No. 2 VA post will be offered to Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, noted Chicago orthopedic surgeon now VA chief of professional services. Magnuson is the design of the Deans Committee system through which VA hospitals are linked with major medical schools and centers.

General Hawley will be leaving VA, after 2½ years, because both his health and financial resources have been strained, General Bradley said.

In "reluctantly" accepting Hawley's resignation, General Bradley summed up his medical lieutenant's contribution to the veterans as follows:

"Your program, your policies, and your intense personal efforts have assured the Nation of the finest kind of medical service for its veterans.

"Through your own integrity of purpose and insistence upon high medical standards, you pioneered in a brilliantly cooperative program between Government and medicine, a program which has brought health and the promise of happier lives to sick and disabled veterans."

Both in his letter of resignation, and in a statement at a press conference yesterday, Dr. Hawley affirmed his confidence in the future of the medical program, which has raised VA medicine from third-class rating to a statute "second to none."

The new administrator, Carl Gray, is a "good friend of medicine," Dr. Hawley said, adding that Gray's selection as successor to Bradley "promises continued support for the medical service." He said the biggest job facing his own successor would be the strengthening of VA's outpatient clinic system.

Dr. Hawley himself best expressed his philosophy of medical treatment. "Hospitals," he once explained, are not buildings, but patients.

Beatty Stands Pat On Resignation In Hyattsville

W. Carroll Beatty, who resigned as Hyattsville, Md., corporation counsel Friday night because he felt the town council had embarrassed his position in a case before the Prince Georges County Liquor Control Board, intends to stand pat on resigning, he said yesterday.

He said that he felt he had been "double crossed" by the council and "made a goat" before the Liquor Board.

He appeared before the Liquor Control Board to express the City Council's "unanimous" disapproval of a petition for a license to sell beer in the Hyattsville National Guard Armory only to be shown signatures of Mayor Caesar L. Aiello and four council members on a petition favoring the license.

Mayor Aiello later said it was an "unfortunate mistake" and that he had signed the petition months before and did not connect it with the petition the council voted to oppose last week. He offered to apologize to Beatty whom he said "had a right to be angry."

Rapillo, Here on Holiday, Confident of Victory in Police Fight

Former Boxer Jerry Rapillo, once New York's "Patent Leather Kid," was discovered here yesterday, apparently resting between rounds of his fight to carry on as police chief of Berlin, Md.

Rapillo, embroiled in a town controversy, declared he was taking a Thanksgiving holiday at 1412 North Carolina ave. ne., but that he expected to return to police duty in the Eastern Shore town Saturday night.

And when he gets back, he said, he expects the town council to be in his corner, backing him up.

Denounced at Mass Meeting

He was denounced last Friday night by a group of Berlin citizens at a mass meeting there. The group petitioned town council to prevent his return to duty till the controversy is settled.

Rapillo said "some" businessmen were against him because of his efforts to stamp out illegal slot machines in the town and other enforcement activities.

"I haven't been cracking down," he declared. "I just have orders to enforce the law, and that's what I have been doing."

He said he was merely trying to "break up the habit" among youths of 16 and 17 years old who frequent beer parlors, play slot machines and hang around pool rooms.

Row Over Parking Ticket

The Berlin protest meeting followed words between Storekeeper William Rayne of Berlin over a parking ticket Rapillo said Rayne had torn up. Concerning the meeting, Rapillo said it was comprised of "about one third businessmen and the rest outsiders who have no connection with business."

The youth of the town, the former boxer said, are backing him up.

Rapillo said he started his "vacation" Saturday morning.

department, but had received only a warning because it was the first ticket he had ever gotten here.

Mrs. Betty B. Robsion, wife of Representative John M. Robsion (R., Ky.), received a warning on a ticket she was given for parking 5 feet from an animal drinking fountain. The warning was given because the motorist was a member of Congress on official business, according to the list.

Congressman Robsion said yesterday that his wife had parked for only a moment to get a loaf of bread at the store. She was not aware of any regulation regarding parking near drinking fountains, he stated.

He said he mailed the ticket along with a statement of facts to the police department, which adjusted it to a warning because it was the first time in the Robisons' 28 years here that either of them had been given a ticket.

Daniel B. Maher, special assistant corporation counsel, received a warning on a ticket given for parking less than 40 feet from the intersection. No reason was given for the adjustment other than that a request had been made by police headquarters, the list showed. Maher refused to comment on the listing.

On Official Business

The policeman was Pvt. Vincent L. Tinsley, 28, attached to the Second Precinct, who received a ticket for parking in a school zone. The ticket was canceled because he was a police officer on official business, according to the list.

The list of adjustments is comprised of individual lists sent into administrative headquarters each week by the commanding officer of each precinct. The number of adjustments vary greatly in the various precincts. Following are totals for the traffic and harbor divisions and the precincts:

Traffic Division—Nineteen warnings; 1 cancellation.

Harbor division—No warnings; no cancellations. (November 17 to 23.)

First Precinct—9 warnings; no cancellations. (November 16 to 23.)

Second Precinct—7 warnings; 6 cancellations. (November 17 to 23.)

Third Precinct—16 warnings; 2 cancellations.

Fourth Precinct—9 warnings; no cancellations.

Fifth Precinct—11 warnings; no cancellations. (November 17 to 23.)

Sixth Precinct—14 warnings; 1 cancellation. (November 17 to 23.)

Seventh Precinct—6 warnings; 2 cancellations.

Eighth Precinct—9 warnings; 5 cancellations.

Ninth Precinct—5 warnings; 1 cancellation.

Tenth Precinct—41 warnings; 1 cancellation. (November 12 to 22.)

Eleventh Precinct—No warnings; no cancellations. (November 17 to 23.)

Twelfth Precinct—8 warnings; no cancellations.

Thirteenth Precinct—4 warnings; no cancellations.

All but 13 of the tickets adjusted were given for violation of parking regulations.

The names of motorists, the violations and the reasons for adjusting the tickets to warnings or cancellations follow:

School Lunches 5 Cents Higher

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 24 (AP).—Prices of school lunches under the Anne Arundel County schools program will go up five cents, beginning next Monday, Lee W. Adkins, director of cafeterias, announced today.

Adkins attributed the rise to decreased Federal aid. He said complete lunches will now cost 30 cents in 14 schools operating under the county program. Other institutions, including Annapolis High School, have their own lunch plans and will not be affected.

While the county received an average of 9 cents from the Government for each 25-cent lunch last year, Adkins said, "we are lucky to average 4 cents this year."

Adkins added he had been informed participation in the Federal school lunch programs has tripled, without a corresponding increase in funds.

Va. Court Backs Phone Firm In Case for Increased Rates

Richmond, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals cleared up one worry of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia today, when it handed down an opinion refusing to disturb an order of the State Corporation Commission entered last January. Under that order, the company was granted a 10 per cent increase in its rates.

An appeal was taken by the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission and the Arlington Board of Supervisors. They complained that no continuance was granted them last winter for further study of the C. & P. proposal, that the company's proceeding was not handled properly under rate-setting statutes, and that—most of all—the rates approved by the SCC were discriminatory as to Arlington.

In an opinion by Justice John W. Eggleston, the high court turned down the country's protest of every point.

The SCC properly ruled that rates should be set on an integrated State-wide basis, the court said. While Arlington's rates did jump some 32 per cent on residential service and about 100 per cent on commercial service, the boosts were calculated according to the number of telephones in the Arlington exchange. The county has seen a "tremendous change" since its old telephone rates were established in 1926, the court noted, and the number of telephones in the exchange has soared 1060 per cent in the period.

Contrary to the county's view, the Supreme Court said it is "clearly manifest that under the 1926 schedule of rates, the telephone users in the Alexandria-Arlington area have enjoyed a preferential rate at the expense of users throughout the State."

The telephone company is now in the midst of presenting evidence in support of another petition for a rate increase. Testimony will be resumed in this case before the SCC December 1.

Unions Held Accepting 10-Cent Hourly Raise

New York, Nov. 24 (AP).—The National Foremen's Institute said today its survey showed unions "currently are accepting close to 10 cents an hour boost as a compromise figure in labor's growing demand for a third round of wage increases."

The Institute, a business research organization, said it had studied 1100 union contracts covering about a million factory employes in 65 manufacturing industries and that wage settlements since the Taft-Hartley labor law went into effect ranged from 5.2 cents to 14.4 cents an hour. The average, the Institute reported, was 9.7 cents for the nation.

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 24 (AP).—Garrison Norton, United States delegation chairman, said today the 29-nation conference attempting to draft an international civil aviation agreement has failed.

Pravda Charges Harriman Seeks To Enrich Himself

London, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—The Russian newspaper Pravda charged today that Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman was trying to smash east-west cooperation in order to pad his own bankroll.

The Pravda article said the former American Ambassador to the Soviet Union had been "specially commissioned" by Charles Edward Wilson, president of General Electric, to grab German industries for American profit.

According to Pravda, Harriman tried to enrich himself with European investments after World War I and repeated that activity "on a more extensive basis" after World War II.

81 YEARS OF RELIABILITY

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Canada Looks Ahead

The measures just taken by Canada to relieve her U. S. dollar shortages are strictly of an emergency nature. A lasting solution of Canada's difficulties depends, in the opinion of her Finance Minister, Douglas Abbott, on an expansion of her export trade with this country through development of her natural resources and her manufactures. The reduction in our tariffs under the Geneva agreements and other concessions (including a reciprocal trade agreement that, we hear, is now being negotiated between Canada and the United States) will actively further this internal developmental program by expanding the U. S. market for Canadian goods.

In a recent broadcast Mr. Abbott mentioned two methods of developing U. S. dollar sources of income that some of his neighbors south of the border will view with misgiving. But, from the Canadian viewpoint, they appear to be sound methods of achieving Canada's ultimate aims. The first proposal is that U. S. branch plants located in Canada—the automobile industry, for example—should produce finished goods and parts for sales here in amounts sufficient to offset the cost of heavy imports of parts and materials from the United States. How this sort of production for the U. S. market is to be stimulated is not explained, but Mr. Abbott says that the Government "will make every feasible effort to encourage and to cooperate in the development of these plans," although it does not intend to encourage uneconomic production.

The other proposal—one to stimulate gold production—is more specific, as the government is preparing to subsidize gold production in excess of the amounts produced during the year ended last June. This is a device for relieving the shortage of U. S. dollars that will aid Canada, but from the viewpoint of this country is much less desirable than plans for increasing the output of goods and materials that our industries and consumers could use to advantage. For the gold that we receive in exchange for our goods, far from relieving the goods shortages that help to raise prices, becomes the basis for further credit expansion and resultant further inflation of prices.

So far as the general program is concerned, however, we conclude that in the long run whatever enriches Canada makes her a better customer, even though the immediate effect may be an increase of competition certain to bring loud outcries from representatives of U. S. industries and producing groups immediately affected.

The Last Herald

The retirement of Mr. John C. Crockett, after nearly half a century of heroic service as reading clerk of the United States Senate, is a reminder of how many ancient arts are destined to perish in the hostile climate of a technological civilization. Mr. Crockett was perhaps the most eminent modern practitioner of a noble trade the origins of which reach into the great dimnesses of history. He was the spiritual descendant of the immortal herald of the Argive host described by the noblest of poets as

> . . . great-hearted Stentor, with voice of bronze, > whose cry was loud as the cry of 50 other men.

It will not be easy to replace Mr. Crockett, although we hear that the Senate plans to test prospective candidates in a series of auditions. Nature had endowed Mr. Crockett with magnificent lungs and superb laryngeal parts, but these gifts might have availed nothing had he not developed and perfected them with life-long practice. Some say that Mr. Crockett's rare powers became evident in his early youth when, as a ploughboy in his native Iowa, he exercised them on a pair of mules—at any rate, such employment has been often commended as highly beneficial both to voice and vocabulary, and it is surely no accident that so many of the world's greatest orators have been like Mr. Crockett of rustic origin. Others say that Mr. Crockett discovered his metier, after he was graduated from the University of Iowa, when he spent some seasons barnstorming with a theatrical troupe, which had a repertory of crude but popular melodramas. Anyway, he was brought to the Capitol in 1907 by the late Senator Allison, and from that time his preeminence has been unchallenged.

In the somewhat narrow confines of the Senate chamber Mr. Crockett was obliged to modulate his voice to something like the resonance of a double-quartet of bass viols. It was only in the great national conventions that he dared to work in open diapason. But the marvel of Mr. Crockett's work was not merely in the vibrancy of his instrument; it was also in the tempo of his reading. He rendered everything—bills, resolutions, roll calls, presidential messages, amendments, amendments to amendments—in a kind of five-alarm legato, never tripping over commas, never slowing up on the syntactical curves, spelling out without hesitation whatever he could not pronounce. Later he began to make his own rearrangements of the stuff placed in front of him omitting the middle in favor of the beginning and end.

As we say, it will not be easy to replace Mr. Crockett. We even doubt that it will be possible at all. We shall not be surprised if the Senate resorts in the end to some kind of amplifying system or clerical juke box. This, as you know, is what has happened in the railroad terminals and baseball parks. Gone forever is the cathedral-toned train announcer who sang the station-stops in a kind of Ambrosian plainchant; gone is the blood-chilling bellow of Silk O'Laughlin proclaiming the second strike.

Contempt Citations

The issue before the House of Representatives yesterday when the Committee on Un-American Activities asked it to cite 10 recalcitrant Hollywood witnesses for contempt was by no means a clear-cut or simple one. Many of those who voted in favor of the citations had no thought, it is safe to suppose, of indorsing the committee's conduct; they were concerned solely with upholding the dignity of Congress and the important delegated power of Congress to conduct investigations. The handful who opposed the citations were certainly not interested in supporting the defiant witnesses as individuals and had no wish to impair the congressional authority to investigate; they were concerned with rebuking what they considered an abuse of this authority on the committee's part.

In any case, the men are now cited—as it was a foregone conclusion they would be—and the question whether the committee abused its authority in the sense of violating constitutional rights of witnesses, is one that must be resolved in the courts. We do not profess to know the answer to this question. As we said before, however, while we have no sympathy for men unwilling to disclose their political affiliations, we have no sympathy either for a committee that would use its authority to compel this disclosure of a matter that is essentially private and personal. Whatever the legal merits of the question, it seems to us that the committee's line of inquiry was improper and offensive.

The committee's conduct throughout the Hollywood inquiry, and indeed in all its activities under successive chairmen throughout its whole career, has been offensive in other respects as well. The committee has used hearings to seek headlines, has made itself a sounding board for slanderous and irresponsible aspersions on the reputations of individuals, without either requiring evidence to support the aspersions or affording opportunity for refutation and has consistently equated loyalty with conformity. Furthermore in the Hollywood inquiry particularly, we think, it aimed at an interference with the freedom of the screen which was violative of the whole sense of the First Amendment. These are abuses which must be corrected not by the courts but by Congress which created the committee. So long as Congress countenances these abuses in its name, the prestige of Congress will suffer.

Trade With Russia

Apart from a negligible amount of lend-lease and relief shipments, our exports to Russia are now on a strictly commercial basis. What is more, Russia is paying us in goods for these exports and actually built up a small favorable trade balance during the third quarter of this year. However, the value of this trade is still small, even though much above prewar averages. Its comparative insignificance is indicated by contrasting the 172.6 million dollars of exports to Canada in September of this year with the 20.7 million dollars of commercial exports to Russia during the three-month period ending September 30.

We heartily indorse Secretary of Commerce Harriman's opinion that the United States should not obstruct trade with Russia as a sanction against the Russian bloc. For the development of a sound, mutually advantageous trade with Russia would, we believe, help to break down the political as well as the economic barriers that cut us off from eastern Europe. Moreover, unless those barriers are broken down so as to permit the surpluses of Russia and her satellites to be exchanged for the products of western Europe, the task of rehabilitating the food-deficient western areas will be much more difficult. It follows that any assistance we can safely render to Russia by selling her goods and equipment to build up her own agriculture and her industries is an investment that may ultimately yield good dividends. If this appears to be an overoptimistic vision of the future, it can at any rate be argued that we are not the losers by trading with Russia, since Russia is paying for our goods by sending us chrome and manganese ores, and other goods of which we can make excellent use.

No doubt it will be necessary, however, to impose tighter restrictions on exports to the USSR when we embark on the European aid program. For the farm machinery, the locomotives, the freight cars and other equipment that Russia has been buying from us are in excessively short supply in this country. Although it is explained that the cars and locomotives recently obtained by Russia are not suited to our railways, the fact remains that future buying of this kind of equipment will have to be carefully screened in view of the difficulties our railways are facing because of car shortages and underlying steel shortages that hamper car builders in carrying out car production schedules. Farm machinery which the Russians have been buying here is also in short supply—the demands of our own farmers being in excess of the industry's productive capacity. Furthermore, the nations seeking aid under the Marshall Plan are in desperate need of rail and farm equipment and are asking for much more aid in this form than we are in a position to give.

When President Truman says, therefore, that he sees no reason to put a stop to Russian purchases of this type "now," we infer that he is not unmindful of the need for future tightening of controls over our exports to Russia in connection with the Marshall Plan. Such action would logically follow acceptance of the plan and could not be regarded as an invidious sort of discrimination directed at Russia alone.

By-Passing The Veto

As the General Assembly of the United Nations winds up its business, several steps toward the strengthening of world organization have been taken. Foremost of these is the creation of the "Little Assembly," or Interim Committee, which will watch and investigate any threat to the peace while the Assembly is not in session and the Security Council remains hamstrung. In addition, the Assembly has ordered a full study of how to limit the veto power of the Big Five and voted to create an International Law Commission which will have power to draw up conventions for approval of the Assembly and ratification by the member states. To be sure, these latter projects are long-range efforts to buttress the U. N. They will have no bearing upon the dilemmas immediately confronting it. But they indicate a healthy determination to tighten the lines of world authority at a time when the Soviet Union and its satellite police states are trying to thwart all efforts to make collective security a reality.

We are glad that the United States has taken the lead in this constructive movement. Indeed, it is the only course the United States could pursue without abandoning the aims which led us to fight World War II. Two years ago there was hope that collective security could be obtained by unanimous action of the Big Five. The Soviet Union as well as the other major powers had signed, at San Francisco, the statement to the effect that they were not expected to "use their 'veto' power willfully to obstruct the operation of the Council." But the Soviet Union's resort to the veto 22 times, even for the purpose of blocking new memberships in the U. N., has destroyed this understanding and forced the peace-loving states to seek other means of assuring their security.

Likewise every effort to secure an agreement for international control of atomic energy, to create an international police force for use by the Security Council in putting down aggression, and to deal effectively with current disputes has been blocked. Here is the real reason, as Hamilton Fish Armstrong points out in his new book, The Calculated Risk, for the deterioration in the relations between the United States and Soviet Russia. Moscow has compelled us to seek new means of insuring peace or to give up the hope of ending aggression by collective action.

It is gratifying, therefore, that Mr. Armstrong's plan for by-passing the veto is gaining added popularity. Without seeking to change the United Nations Charter, he suggests that a group of peace-loving nations agree among themselves to carry out its obligations when the Security Council is unable to act. This agreement to move against an aggressor, like the pact signed by the American republics at Rio de Janeiro last summer, would come into effect upon a two-thirds vote of the nations signing it, and the signatures of all nations would be invited. Such an arrangement for collective self-defense could not run contrary to the purposes of the Charter because all actions under it would be guided by the Charter. Some device of this sort seems to us essential if the nations still working for the maintenance of peace by collective action are not to find their efforts thwarted by the police state regimes that are making world chaos their business.

DAY'S END

Wild through the valleys, you have pursued him,
Hounds of the darkness, lean-flanked and thin;
The bending boughs of the shrubs have dewed him,
The thickets have opened to let him in.

Thorns and great creepers have none of them stayed him,
His hoof-prints are golden upon the stream's mud;
Yet, some of the woods, bush or brier, have betrayed him,

Hounds of the darkness, pursue him, pursue!
Bound through the forest, and over the meadow!
He cannot run long, he is weaker than you;
After him, after him, beasts of the shadow!

Over the curling brook, stained with his bleeding,
Over the fallen logs, scarred with his prints!
See, the bright thistle-crown, crushed in its seeding!
He has passed here, see the weed-stem's red tints!

See! He is standing there, tawny and still,
Hoofs poised for battle, eyes flashing with hating!
Proudly at bay on the ridge of the hill,
Broad antlers lowered, see! he is waiting!

With quivering nostril, he waits on the hill . . .
Hounds of the darkness—howl for the kill!

Chinese Communists

Twice during the past week The Washington Post printed letters repeating that ancient and discredited wheeze to the effect that the Chinese Communists are not real Communists at all.

To believe that Communists anywhere are not genuine Communists—treacherous and rebellious tools of the Kremlin—is the very embodiment of naivete. That is equally true of the Italian and American Communists and of the Chinese Communists.

One has but to read a few pages of the Chinese Communist bible, China's New Democracy, by Mao Tse-tung, the party's boss. Following are a few brief excerpts from the translation by Lin Yutang, as published in a recent issue of Plain Talk magazine.

"If we do not adopt the policy of allying ourselves with the Soviet Union . . . then we have to adopt a pro-imperialist policy, have to ally ourselves with imperialist powers . . . The contest between the socialist Soviet Union and imperialist England and America is being sharpened . . .

". . . When the proletarian forces of the various capitalist countries are preparing to overthrow capitalism . . . China's revolution is a magnificent part of the world revolution . . .

"Such is the country we want today. In national structure, a joint dictatorship of several revolutionary classes and in form of government, democratic centralization . . .

". . . Whoever dares to act against this directions shall not be able to accomplish his work and he himself shall find his head broken."

To underscore their allegiance to Moscow the Chinese Communists have followed the twists and turns of the party line with the same fidelity as the Communist Party of the United States. In 1939 the Chinese Communists suddenly discovered that the World War was an imperialist struggle from which they must stay aloof. The struggle of the free world against nazidom was characterized by the Chinese Reds as the "second imperialist war . . . a scramble for loot" in which "mad dogs on both sides" were taking part.

But after the German assault on the Soviet Union the fighting took on the aura of a "war for freedom and democracy." After the defeat of the Axis the Chinese Communists again followed the Comintern in branding the western democracies as "imperialist powers."

On the basis of this evidence Lin Yutang reached the inescapable conclusion that:

"The fact is, there are not different national Communist parties in dozens of countries; there is only one international Communist Party in the world. There are not different party lines changing from time to time; there is only one Communist Party line in whatever country and time, and that is, Russia is always right." VERITAS.

"Loyalty"

In your editorial of November 13, you made a comparison between American Communists and Guy Fawkes' plotters during the James I reign in England. To me this is like trying to draw a comparison between Nazi storm troopers and the brave men of General Lee's Army.

In the first place it was proved that the gunpowder plot was comprised of a few radical men who certainly did not have the sanction of the Catholic Church. The great majority of Catholics in England were loyal to James I in spite of the persecutions they suffered.

If you study the subject, you will find that Catholics have always been a stabilizing force of any nation. The Catholic Church supports the existing form of government except when freedom of religion is abolished. Communists have methodically attacked the Catholic Church first, in any country they have sought to undermine. Therefore, I see no possible reason for bringing Catholics into any discussion of disloyal American Communists. In fact they make a most pronounced contrast.

GRACE M. FRIER.

Falls Church, Va.

Editor's Note: It seems to us that Mrs. Frier has drawn utterly unwarranted inferences from the editorial. There was no suggestion in it that American Catholics are disloyal to the United States. Nor was it suggested that the great majority of English Catholics were not loyal to James I. It was merely stated that their loyalty was suspect to the dominant party, which wished to exclude them from all positions of power and influence and that this was the origin of the Test Acts. This is a matter of history.

The point of the editorial was that Communists could not be excluded by any such device, for the reason that, unlike the seventeenth century English Catholics, they do not recognize the sanctity of oaths.

Old Schools

Surely dear reader Pollock (letter published November 21), as they used to say in the old books, was jesting when she asked what was "the antipathy toward . . . old buildings."

Be that as it may, Miss Pollock should know that the antipathy is not against old buildings. It is against cast-offs, "hand-downs," leavings. It is against prejudice and segregation and second-class citizenship. It is against the myth of "separate but equal."

And it is time to ring out the old —"the want . . . the care . . . the sin . . . old shapes of foul disease." It is time to ring in the new—"sweeter manners, purer laws . . . the love of truth and right . . . redress to all mankind."

Drunkenness Arrests

I am scared by these cases of sick people who are picked up as "drunks" and taken to jail. It proves to me, at least, that there ought to be a few other questions asked on tests given to prospective police officers. For instance, who looks like a drunk besides a drunk? Answer, an epileptic, one suffering from heat stroke, ad infinitum. As a matter of fact, a diabetic in a coma may even have alcohol on his breath.

Would it help to have these police officers coupled, one for brawn and one for brain? On the other hand, maybe our sick friends ought to wear a button reading "I am diabetic, or I am epileptic," etc.

Austerity Vs. Royal Wedding

If Mr. Beasley's jaundiced jeremiad of November 21 on the subject of the royal wedding was penned in good faith, it wins him my nomination for No. 1 curmudgeon of 1947. It is to be hoped he wrote with tongue in cheek, a trifle bilious, perhaps, after too large a dinner; for no normal individual—least of all one blessed with the abundances of life in this fortunate land—could begrudge the momentary lightening of the pall of hardship hanging over the British people.

The clear-headedness which Mr. Beasley professes to admire must inevitably lead one to the conclusion that now, as never before, are the English in need of a boost to their morale; and that nothing so much as the wedding of their beloved future Queen with its attendant pomp and circumstance would serve to lift them from the mire of gloom and discouragement. Indeed, a cynic might go so far as to say that the ceremonies had been planned for this particular time in order to distract—for a while at least—his majesty's subjects from the ordeal which continues to face them. Hence this momentary surcease from the grimness of wartime and postwar existence has come as the best possible psychological moment.

Moreover, the magnificence to which Mr. Beasley objects — the jewels and other appurtenances of royal pageantry—has long been in existence and is symbolic of the historic integrity of a nation whose people, though suffering, are not down. There is no wrong in maintaining traditions of greatness, in fact a brave front denotes admirable courage.

The reference to Marie Antoinette contains a specious analogy. Those concerned about the plight of the Welsh miners can effectively alleviate their condition by means of CARE packages. Moreover, opportunity was offered to send the princess wedding gifts in this form for distribution among her subjects.

The bread of practicality needs the leavening of human sentiment; otherwise it is hard and unpalatable. Mr. Beaseley's outlook is, I trust, not universal among my fellow Americans.

MARBURY BEALL.

Washington.

Some months ago Time mentioned your paper as being one of the best 10 in the world. I fully agree and am consequently amazed and disheartened at the egregious poor taste you show in financing Mrs. Guerrieri's trip to London and the wedding of Princess Elizabeth.

It seems to me that she should be entitled to whatever privacy her position allows in such a personal affair as her wedding. The news value is amply covered by professional correspondents and any private comment is not only intrusive but vulgar.

I greatly admire Mrs. Guerrieri for making the dress as a wedding gift but I, and I believe many of your readers, think that to invite and pay for her comments on the ceremony is an insulting invasion of the little privacy to which even a princess is entitled.

The Washington Post could not possibly relieve the needs of the hungry but it could and did send a ray of light into a modest Washington home and joy to the hearts of many of its readers!

BRETTLE SCOTT.

Washington.

I would like to compliment heartily Mr. Beasley on his wonderfully lucid and incisive critique of the incongruous spectacle which has just unfolded in London. It doesn't take a "latent misanthropic trend" in one's personality to feel revolted at the nauseously lush accounts of the nuptial preparations in an atmosphere which has been variously described in the press as "austerity-ridden."

How much more appropriate and splendiferous it would have been for The Washington Post to have expended its efforts and funds on urgently needed food parcels for those average Britons not enjoying the same kind of "hardships" imposed on the royal couple, instead of giving tacit sanction to the slough of fatuous sentimentality now so deplorably prevalent.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Converted Iowa

DES MOINES, IOWA.—The country is way ahead of Congress on the question of aid to Europe. That is true, at any rate, of the solid Republican State of Iowa, which is at the geographical center of what was once considered to be the isolationist Middle West.

The label no longer fits. There is undoubtedly a core of hard-shelled dissenters who think we can crawl into our hole and pull it in after us, thereby insuring the maximum degree of security forever after. But changes are happening fast and I believe the dissenters are in the minority.

It is pretty remarkable when the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, in convention here, votes to obtain 100 carloads of grain for free distribution through established relief channels in Europe. And the approval has not just a grudging acknowledgement of necessity. It came with enthusiastic recognition of the responsibility America faces in a hungry and devastated world.

Another portent of change was the visit to Europe of 22 Iowa farmers. They went on their own initiative and they paid their own way. The trip cost on the average $1500 a piece, and if you think it isn't something new for an Iowa farmer to pay $1500 for a trip to Europe then you don't know Iowa.

What is more, the trip was no pleasure junket. These successful farmers traveled across the Atlantic to find out what was really wrong with Europe and, in particular, with European agriculture.

Now that they are back, they are spending all the time they can spare talking to groups in town and country about what they learned. Without exception, they are preaching the need to send food to Europe as quickly as possible. They are talking about the outmoded methods of European agriculture and the need to send over fertilizers and certain types of farm machinery to help Europeans produce more of the essentials of life.

THESE ARE NOT outsiders come to preach a mission. They are neighbors and they are friends, and therefore what they have to say has the weight 10 times that of the outsider. In several instances these first-hand observers have clashed with the myopic type of Congressman who sees nothing and hears nothing but unfortunately talks about it continuously.

Leadership has a lot to do with the changes taking place here. One of the most exceptional farm leaders in the county is Allan Kline, head of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation. His many admirers believe he may become head of the national federation now that 72-year-old Edward A. O'Neal has at long last announced his retirement.

O'Neal was national president for 16 years. He represented the old type of farm leadership. He was preeminently successful as the chief operator for a powerful pressure group determined to get everything it could out of the national grab bag. The present phenomenal level of farm prosperity represents in part, at least, the triumph of that endeavor.

While Kline is a champion of the cause of the farmer, he is aware that farming is only a segment of the national economy. He knows that the farmer cannot be prosperous for long unless the Nation and the world are prosperous.

KLINE appeared recently before a Senate Agricultural Subcommittee holding hearings in the Middle West. He talked with such knowledge and ease on world affairs that Chairman George Aiken of Vermont remarked he did not sound like a dirt farmer. But Kline established his pedigree, having made his way first as a tenant farmer and then to ownership and operation of a successful Iowa farm.

The people out here grasp eagerly at all signs of imagination and leadership on the European problem. The Friendship Train, with its carloads of free food for hungry Europeans, made a deep impression wherever it stopped. Large crowds gathered and Iowans are said to have contributed more, proportionately, that was given in any other State. Almost every person with whom I have talked in the past few days has mentioned the train and its meaning.

We need more ideas that dramatize our role in the world. Gov. Robert Bradford of Massachusetts whose Pilgrim forefather founded Thanksgiving, is sponsoring the idea of a "silent guest" at every Thanksgiving table. The silent guest is a nameless European who will receive help from an American family.

The sentiment is there. It is real. It needs only to be tapped.

But whether sentiment and good will are enough is, in this moment of decision, the 64-dollar question. The tide of prosperity, nowhere so evident as here in the heart of the farm belt, tends to make most people think that tomorrow will take care of itself. In any event, no one is thinking very much about tomorrow and the day after.

Communist Role

Do you think that your recent editorial of condemnation of the investigations by the Un-American Activities Committee could stand up against the column of Walter Lippmann and the statement of William C. Bullitt in The Washington Post of November 18?

Do you believe that these brilliant men are ignorant or faking when they declare that American, French and Italian Communists are working under orders from the Kremlin, and are part and parcel of the Soviet espionage system? Has our experience with Hitler and the Nazis before World War II taught us nothing? Do think twice before you write things that will weaken this country.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

A Talk With A Communist

AT THE END of a long conversation which I had with one of the most important Communists in eastern Europe, I asked him whether in view of all his harsh condemnation of American purposes, politics and actions he thought there would ever be a world settlement. Certainly, he replied. And when do you believe it will be reached, I asked. He said in about three to five years.

HIS ANSWER, it seemed to me, as I thought about it afterwards, threw a great deal of light on many things which he had said in the course of the whole conversation which preceded it. Thus he had complained bitterly that his country was being denied credits which it was entitled to have. He had told me quite candidly that his government had wanted to participate in the Paris Conference but had been forbidden to do so by Stalin himself. He had said that as between economic advantage and the political security of the Russian alliance, his country had no choice but to choose the alliance.

But he said also, though in a different part of the conversation, that having studied the Paris report, he now knew that his country, which needs capital goods, would have gotten little immediate advantage out of participating. Then he went on to discuss the Marshall Plan. In the first place, he said, your Congress will not now give enough help to save the middle class social structure of Great Britain and France. In the second place, the help you give will carry with it the condition—and here he cited Mr. Stassen—that Europe must give up socialism. In the third place, you will insist, as you have already in Italy and in France, that you will not help countries which have Communists in their governments. Yet the Communists will be able to show that production cannot be carried on anywhere on the continent without Communists to impose discipline upon the workers. In the fourth place, the more the plan fails to bring production in the western countries, the more you will try to rebuild German heavy industry.

You will, he said, speaking with mounting enthusiasm, become more and more unpopular with the masses of Europe. They will see that your promises have not been realized. They will see that your dollars are being used to destroy their independence by stopping the socialism that they want. They will see that you are vetoing the formation of united national fronts. They will see that you are subsidizing them only because you want to use them for the war you are preparing.

AFTER ALL this had been said, and I had had my say in rebuttal—though without any effect—I asked him whether he thought Europe and Russia as well could recover from the war without great help from the United States. No, they cannot, he said. They why, I asked him, do you do your best to prevent us from giving help? Oh well, he answered, you will have to give it anyway, and we can wait until you have to give help and cannot demand a political price for it. And when will that be, I inquired. When you have your great economic crash which will come when you are overproducing and cannot, being a capitalist country, sell all your goods to your own people and must therefore export. Now, he said, you are able to pretend that you are the great philanthropist offering to help poor Europe; but when you have your 15 million unemployed, your Government will have to subsidize exports to Europe to make your own factories profitable again.

This, in condensed form and translated from his Marxist jargon and stripped of the propagandist trimmings which he did me the honor of not expecting me to believe, is a pretty fair picture of how an intelligent and responsible Communist looks at the present situation and the near future.

HIS FINAL prediction that there would be a general settlement in three to five years can, I think, be restated in the light of the conversation which I have reported. His theory was that an economic crash, greater than that of 1929, is certain to occur within the next five years. Before it occurs he believes that we shall not grant enough aid to Europe to save the predominantly middle class society of Great Britain and France, that to this insufficient aid we shall attach political conditions which will turn gratitude for the help into resentment against our politics. After our crash, on the other hand, he believes that we shall be compelled to give greater aid in order to cure our own unemployment and that when that help comes, the post-crash help, we shall no longer have anything like our present influence on British and French and Italian policy, on the Germans, and on the terms of the settlement in Europe and in Asia.

IF WE examine this Communist conception of the near future, we find, I think, that it rests on two major premises. The first is that we cannot and shall not be able to regulate the inflationary boom effectively enough to prevent a deflationary collapse.

My Communist had studied Karl Marx but had never heard much about John Maynard Keynes.

The second major premise is that our diplomacy, as we try to operate the Marshall Plan, will be so blinded by our dollars and our air force and our atomic bomb that it will misjudge the political sentiments and the political realities of postwar Europe—that in our anti-Communist fervor we shall get into bed with the Nazis, the Facists, the collaborators and the quislings all over Europe, that we shall treat the Marshall Plan not as an engine to restore the unity of Europe but as a fund to provide lend lease to those nations and those factions and parties within each nation which make the loudest anti-Communist noises.

The second major premise of the Communists is, in short, that we do not have the dipolmatic vision and skill and astuteness to make the Marshall Plan work.

Senate Confirmation Asked For 500 Interim Appointments

President Truman yesterday sent to the Senate for conirmation the names of nearly 500 persons named to Federal jobs while Congress was not in session.

The list of recess appointments includes John L. Sullivan, Secretary of the Navy; W. Stuart Symington, Secretary of the Air Force; Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, and Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the newly reorganized Housing and Home Finance Administration.

In addition, the President nominated nearly 1200 Army and Navy officers for advancement and submitted a handful of more recent civilian nominations including Carl R. Gray, jr., of Minnesota, to succeed Gen. Omar Bradley as Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

Nominations included the reappointment of United States District Judge Harry E. Pratt to the fourth division bench for the District of Alaska and the nomination of Charles M. Eldridge as United States marshal for Rhode Island, replacing Neale D. Murphy, resigned.

The White House had not intended to burden the special session with the long list of names for confirmation, but Charles G. Ross, presidential press secretary, told reporters that White House legal advisers decided it would be illegal to hold the names until the regular session in January.

Other prominent names included: W. John Kenney of California as Undersecretary of the Navy; William H. Draper, jr., of New York, as Undresecretary of the Army; Arthur S. Barrows of California as Undersecretary of the Air Force; Gen. Carl Spaatz as chief of staff of the Air Force; Vannavar Bush as chairman of the Research and Development Board; Abe Murdock of Utah and J. Copeland Gray of New York as members of the NLBR; Cyrus S. Ching as Federal Mediation and Conciliation director; Oscar R. Ewing of New York as Federal Security administrator; Franklin D. Richards of Utah as Federal Housing commissioner, and Watson B. Miller of Maryland as commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization.

On the military list were the names of Vice Admiral William R. Munroe to be retired as vice admiral; Ahlert C. Shepheard as a commodore in the Coast Guard Reserve for temporary service, and 81 Navy officers for appointment to the permanent grade of rear admiral.

Iran Protests Soviet Accusation Of Hostile Action

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Premier Ahmad Ghavam has protested strongly to Russia against a note accusing his government of hostile action in its cancellation of an oil concession, it was made known tonight.

Ghavam complained against the harsh wording of the note. He said he acted within the limits of his country's laws and had not discriminated against Russia. He added he was surprised at the Russian attitude, since he himself had done his best to get Parliament to vote an oil concession to Russia.

Russia had accused Iran of treacherous violation of obligations and said it must be responsible for the consequences.

Satellite Economy

By Sumner Welles

Russia Tightens Its Grip

THE TIDE is turning sharply against communism in western Europe. Popular support is dwindling. It will decrease much more rapidly when the European Recovery Program comes into existence. The Soviet government knows that it cannot now gain control by parliamentary methods.

That is, of course, why the Communists are resorting to strikes and mob violence, and why the threat of revolution in Italy cannot be lightly dismissed. That is also why the Kremlin is making such frantic efforts to create the illusion that economic conditions are constantly improving behind the iron curtain.

The Manchester Guardian's Moscow correspondent, Mr. Alexander Werth, tells us that the Russians generally believe that "eastern Europe . . . is steadily . . . building up a sound economy with the help of state planning." A common remark one hears in Russia, he says, is: "We know more or less where we are going; we have something to look forward to. Has western Europe any idea where she is going?"

AS THE Congress debates whether it will help western Europe to go in the direction a vast majority of her people want to go—the direction of individual liberty and economic security—the public in all of the democracies should take a careful look at the "sound economy" which the Soviet government is giving the eastern European countries, and see just what it is that those countries have to "look forward to."

No book written since the end of the war throws more light on these facts than Hal Lehrman's Russia's Europe published on November 24.

Mr. Lehrman has spent the past two years in eastern Europe. He tells us frankly that he started as a "lop-sided liberal equipped with a documented knowledge of the faults in Allied foreign policy, but no comparable knowledge—or any real awareness—of the Soviet menace to human freedom." He was under no misapprehensions when he ended his journey.

HIS VOLUME is a damning indictment. It charges that the Soviet system is destroying all hope of economic reconstruction. It demonstrates how the countries of eastern Europe are being exploited for the sole benefit of Russia exactly as the countries occupied by the Nazis were exploited for the benefit of Germany, and how they can neither rebuild nor industrialize themselves without that help from the west which Moscow has forbidden.

It shows us how the "sound economy" of Yugoslavia is marked by impoverishment, crass inefficiency and a slumping living standard; how neither the Soviet Union nor the Russian satellites can absorb Yugoslav agricultural products nor supply the machinery and raw materials that Yugoslavia needs. It proves by chapter and verse how Yugoslavia's new army—three times the size of her prewar army and of value solely to Moscow—is costing 210 million dollars a year, and how this vast sum has until now been raised by the Communists' sale of the free supplies given by American taxpayers through UNRRA for the relief of the Yugoslav people.

It demonstrates how, largely because of our own blunders, the Soviet government has already taken from Hungary reparations more than double the amount agreed upon, and how Moscow has also seized Hungary's civil aviation, bauxite, oil and Danubian shipping.

It tells us how the Soviet Union has drained from Romania two billion dollars of assets instead of the 300 millions of reparations fixed.

THROUGHOUT eastern Europe Soviet policy has been the same. It has varied only in degree. It has been a policy of loot, of the devotion of all local production to Soviet purposes, and of the transformation of the national economy of every one of the countries within the Russian zone into a slave economy subordinated to Soviet interests.

It is in a system of slave economies such as this, as Mr. Mikolajczyk has revealed, that trade union officials appointed by the Polish government can order 100,000 textile workers to work a 10-hour day and a six-day week plus six hours on Sunday, and then put down by force all attempts to strike on the ground that incitement to strike is sabotage against the State!

These are the foundations upon which the Soviet Union's much-vaunted "sound economy" of eastern Europe is being built.

The battle of the Marshall Plan will not be won until it has been shown conclusively that western Europe is on the road to solvency, and that eastern Europe cannot recover until the barriers to trade with the West have been levelled. But the victory would be speeded, when the Marshall Plan begins to operate, if all of the peoples receiving help from the United States could learn from "The Voice of America" and other official sources such facts as those which Mr. Lehrman has reported to us.

Mr. Togliatti and his fellow Communists in western Europe daily rant about the "policy of enslavement" pursued by the United States. The peoples we are helping should surely be told how Soviet policy operates and what its concrete results have been. If they are, it will not take them long to decide whether to look for the "policy of enslavement" in Washington or in Moscow.

Liquor Turn-Backs Forbidden, U. S. Reminds Industry

By The Associated Press

The Government handed liquor dealers a hint yesterday that if they want to get rid of slow-moving stuff, they'd better try selling it at bargain prices.

The Internal Revenue Bureau advised its alcohol tax unit agents throughout the country to bring "forcibly" to the attention of liquor industry members of a Federal statute forbidding turn-backs to wholesalers or producers.

The statute applies to all retail dealers—including States which monopolize liquor sales in their areas—as well as to wholesalers, distillers, rectifiers, blenders and other producers.

Many handlers became overloaded during the wartime liquor shortage with off-brands that have proved slow moving either because, the bureau said, "the prices at which the liquors were originally purchased are out of line with present prices or because the liquors are no longer acceptable to the public."

New AVC Headquarters Now Open for Business

National headquarters of the American Veterans' Committee was doing business yesterday at 1200 I st. nw., after transfer here Saturday from New York City. The move, authorized last June at the organization's Milwaukee convention, was made "for more efficient congressional relationships," according to an AVC official.

Proposed WM&A Bus Fare Hike Is Suspended by ICC

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday announced suspension of a proposed fare increase on the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis bus line between the District and Coral Hills and Hillside, Md.

The motor line had filed intention to raise the one-way fare between Washington and the Maryland points from 10 cents to 15 cents, effective last Sunday.

Suspension of the proposed new fare schedule was ordered by the ICC last Friday, the commission announced. The action was taken pending a formal hearing before ICC Examiner Henry C. Lawton, at 9:30 a. m., December 18, the announcement said.

The ICC suspension order directed that the bus company make no change in present charges or practices until June 23, 1948, "unless otherwise ordered by the commission.

The proposed new fare schedules, the commission ruled, "make certain increases in fares for the transportation of passengers in interstate and foreign commerce and the rights and interests of the public appear to be injuriously affected thereby."

New Power Rate 'Sliding Scale' Proposed Here

Plan Would End Pepco's Need for Periodic Changes, PUC Auditor Says

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A plan whereby electric power consumers would get annual refunds from excess company profits—with reserves from consumers' payments used for company deficits—was proposed here yesterday.

The proposal, submitted to the Public Utilities Commission by its executive accountant and auditor, V. A. McElfresh, as a "modified sliding-scale plan" of electric rates, would end any need for periodic changes in the rates of the Potomac Electric Power Co.

If the cmopany earned an excess of profits in one year, half of that would be applied as a reduction to the consumers' December bills. If the company experienced a deficit for the year, the deficit would be made up out of a special reserve fund containing the excess profits.

Points Out Two Sources

McElfresh proposed that two sources of money be used to start the reserve fund; $312,230.84 representing excess Pepco earnings for 1945 and 1946, which are earmarked to offset rate increase; and $677,325, less taxes, out of the accrued payments of about $95,000 a month which Pepco has been putting aside since March 1, 1947, for expected rate refunds.

Yesterday's hearing was called primarily to consider the latter monthly deposits, which will total almost a million dollars by the end of February when the sum was expected to be divided among consumers.

Pepco has requested that this money, which represents the difference between rates Pepco charged while a rate reduction was being disputed, should be returned to the company as regular income.

Would Meet Rising Costs

Return of this money, the company declares, would enable it to meet rising costs and remove the need for requesting a rate boost early next year.

McElfresh's proposal to employ these funds and the smaller amount for a new sliding-scale plan will be discussed further at another session of the PUC hearing at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The basic difference between his proposal and the existing plan, McElfresh said, is that the company would give up one half of the profits in excess of its base rate of return, for assurance of at least its base rate of return.

The base rate, now figured at 5½ per cent return on investment, less depreciation, is fixed by PUC as a "fair minimum return."

Under the present sliding scale plan, established in 1924, if the company earns $500,000 in profits over the base rate in a year, for example, rates for the following year then would be reduced by one half the excess earned, or $250,000.

Not Actual Division

"The present arrangement, contrary to popular conception," McElfresh pointed out, "does not actually divide earnings in excess of the basic return between the company and its customers."

Charles M. Dinneen of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Federal Supply, representing governmental interest in the rates, asked McElfresh if the company would be "guaranteed a basic return which reduces the risks of the business" under the proposal.

"It is not actually a guarantee," said McElfresh, "but it enables the company to retain half its excess profits as an incentive." If approved, he said, it would become effective January 1.

James F. Reilly, Pepco attorney and a former PUC member, attempted in a line of questioning to have McElfresh consider making the plan retroactive to cover the present earning position of the company. The company's return, he said, has declined to a base rate of 4.818 per cent for the 12 months ended October 31, compared to the "allowable" rate of 5½ per cent.

McElfresh opposed this, and also opposed making any of the $95,000 monthly set-aside payments returnable to the company.

Cannot Fully Concur

Reilly said Pepco favors a simplified sliding-scale rate plan, and that some of Pepco's staff consulted with McElfresh on his proposal, but he added:

"The company believes that it should be clearly understood by all parties that if Mr. McElfresh's recommendations are adopted by the Commission, in whole or in part, the plan . . . will not constitute an agreement or arrangement between the company and the commission," for it contains some items "with which we cannot concur . . ."

End in Sight

U. S. Layoffs Nearly Over, Is Report

The worst is over so far as Federal layoffs are concerned, Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming said yesterday.

He reported a boost in Federal employment during November and held that any further substantial cuts in the payroll are unlikely.

Furthermore, Flemming told a meeting of the Washington Ministerial Union at Christ Episcopal Church, 624 G st., se., fulfillment of the Marshall Plan will require additional personnel, "how many no one knows at the present time."

In the "final analysis," he said, the size of the Government payroll will depend on "developments in the international scene."

Pointing to the sharp decline in Federal rolls in the District—to 195,000 from the wartime peak of 287,000—Flemming acknowledged that many of those laid off have been unable to find employment locally.

He urged the spiritual leaders to advise them to return to "their home cities" lest they "find themselves continuously frustrated."

Simultaneously, he suggested that the ministers "press back a little" if displaced war service appointees seem "aggrieved tor indignant. He said the Government feels its chief responsibility is to "career" employes.

Flemming contended, in concluding, that "the future, not only of our own Nation but the future of the world, depends on having in our Government posts men and women whose sole objective in life is to serve their fellow human beings."

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz has been suspended temporarily due to Kluttz's illness. It will be resumed shortly.

Lord Baltimore Wins Suit Over Gas Station Site

Judge Alexander Holtzoff decided yesterday in District Court that the Stern Co. of Washington, manufacturers of hotel and cafe equipment, must convey to the Lord Baltimore Filling Stations a lot at the northeast corner of South Capitol and N sts.

The Lord Baltimore Co. represented by Attorney Spencer Gordon, had entered into a contract in 1941 to lease the property with an option to purchase. The contract was made by Abram Stern, vice president of Stern Co.

After paying rent for five years the Lord Baltimore Co. attempted to exercise the option. Prior to that time, however, management of the Stern Co. had been taken over by Hyman and Cecelia Stern, who had become majority stockholders. They contended the original contract had not been approved by the board of directors and was therefore invalid.

Judge Holtzoff held that Abram Stern as vice prisident and executive officer of the corporation had implied authority to enter into the contract, but whether this was so or not, he said, the receipt of rent for so many years operated as a ratification of the contract as a whole, and the Stern Co. must comply with the terms of the option. The defendant was represented by Attorney Ethelbert Frey.

Vienna Section Dark as Fire Ruins Va. Transformer

More than 3000 residents of Vienna, Va., and the surrounding area were plunged into darkness from 5:35 to 7:30 last night, when fire destroyed a transformer at a Virginia Electric Power Company substantian in Vienna.

The blaze, arrested before it spread to two other transformers nearby, was apparently caused by overloaded circuits, Fire Chief DeWitt Crickenberger said. A substitute transformer from Fairfax was put into operation at 7:30 p. m.

Other power failures were reported by the Fairfax County police and the electric company. The cause of these was said to be near-gale winds which buew trees across lines.

Walter Reed Patients Form Club to Raise Funds for CARE

WALTER REED PATIENTS—Lieut. Edgar Y. Perkins, USA (retired), crutches in hand, stands before a group of wounded veterans of the European campaigns to ask their support of the CARE relief organization, which assists the Continent's unfortunate people. He has seen 30 years of service, with overseas combat duty in both World Wars. Seated in the wheel chairs at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital are, left to right: Lieut. Chester Zoucha (retired), of 619 F st. ne., a glider pilot wounded in the Rhine crossing; Pfc. Gene Hankle, Wilmore, Ky., wounded as an infantryman in France, and Col. Ernest Mains, Martinsburg, W. Va., wounded with the infantry in Austria

The Washington Post

A club to solicit funds and spread information for CARE was organized yesterday among the patients at Walter Reed Hospital.

The letters C-A-R-E stand for Cooperative for American Remittance to Europe. Care, whose local office is located at 1344 Connecticut ave. nw., is an organization which packages and ships food and clothing to Europe. The packages cost $10.

Brainchild of Lieut. Sidney Y. Perkins, a patient, the group, which as yet has no name, has complete Army approval, and is fast gaining patient approval.

Lieutenant Perkins, who has served more than 24 years in the Army, including almost 11 in Europe, said that he found out that most patients at the hospital don't know about CARE, or have only a vague idea. His aim is to get anyone who can to contribute.

"If we don't get food and clothes over there, the war might as well not have been fought," he said. "When you warm and feed them, you kindle hope."

Leiutenant Perkins, who has sent 80 CARE packages to Europe this year himself, said that many men with low pay would not be able to give enough to send a whole package, but many together, each contributing, could send a lot of packages. He added that many of the patients send money orders to the CARE office in their home town, and the cost of several money orders would buy another package.

Lieutenant Perkins, who is 51 and first entered the Army in 1915, had an attentive audience when he announced his pla. Many admitted ignorance of CARE and wanted to help organize the club.

Lieutenant Perkins wears 12 ribbons, and sports on them 10 battle star, in addition to having unit decorations from both the French and Belgian governments. He was wounded in the leg and hip in 1918 in France, and was run over by a truck near Heidelburg, Germany, a year ago.

Chief ambitoin of the lieutenant is to remain in the Army, return to Europe, and possibly distribute the food parcels himself.

Policeman Took Whisky, Cash, Says Girl

Tells Trial Board She Saw Officer In 'Raid' on House

A girl witness yesterday testified to extra-curricular raiding activities of Police Pvt. Donald G. Drager, but for his comrade she pointed out a second suspect's attorney.

Lily Pearl Parker, 16, of 2024 Portner pl. nw., told a police trial board she saw Drager, 34, of 1321 Anacostia rd. se., and another man take whisky and money from a house at 2026 Portner pl. nw., in the early morning of September 7.

Asked to point out the two men she said she saw from the bedroom window of her home, she readily picked out Drager. But for the second man she skipped over the suspect, Horace L. Thomas, 43, of 1005 Congress st. se., and pointed out his attorney.

Unbecoming Conduct Charged

Drager, who with Thomas has already been held for grand jury action on housebreaking charges in the same incident, is being tried before the police board for conduct unbecoming an officer and conduct prejudicial to police reputation, order and discipline.

The two are alleged to have "raided" the Portner pl. house occupied by Jessie Morgan without warrant and "confiscated" $102 in cash and a large quantity of whisky.

The Parker girl testified yesterday that she watched two raiders as they opened the whisky closet door. As she watched, unnoticed, she said, she saw the two divide the money and stow the whisky in a waste basket.

Sold Liquor Two Years

Morgan testified he had been selling liquor from the house for about two years. He said it was raided in his absence but on his return he missed the money, two cases of fifths and about 40 half pints of whisky.

Mrs. Anna Perlmeter, 49, of 1766 Hobart st. nw., told police yesterday that thieves forced a basement window in her home and took $130 in cash and jewelry valued at over $500. She said that silver wedding anniversary gifts from her husband were among the jewelry.

Pocket Picked on Trolley

A similar theft was reported by Frederick John Bailey, 31, of 78 Defense Highway, Landover, Md., who said he lost $2.45 while he was asleep on a streetcar near 7th and I sts. sw.

Price Kaler, 1929 16th st. nw., reported his 1947 model black sedan was stolen from the 1500 block of Caroline st. nw. early yesterday.

Again spurning older models, thieves stole a red and gray 1947 Nash belonging to Robert Curry from in front of his home at 214 H st. ne., police stated.

Lester Cobb, of 619 2nd st. ne. learned not to trust new-found friends yesterday. He reported to police that a fresh acquaintance took him to a gambling rendezvous, later yoked and robbed him of his $15 watch.

Sarah Israel told police yesterday that two bonds with face value of $75, two suits, and $15 in cash were taken from her apartment at 1125 13th st. nw.

Three Office Robberies

Clothes, a suitcase, and a watch worth more than $100 were stolen from his room at the Taft Hotel annex, 740 9th st. nw., Joseph Kahook, 35, reported.

Police yesterday said that offices of the American Broadcast Stations, Inc., at 910 17th st. nw., were apparently entered through a transom and a metal cash box containing $39.77 was taken by thieves who ransacked desks and filing cabinets.

In other office robberies the Western Auto Co. store at 3941 Minnesota ave. nw., lost $2 in change and an unknown number of electric train parts, Nelson S. Free, Morningside Village, Md., reported. Low-Income Families to Be Checked Here

A spot "census" to determine top annual income of the poorest-paid 20 per cent of District residents will be undertaken by the United States Bureau of the Census about February 1.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said the census was necessary to set up eligibility standards for families seeking accommodations in low rent public housing.

The District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1945 specifies that only persons in the lower fifth incmoe group may live in such housing, he explained.

Eligibility Agreed Upon

Funds totalling $10,600 for the census will be furnished from slum clearance planning appropriations of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Young revealed.

Arrangements for the income survey were completed recently when Young met with representatives of NCPPC and the Bureau of the Census, Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, and Mark Lansburgh, chairman of the D. C. Redevelopment Land Agency.

They also agreed upon certain definitions to define eligibility for public housing use under the act, Young announced.

Low cost public housing will be available first to families, he said. A "family," as defined by the group, is two or more persons realted by blood and living under the same roof, using their joint incomes for the good of the group.

"District Residents" Defined

"District residents" under the act will be any persons who actually live within the city limits, regardless of where they work.

"Net family income" will be the gross family income minus expenses involved in earning the income Such items as tax or old-age benefit payments may not be deducted in figuring the income to determine housing eligibility.

"For example," Young said, "the driver of a taxicab could subtract the cost of operating the cab from his gross income. But he couldn't subtract what he paid for income taxes."

The census will be one of the planning items for a 20-million-dollar, 10-year program of slum clearance and redevelopment of blighted areas in Washington.

School Health Programs Held Below Standard

Council's Report Points to Three Inadequacies in Present Setup

School health programs throughout this area have improved during the past year and a half, but all are still "definitely lacking and below standards in many respects."

Greatest immediate need in the school health field continues to be additional school nurses; teachers should not be used as health counselors, except as a "temporary stopgap."

Mental health facilities for school children are seriously inadequate—and attention must also be given to mental problems of teachers themselves.

These are some of the highlights of a report by the Washington Metropolitan Health Council's survey committee, headed by Dr. Herbert P. Ramsey, former council chairman.

The report, based on the work of a subcommittee directed by Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, Arlington county health officer, consists of a study of the proposals made in the spring of 1946 in the elaborate Metropolitan Health and Hospital Survey sponsored by the council.

Report Due Dec. 4

One of a series of chapter-by-chapter studies of the original survey, the school health report will be submitted December 4 to the coordinating board and delegate body of the health council.

The report differed with the survey on two points: regular use of teachers as health counselors, and Board of Education control of school health in this area.

Dr. Ramsey said the committee held that teachers already are too overburdened, and also unqualified, to take on the additional task of health work. Overall responsibility for health work, the committee stated, should rest with the health departments. It added, however, "Recognized school health services must be provided eveh if departments of health fail in such provisions."

At present, the committee declared, coordinated and integrated programs between departments of health and boards of education "apparently do not now exist."

Need for Doctors Stressed

Stressed in the report was the need for additional school physicians and thorough medical examinations four or five time, with adequate follow-up services, in the 12 years of primary and secondary school life.

Dr. Ramsey said the committee found health programs in junior high schools and the two District teachers colleges to be far behind those in elementary and senior high schools. "Excellent work" was reported in health work at Negro schools.

Discussing mental conditions of teachers, the report stated, "Further study should be given to dealing with mental health problems of teachers themselves."

A detailed report, only portions of which were released for publication, declared that "possibly three to five per cent of all teachers" have mental ailments.

Early Tests Lacking

The detailed report added:

"Mental ill health is one of the accompaniments of age in some individuals. Decisive tests to determine mental fitness are lacking for the early stages . . ."

Among other recommendations in the report were renovation and replacement of old schools in the District and all the counties, especially in rural sections of the counties, and provision of adequate health facilities in new schools.

The committee commended the "excellent beginning" in the District of education for the handicapped, and recommended its expansion.

Plenty to be Had

Turkey 'Trot' To Stores Under Way

Story about the Presidential Thanksgiving dinner is on Page 5-C.

Turkeys and the fixin's appeared plentiful yesterday as Greater Washington housewives cast a frugal eye for holiday fare.

With the Thanksgiving shopping rush expected to start today, wholesalers and retailers reported plenty of gobblers, chestnuts and cranberries on hand, but at prices as high, if not slightly higher, than last year.

Most stores and all banks will be closed Thursday. So will the public libraries

Washington schools will be closed Thursday and Fridya; children in Arlington, Fairfax and Prince Georges counties and Alexandria will have the same four-day weekend. In Montgomery County schools will close at noon tomorrow and reopen Monday.

An unusual feature for holiday stay-in-towns Thursday and Friday will be the Freedom Train on Track 4 at Union Station. Its doors will be open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. both days.

A survey of retail turkey prices yesterday showed they were ranging anywhere from 45 to 79 cents a pound. The lowest price was for toms weighing 20 pounds or more. The high of 79 cents was for hens 10 pounds or under, dressed.

"Why they insist on buying small expensive turkeys I'll never understand," said one large dealer. "They get more meat for their money, and just as good, in a larger turkey."

Plenty of Smaller Ones

Most poultry dealers agreed there would be no shortage of the smaller birds, despite rumors last week.

Fresh cranberry prices ranged near 39 cents a pound. A 16-ounce can of cranberry sauce brought from 17 to 19 cents.

Chestnuts, from New York or imported from France and Italy, were selling variously from 29 cents to about 40 cents. One large chain advertised them at 35 cents.

Holiday liquor sales hadn't begun to hit their stride yesterday, and were expected to break no records.

"After they're through buying food," complained one liquor dealer, "there's not much money left these days for holiday cheer."

Mass Exodus Indicated

Meanwhile, solid bookings at National Airport, Union Station and the bus depots indicated the annual mass exodus from Washington would get under way tomorrow. Some lucky Government workers with accrued annual leave were preparing for a four-day holiday, if they could get Friday off.

Most of tomorrow's emigrants from the city appeared to be heading for home. While extra train sections, airplanes and buses were well booked in advance, hotel reservation bureaus reported few takers for rooms at resorts. Even in Washington, they said, it won't be hard to get a room Thursday.

Cold Weather Due to Arrive In D. C. Today

"Get your long woolens out" was Weebee's judicial advice for today.

The Washington Post's weather bird's prediction was: "Mostly sunny, rather windy and colder."

Weebee

In fact, he warned, the temperature is expected to drop from a low of 46 degrees yesterday to a frosty 30 today. And that figure for the downtown area and around the National Airport—the suburbs should be prepared for even colder blasts.

The cold will linger through tomorrow. Beyond that, Weebee refused to back out on a limb.

The northern Midwestern States expereinced their heaviest snowfall of the season yesterday. Weebee, however, saw no snow in the offing for the District.

Late Enemies to Hear Singing 'Commercials

Plans to Condemn Canal Rd. Property of K St. Skyway Made

Most of Land Already Bought; Construction Due To Start July 1

Plans to condemn property along Canal rd., nw., between 37th st. and Foxhall rd., so the thoroughfare can be widened for an approach to the proposed K st. elevated highway, were announced yesterday by Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst.

Most of the property already has been purchased by National Capital Park and Planning Commission and title will be transferred to the District, he said. Remaining private land will be condemned by the city, he added.

The additional property will enable the highway department to change the section of Canal rd. into a $150,000 dual, four-lane highway to feed the K st. "skyway," he explained. Officials hope to begin the project by July 1, 1948, and finish it by the following December 1, when the K st. project is scheduled for completion, he said.

Whitehurst made the announcement at the end of a Commissioners' public hearing on proposals to close or change certain streets and alleys in the city.

No opposition was voiced against the Canal rd. project.

Three members of the Marshall Heights Civic Association, however, opposed the closing of Bass pl. se., between 49th and 50th sts., to make way for a proposed school building.

Mrs. Willie V. White, 5212 B st. se., spokesman for the group, urged the proposed school be built at a "more central" place so that large families wouldn't be evicted from District-owned houses on Bass pl.

Controversy also developed over the proposed closing of part of 33d pl. se., between Massachusetts ave. and Loud pl. (This property has been "dedicated" as a street but no pavement installed.)

Col. A. C. Edwards, 3341 Massachusetts ave. se., testified in favor of the proposal, pointing out he would have to pay $5000 to $6000 for a retaining wall if 33d pl. were cut through to Massachusetts ave.

James F. Paton, 3233 M st se., countered that the street should remain to provide access to property he owns on M and N sts. and 33d pl. Assistant Engineer Commissioner L. E. Cox, who presided at the hearing, granted Paton 30 days in which to file a written protest.

These proposals went unchallenged at the hearing:

Close public alleys in square bounded by Gallatin, Farragut, 6th and 7th sts. ne.

Close part of 24th st. se., north of Irving st.

Close parts of 1st pl. ne. and a nearby alley north of Rhode Island ave., and part of W st. ne., east of Lincoln rd.

Close part of the public alley in square bounded by 18th, 19th, L and M sts. nw.

Eliminate from city plans property for extension of Douglas st. ne., west of 28th st., and an unnamed street planned from Bladensburg rd. ne., to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad right-of-way.

Eliminate from city plans property for extension of Tilden st. nw., between Nebraska and Wisconsin aves., and extension of 41st and 42d sts. between the proposed Tilden and Upton st. extensions.

Eliminate from city plans extension of 2d st. sw., south of Galveston st.; insert, instead, plans for new street in the area bounded by Nichols ave., 1st and Galveston sts. sw.

Memory Costs Man 180-Day Jail Term

William E. Hailstock's vivid memory cost him 180 days in jail yesterday.

Hailstock, 38, of 1756 Seaton pl. nw., was arrested Saturday in the act of waving a 10-pound hammer over the head of his 56-year-old uncle, Cator Pyles, 920 Berry pl. nw.

The hammer apparently had descended once, Police Pvt. Milton B. Thompson testified in Municipal Court. Uncle Cator's head was bowed and bloody.

Hailstock, charged with assault, explained he must have fallen out of graces of his uncle, who once considered him a favorite nephew. Ten years ago, he said, Uncle Cator smacked him as a disciplinary action.

Saturday, uncle and nephew had been eating and drinking wine. "Then I remembered him smacking me 10 years ago."

"That's it, your honor," interjected the nephew's attorney, Alonzo Ware, "it was the wine."

"I'm going to take his wine away from him for 180 days," Judge Armond W. Scott replied.

Uncle Cator went to Freedman's Hospital.

Bakke Cleared In Pedestrian Traffic Death

Norris C. Bakke, associate general counsel of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, was cleared by a coroner's jury yesterday of responsibility in the traffic death of Jesse Rucker, 27, 1712 Corcoran st. nw.

Rucker, a coal and ice company laborer, died in Gallinger Hospital after an operation November 12. He had been struck by a car operated by Bakke in the 1700 block of 16th st. nw., at 6 p. m. the preceding day.

Bakke testified he was moving about 5 or 10 miles an hour, starting after a traffic light changed, when Rucker appeared to "stagger or lunge" into his left front fender. He said he saw Rucker "half a second" before.

Found No Injuries

Three Emergency Hospital doctors, Dr. Charles Wirth, Dr. James McCarthy and Dr. Richard C. Myers, testified they examined Rucker after he was brought to the hospital by Bakke and that they found no injuries. They testified Rucker was suffering from "acute alcoholism."

Rucker was released from the hospital to Third Precinct police, and police said he was charged with violation of pedestrian controls and that he left the precinct station at 3 a. m. to get collateral and did not return. He entered Gallinger Hospital at 5 p. m. the day following the accident, suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage. He died five hours later after an operation to relieve brain pressure.

Symptoms Often Delayed

Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg testified death resulted from a fractured skull, cerebral hemorrhage and exhaustion, adding that symptoms often are delayed in such cases and depend on the severity of the concussion.

Rucker's wife, Mrs. Savala Rucker, said he complained of a headache at the time she picked him up in a taxi at the police station. Unable to awaken him at noon, she summoned a doctor who had him taken to Gallinger Hospital.

3 Suspects Questioned in Va. Rape, Robbery

South Boston, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—State and county police today questioned three men in the Halifax County Jail where the trio is being held on highway robbery charges—two of the three also charged with rape. Subsequently, the prisoners were removed to another jail.

The three were arrested after two young Halifax couples reported they were robbed, and the two young women raped Saturday night at a lonely Halifax County spot 2 miles south of here.

State Trooper C. T. Coates listed the three charged with armed robbery as Major Brooks, 27; his cousin, George Brooks, 21, and Herman Whitt, 15.

Coats said Major Brooks and Whitt also were charged with rape.

Date for a preliminary hearing in the case was not set immediately.

Two of the men—George Brooks and Whitt—were lodged in the county jail Sunday and Commonwealth's Attorney F. L. McKinney said they had signed statements admitting robbing the two couples. McKinney said that in addition Whitt admitted he had assaulted one of the young women.

Major Brooks was taken into custody at his home a few hours after daybreak today, ending a long search by a posse of between 200 and 300 county residents, some armed and with bloodhounds. Coates said the man was sighted last night but eluded his pursuers, temporarily.

Meanwhile, Governor Tuck, in a telegram to Judge G. E. Mitchell, jr., at Halifax, advised that the superintendent of State police had been instructed to cooperate with and assist the Halifax authorities "in bringing to justice through regular and orderly judicial processes" any persons connected with the commission of the crime.

British, Soviet Trade Talks To Be Resumed

London, Nov. 24 (AP).—Official sources said today Britain has scheduled new talks with the Russians, to start at the end of this week, in a bid to write a full-scale British-Soviet trade pact.

In addition the British speeded up trade negotiations with other European states.

A high government informant said Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, will fly to Moscow probably late this week and will take with him an assurance that Britain is now willing to guarantee delivery dates for machinery and steel rails the Soviet Union has tried to purchase in this country.

The equity in the earnings of these companies was not included in the income account for the last nine months since no dividends were received from them. The three dividends are payable December 31 to stock of record December 15.

A graduate of Dartmouth College, Conklin has been in the investment field for 17 years. Previously, he was associated with Union Securities Corp. of New York City and more recently with E. F. Jones & Co. During World War II, Conklin served 4½ years in the Army and was released as a lieutenant colonel.

Economic Advisers Disagree On Staying Shy of Congress

By J. A. Livingston

THE FIRST REAL test of the Employment Act of 1946 is here. The machinery which Congress set up to cope with depression and unemployment is being used to fight inflation.

The test began auspiciously. Senator Taft, chairman of the Senate-House Joint Committee on the Economic Report, was an attentive searcher after economic facts in examining the first witness, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson. This was not the same Taft who lambasted the President's special message to Congress from beginning to end 10 hours after it was delivered. The committee, commonly referred to as the Joint Economic Committee, has a delicate task. It examines and analyzes the President's economic reports and then suggests the general lines that legislation ought to take. Other committees—Banking and Currency, Agriculture, Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Judiciary, Appropriations, Ways and Means, etc.—formulate the bills.

Livingston

Thus, the success of the Employment Act depends on how successful and how diplomatic the JEC is in making its views known to other committees. If the JEC helps members of other committees understand the over-all economic problems facing the country, then it gradually will be pulled into the legislative processes. Influential members of other committees will want to sit on it—just for the good it will do them. Such possibilities have been foreseen. Taft took the JEC chairmanship, Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), who is chairman of the strategic House Banking and Currency Committee, is vice chairman.

THE JEC will have to "educate" Congress on anti-inflation laws without help from the men who had a great deal to do with the President's recommendations. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, has parried all suggestions that he appear before the JEC or other congressional committees, even though Secretary of Commerce Harriman, who is mobilizing the evidence for the President, had him on the original list of witnesses.

Nourse is reluctant to testify as a matter of principle. He conceives the members of the Council as personal and professional advisers to the President, whose usefulness and reputations would suffer if they were to appear as advocates of or apologists for particular kinds of legislation or economic theories. He feels further that issues arise at hearings which members of the Council are not competent to answer—questions outside the ken of economists, involving administrative policy, political philosophy, personnel problems, and so on.

Further, Dr. Nourse does not want to risk an open clash of views if, say, he or some other member of the Council should disagree with a presidential recommendation. Then the headlines would shout, "Economic Adviser Disagrees With President." Right now that's no dilemma. All three members of the Council could honestly and harmoniously support the President's 10 anti-inflation points.

LEON KEYSERLING, vice chairman of the Council, and John D. Clark, third member, do not agree with Dr. Nourse. They feel it is the Council's duty to try to explain to members of Congress the economic logic behind the President's program. Who else, they ask, is in a better position to do so but his professional advisers? It has even been suggested that if there is a difference of opinion—if the President's own advisers cannot agree—Congress and the public are entitled to know it. For that would indicate the delicacy, the difficulty, and the tentativeness of the economic finding at issue.

Right now testimony by Nourse, Keyserling, or Clark may not be urgent. Congress has heard all the fundamental arguments for and against price control. Such would not be the case when and if the President offers to Congress a plan to ward off a depression. Such a plan undoubtedly would have originated with the Council. And certainly the Council would be best suited to explain it.

The issue here is basic. Congress makes laws which govern public works, appropriations, credit, taxes, tariffs, Federal expenditures, policy, etc. Hence, Congress controls the country's economic ups and downs. Anything that brings Congress and the President closer together on economic policy is a step toward economic maturity—toward coordination rather than conflict. If the Council, by testifying before the JEC, can further such understanding, that, in itself, will be a major accomplishment.

It seems to me that Dr. Nourse is limiting the usefulness of the Joint Economic Committee, limiting the usefulness of his own office, and is establishing a narrow precedent for the operation of the Employment Act. Instead of bridging the gap between Congress and the President, Dr. Nourse introduces an intellectual barrier.

Diet Peril Seen In Productive Land Dwindle

Lafayette, La., Nov. 24 (AP).—Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the United States Soil Conservation Service, said today the world was in definite danger of running short of productive land.

Bennett

Nutritionists estimate 2½ acres are required to provide the minimum diet for one person, Bennett told the National Catholic Rural Life Conference. Actually, he added, the four billion acres now available amount to less than 2 per person.

"As the population increases, the per capita acreage will decrease," he said. "A great deal of this land is only fair to medium. Much of it is poor and more is being damaged with each generation."

Meanwhile, he declared, world population is increasing by 20 million a year, so that even bringing such areas as the Amazon basin and the Middle Congo into cultivation would not provide a surplus.

Bennett advocated incorporating soil conservation "into studies in the schools from kindergarten on, through college and the universities."

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 24 (AP).—Grains rang up a variety of new records on the board of trade today as steady buying encountered extremely limited offerings.

Some short-covering and a moderate amount of commercial demand appeared, but neither would have been sufficient to cause sharp price gains if a normal number of selling orders had entered the pits, traders said. Volume was small all day, but the market never had a genuine slump.

Major cause of the advance apparently was a series of congressional meetings in Washington, where the current world-wide grain shortage was emphasized by a number of agricultural experts.

Wheat closed 4 to 7½ higher, December, 3.14; corn was 4 to 4¾ higher, December, 2.57½@2.58; oats were 1 @3½ higher, December, 1.26@1.26½, and soybeans were up 8 cents, the daily limit, March, 3.93½.

The new records rung up during the day were:

December wheat set a new high for any wheat future this year, and the highest for any future in 30 years, at 3.14. It was still below the all-time high for any wheat contract, made on May 11, 1917, at 3.25.

December oats made an all-time record high for any oats contract at 1.26½. In the spot market, a car of No. 1 mixed extra heavy oats sold late in the day at 1.33, a new all-time peak.

Setting new seasonal highs were all wheat contracts except July, all corn contracts, December and May oats, March and May soybeans, and December, January and March lard. At Kansas City, cash corn brought a record for that market at 2.65½.

Jurors Want Alexandria to Add Policemen

Addition of 12 men to the Alexandria police force was recommended yesterday by the Alexandria Corporation Court grand jury.

The jury, in a special recommendation to the City Council, set 80 as the minimum number of men needed to police the city adequately. The city now has 68.

The jury returned indictments against 28 persons.

Police Capt. Edgar Sims requested 10 additional officers in his 1948 budget. These 10, if granted, and the filling of three vacancies would approxmiate the jury's recommendations, Sims pointed out. A grand jury last year recommended an increased policie force, but the Council took no action.

Louis Tucker, 22, of Roanoke, Va., indicted on a burglary charge, pleaded guilty and was sentenced immediately to eight years in the penitentiary. Tucker looted a home at 620 N. Washington st. last month.

Charles Wallace, 42, of 411 N. Lee st., also indicted, pleaded guilty in the theft of a suitcase full of clothes, and was sentenced to six years.

Others indicted, trials for whom will be set December 8, were:

Henrietta Phillips, 28, of 607 S. St. Asaph st., charged with murder in the September 20 scissors slaying of Nelson Washington, 63, of the same address. She pleaded innocent.

Josephine Warner, 39, of 209 S. Peyton st.; Carrie A. Lewis, 23, of 623 S. St. Asaph st.; Robert Townsend, 120 S. Fayette st.; Wiley Howard, 47, of 403 1st st.; Marie Beam, 23, address unknown; Henry Hayes, 18, of 1013 Princess st.; Bessie Waters, 41, Delaneys ct., all on charges of felonious assault.

Olivia Jackson, 22, address unknown; Katie M. Simmons, 27, of 1023 Lamont st. nw., Washington; George W. Leonard, jr., 23, of 502 S. Patrick st.; Douglas R. Pearson, 23, of 304 N. Alfred st.; Thomas G. Todd, 19, of 99 John Roberts Homes, all on charges of grand larceny.

Floyd C. Davis, 30, of 1132 Colonial ave., indicted on a charge of rape of an 8-year-old girl.

Virginia Orsel, address unknown, forgery.

Samuel E. Payne, 18, of 300 Hopkins ct.; Russell V. Culp, 18, of 87 John Roberts Homes; Maurice Tacey, 26, of 222 S. Henry st.; Ernest Price, 29, of 1012 Oronoco st., all on charges of burglary.

Wilson W. Fitzgerald, 22, of 89 Rutgers pl., auto theft.

Parris Poston, 23, and James Poston, 20, both of Route 1, Cum Springs, Fairfax County, indicted jointly on charges of attempted hold-up and robbery.

Samuel Dempsey, 23, and Rufus Sawyer, 26, both of 408 King st., indicted jointly on charges of felonious assault and theft.

Arthur Beasley, 400 S. Columbus st., indicted on a charge of housebreaking.

Father and Son Both Honored for War Services

The James Edward Mahers—father and son—of 19 West Thornapple st., Chevy Chase, Md., both served as officers of the Pacific fleet during the war, both got into much action against the Japs, and both were decorated more than once for heroism.

Maher.

Last Saturday when the elder Maher was selected for promotion to rear admiral, The Washington Post inadvertently published the photograph of the son, Lieut. (jg) James E. Maher, jr., USNR, instead of that of Commodore James E. Maher, USN. The Washington Post regrets the error.

The new Admiral Maher won the Navy Cross for heroism while commanding the cruiser San Juan during the battle of Santa Cruz Island. He now is chief of the base maintenance division of the Office of Naval Operations. Lieutenant Maher won two Distinguished Flying Crosses and six Air Medals for service as a naval flier at Okinawa. He is now on inactive duty.

Grant Says GSI Is Losing Money In Its Cafeterias

The cafeteria division of Government Services, Inc., lost money during the first three quarters of 1947, Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, GSI president, reported yesterday.

Increased food costs, shifts in personnel in Federal buildings, and "unwillingness of the management to raise prices if at all avoidable" were held responsible.

But while the cafeteria division went into the red, other GSI departments showed profits, Grant stated, although "it is not our policy generally to let one group of activities support others."

Profits reported include $77,683.48 by the Snack Bar division; $8924.33 by the National Park Service division; $25,718.16 for Fontana Village operations, and $8924.33 for miscellaneous divisions.

Atomics Improve Cattle

Chicago (U.P.).—Radioactive tracers are paving the way for healthier livestock in the atomic age. Scientists in the Institute of Radiobiology and Biophysics, one of three institutes in the University of Chicago's 12 million dollar nuclear research program, report it is now possible to learn how copper and cobalt influence the growth of pastures and cattle grazing there. With tracers scientists can follow these minerals from the grass right through the cow's digestive and circulatory systems.

Power Line Right-of-Way Case Begun

Condemnation proceedings for land needed for the right-of-way of a new Virginia Electric & Power Co. power line in Fairfax County began yesterday in Fairfax Circuit Court, with testimony as to size and safety of the proposed 110,000-volt line.

VEPCO Engineer George Tatum told the five-man condemnation jury the company proposes to string the line on H-frame structures from Possum Point, power station near the mouth of Quantico Creek, to a substation at Idlewood, 2 miles west of Falls Church.

The company proposes, he said, to erect in the future a 22,000-volt line and perhaps another 110,000-volt line. He said, however, VEPCO has agreed the total voltage through the 225-foot wire right-of-way will not exceed 300,000 volts.

Tatum described the proposed line as essential in filling the increased need for electric power in Fairfax and Arlington Counties. Eleven landowners, against whom the condemnation proceedings are directed, have fought the line on grounds that it would decrease property values and create a safety hazard.

Tatum said the overhead ground wires would eliminate lightning danger and that Vepco will adhere to National Safety and Electric Code requirements as to the distance of wires above the ground. Wires will in no case be less than 24 feet above the ground, he said, even allowing for sag in the average 600 feet between poles.

Additional general testimony by Vepco and landowners is scheduled today. After that, the jury will hear testimony on the value of individual holdings.

3 Telegraph Unions Begin Strike Balloting

A Nation-wide tie-up of telegraphic communications loomed here yesterday with announcement that strike ballots are in the mails to some 50,000 employes of Western Union Telegraph Co.

The employes, members of three large unions, are asked to vote yes or no on whether to strike over "our demand for a 15-cent-an-hour across-the-board increase."

A minimum of 10 days was estimated for earliest completion of the mail referendum.

The strike threat pointed up possibility of a major test of the national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act which provides that a "strike of such proportions as to endanger national health or safety" may be enjoined for a period of 80 days.

Frank Bloom, general counsel for the Commercial Telegraphers Union, Western Union Division, the major strike-threatening group, declared yesterday it would be "unthinkable" not to contest the constitutionality of that part of the act should a strike injunction be issued.

Announcement of the mailing of the strike ballots was made yesterday afternoon at a special press conference in Bloom's office, in the Bond bldg., 14th st. and New York ave. nw. It came as a joint statement from the presidents of the three unions involved.

These included Adolph Brungs, president of the CTU's Western Union Division, representing more than 40,000 employes; Hal R. Swann of the Telegraph Employes' Union, with 5300 employes, and W. Lee Cooney of the Telegraph Workers' Union, with 4000 employes. All are affiliated with the AFL.

Bloom said the three unions represent workers in virtually all the company's offices throughout the country excepting New York City, where the CIO's American Communications Association represents 7000 workers.

The strike referendum action was taken, Bloom said, when wage negotiations "collapsed" between the unions and the company. The company, he said, "has consistently refused our demand for a 15-cent increase and has failed to make any counteroffers."

Present contracts between the unions and the company do not expire until April 1. However, the contracts provide for reopening of wage negotiations at any time upon the filing of proper notices.

Average pay for union employes of Western Union, taking in all job classifications, is 96.7 cents an hour for straight time, the union president said. Excluding the 9000 messengers, the average is $1.02, they said. The over-all average, they said, compares to $1.19 granted by the telephone industry, nearest comparable industry.

Wedding Reels Due

Trans-Lux Vows To Screen Today

By Richard L. Coe

ALL O'AH THE MAP: LaGuardia Field is a good place to start. . . . Out on those smog-ridden spaces the boys are waiting for the first pictures of The Wedding, which is trade talk for the Princess Elizabeth nuptials . . . The local Trans-Lux people vow they'll have the first newsreel pictures on their screen this morning and now they're dickering to get in on the Warner deal for the Technicolor treatment . . . This was consummated over the weekend and means that the Warner and Ambassador Theaters, "by special arrangement with J. Arthur Rank," will be showing a half-hour of the wedding in full color as soon as the Technicolor processing can be completed . . . Under present plans, this seems to mean showings the morning of Thursday, December 4 . . . The Rank deal say that the Warner theaters will have the films "exclusively" for Washington first-run . . . But the Trans-Lux, which has had standing room only for its current feature—highlights of Elizabeth's life—is hoping to cut in on the deal at the same time . . . While the newsreels undoubtedly will be properly impressive, the Warner people are mighty hopeful of their coup . . . "The film," say they, "is not a newsreel, but a detailed Technicolor presentation of the historic and colorful ceremony, full of picturesque incidents of the royal pageantry." . . . It will be fun to see if the Trans-Lux can broaden the meaning of the word "exclusive." . . . Meanwhile, of course, Mme. Natalie Kalmus will be wearing her eyes out processing like mad to get the pictures out before the world blows up and people forget about The Wedding.

NEW YORK: The producers are in a terrible stew over their first-night press lists . . . Their official organization, the League of New York Theaters, has cut down the press invitations "to attract a non-professional audience on opening nights" . . . This has raised cain with the press agents and news mags . . . It gets complicated when broken down: The New Republic's critic-playwright, Irwin Shaw, can't cover his own opening, and Columnist Dorothy Kilgallen will have to wait to see Husband Richard Kollmar's productions . . . Brock Pemberton is one producer who thinks it's "a lot of baloney" . . . The dreamy scheme may fall through, what with all the pother about it . . . Producer-Composer Richard Rodgers summed it up neatly: "I am in favor of keeping all people out of first nights who don't applaud very loudly."

SPEAKING of Rodgers, his—and Hammerstein's—"Oklahoma!" is planning big things for the musical's 2000th performance at the New York December 4 . . . Celeste Holm will take up her original role, Ado Annie, for three weeks . . . The Theater Guild is planning "other special events" for the celebration and further returns of the original cast are plotted.

AS FOR THE National, on tour, "Oklahoma!" Lawrence Langner was saying in Richmond the other day that that company is the one he's most proud of and anxious to keep up . . . In Richmond's massive Mosque, the show virtually sold out all last week, and it will be at Baltimore's Ford's for the next two, after which it heads back to the Midwest and then to the Coast . . . Langner also told Richmond that its enthusiasm has convinced him the Virginia capital should be added to the Guild subscription map, and plans are under way to do so next season.

WILMINGTON gets "The Gentleman from Athens" this weekend . . . This is the political comedy by Emmet Lavery, who spoke with such force and dignity in the recent Hollywood hearings on the Hill . . . The play will be at Wilmington's Playhouse Friday night, Saturday matinee and night, going on north for a New York opening December 9 . . . Anthony Quinn, of the movies, and Edith Atwater head the cast, directed by Sam Wanamaker, who added the direction chores to his leading-man assignment here last year in Ingrid Bergman's "Joan of Lorraine" . . . Also in the cast sheets we notice the name of Bess Winburn . . . That must be none other than the Bess Winburn who used to play leads out at the Crossroads barn theater . . . Bess worked her way into radio, appearing with Helen Hayes on the Theater Guild air show last season.

IN BRIEF: Katharine Cornell's "Antony and Cleopatra" Wednesday night opening in New York promises to rival the Metropolitan Opera's fancy splurge . . . Gertrude Lawrence wires from Boston that "you bet I'm going to bring 'Tonight at 8:30' stop don't know when but will do" . . . Neil Hamilton writes it's now official what he confided on his brief visit: he'll be in "The Men They Marry" . . . Sibyl Bowan's in an Australian hospital; "Nothing serious," writes Sib, "just me feet. All I want to do now is rest on the boat, play Florida in the February sunshine and Gene Ford's Capitol on the way back North" . . . Robert Mitchum passing through town on his way to Savannah, of all places.

EDWARD STEICHEN, whose distinguished photography for "The Fighting Lady" made this one of the memorable films of the war, in town for today's Book and Author Luncheon, sponsored by The Washington Post at the Statler . . . Another of the Statler's speakers should be in fine form after the Redskins' victory Sunday: Corinne Griffith . . . Like the wife of the Secretary of State, she's a Mrs. George Marshall who used to be an actress, who married a man in another field and wrote a book about what happened to them both . . . Corinne, of course, is the wife of the Redskins' owner.

Feeding Wood to Cattle At Low Cost Proposed

Tallahassee, Fla. (U.P.) — The Florida Forest Service reports that experiments are being conducted in Louisiana for low-cost feeding of cattle.

Research is being made into feeding cattle wood molasses made from culled hardwoods mixed with cottonseed cake. Molasses can be made at low cost and about 25 cords of wood will product a tank car load. The culled woods used included scrub oak, now regarded as a weed and useful only as fuel.

CIO Put on Record As Indorsing Aid Plan

Paris, Nov. 23 (AP).—James B. Carey, secretary general of the American Congress of Industrial Organizations, said today he had presented a CIO indorsement of United States aid to Europe to the World Federation of Trade Unions, despite objections of "some members" that it was not on the agenda.

Carey said he could not divulge which delegates had opposed the CIO indorsement.

Public School Conditions Held Better

Public school conditions throughout the United States have taken a turn for the better but there is still no room for rejoicing.

That is the substance of a 14-page review on public education for the current school year issued yesterday by the National Education Association. The report points out:

Despite substantial salary raises the typical teacher is about where he was in 1939-40 in his ability to purchase goods and services.

Although the supply of qualified teachers has steadily increased since the war years, there are still 102,000 teachers holding emergency certificates.

Teaching and supervisory positions which dropped in number to 860,700 in 1945-46 as compared to the 1939-40 total of 911,000 are on the upswing with 882,733 recorded this year.

Despite this increase teaching loads are heavier now than before the war and as many as two million children are subjected to substandard education.

The teaching shortage is most serious in rural schools, especially at the elementary level and in special fields such as science and vocational education, on the secondary level.

Although teacher college enrollment, now at 169,356, exceeds the 144,945 enrolled in 1939-40, there is little indication that much relief for teacher shortage is in sight.

"Part of the enrollment is an overflow from crowded universities; high enrollments are often in the States least in need of a new and larger supply; those in training will not be available in numbers for several years," the NEA report states.

"A salary of $2500 is worth about $1594 in prewar dollars," the survey declares and points that Federal income taxes reduce this sum to an average salary of $1438 in 1935-39 dollars."

DDT Effective In Ridding Lawns of Ants

Staunton, Va., Nov. 23 (AP).—A study completed last summer by a field laboratory of Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station here indicated the insecticide DDT may find still another use in ant control on lawns.

Assistant Entomologist A. M. Woodside said tests were made on a lawn here so badly infested with nests of the silky ant that no grass and little other vegetation could grow, and on a lawn near Waynesboro infested with another ant species.

DDT was tried in both dust and spray form at both places, and while the two were equally effective, the spray was found to give more rapid results, Woodside said.

He reported a dosage of one gram per square yard (the equivalent of 2.45 pounds of 10 per cent DDT per 1000 square feet) resulted in almost complete absence of activity in five weeks. After eight weeks, there was no sign of activity in any of the tested plots, Woodside said.

Navy to Locate Observatory Between D. C. and Front Royal

Site of a proposed new Naval Observatory will be between Washington and Front Royal, Va., the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Capt. Guy W. Clark, USN, superintendent of the observatory now at Observatory Circle, Massachusetts ave. and 34th st. nw., said yesterday the decision to locate the new station east of the Blue Ridge Mountains resulted from a report of two scientists who recently toured the country studying prospective sites.

G. M. Clemence and C. B. Watts, Naval Observatory astronomers, concluded that the new location should be in the East—close to Washington, the Government Printing Office here, whcih prints the observatory's data, the Yale Observatory in New Haven, Conn., and the Watson Scientific Computing Laboratory in New York. The latter two institutions cooperate with the Naval Observatory in research in celestial mechanics, the Navy Department said.

Captain Clark pointed out that it would take at least another 12 months to select the final spot, with considerable study under all seasonal conditions.

A Navy spokesman said it would be 10 years before the new observatory is in full operation. In order that computation of data will not be interrupted during the transitional period it will be necessary at first to operate two complete observatories simultaneously, he said.

The new observatory is necessary because of increased smoke and haze, near the present location, caused by the spreading growth of the city.

Bishop to Head Federalists Unit

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—The Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, retired presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States and former president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, has been named chairman of the State Advisory Committee of United World Federalists.

Announcement of Bishop Tucker's appointment, which was made yesterday when the organization's executive council met at Richmond, was made here today by J. Ellison Loth, vice president of the Waynesboro Chapter, UWF, and a member of the State Executive Council.

Besides Bishop Tucker, Mrs. R. W. Carrington, Wilson M. Brown, vice president of the State Planters Bank, and Alexander Carrington, all of Richmond, and Judge Herbert G. Cochran of Norfolk, were named to the advisory committee.

When Wife's to Blame, No Damage Suit

St. Joseph, Mo. (U.P.).—A truck backed into another and the customary crunch brought spectators to the scene. But the customary argument did not follow.

The reversing truck, driven by a Kansas farmer, was damaged to the extent of about $50; the other, about $300.

"I knew my wife was following me but I didn't realize she was so close," the farmer explained.

Navy Guns Purchased to Halt Dominican Revolt, Court Told

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 24 (AP).—A 30-year-old former military flier, one of four men charged with stealing Navy machineguns, asserted in United States District Court today that the weapons were bought to help stem a Communist revolt against the Dominican Republic.

Edward Browder, jr., former Canadian Royal Air Force pilot, said the revolt was hatched in Cuba and was financed "directly from the former secretary of the Communist Party in Venezuela."

"That man" said Browder, "is now the president of Venezuela."

"Blasted Out of Bed"

Browder of Amarillo, Tex., said he learned of plotting against the Dominican Republic while he was in Cuba as an aviation consultant. He had to leave Cuba with his wife and two children, he said, when he was "blasted out of bed" by a bomb explosion.

The witness detailed his association with Karl J. Eisenhardt, a Maryland business executive and another defendant, in procuring planes and other military supplies for the Dominican Republic. He identified an agent of the republic with whom they dealt as Libardo Blanco.

The other defendants are J. Meredith Russell of Baltimore and Manuel Fuego, 37-year-old Cuban from Miami. They are charged with theft of approximately 21 machineguns and assorted parts from Bush Field here last April.

Browder asserted that the weapons were purchased, not stolen. He testified that Bernard Cresswell, a surplus property pricing clerk, voluntarily offered to sell him the guns for $425.

Clerk Denies Charge

Cresswell denied this while on the stand last week as a Government witness.

The guns, which Browder described as a "pile of junk," were recovered on April 21 in a furnace basement room at Eisenhardt's palatial home at Ellicott City, Md., FBI agents reported.

Browder testified that he referred Cresswell's offer to Eisenhardt, that Eisenhardt talked with Blanco by telephone and the latter said he would take the arms.

Browder said he returned to Bush Field the next day and saw Cresswell. He asserted:

"I paid the money. I gave him $425 and he stood there counting it."

The witness said that because of plane trouble and other delays the arms could not be taken away at once and Cresswell agreed to leave the warehouse door unlocked so they could be removed later. He added that Eisenhardt arranged for trucking the guns to the airport, loading them aboard a B-25 plane and that he flew them to Baltimore.

Russell, through counsel, has admitted helping truck the weapons to Eisenhardt's basement from the Baltimore airport. He claimed that he acted on Eisenhardt's direction and was no more guilty of an illegal act than a trucking company performing the same function.

Berardino Won't Play for Nats, Quits Baseball for Movies; Boudreau Signs; Cards Reported Sold to Hannegan Group

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

IN WASHINGTON this week, the Old Grads are getting restive. Coming up Friday night at Griffith Stadium is the game that reaches into more Washington homes, offices and establishments than any other football contest. It's the ivy-hung Tech vs. Central battle, their forty-seventh since 1902, and with it goes the scholastic championship of the District of Columbia.

POVICH

If they'd planned it by script, it couldn't be more attractive. Tech and Central have made a tandem run-away of the race thus far. Neither of them has yet tasted defeat in the 1947 series, each taking six straight victories into the title game. But a special pride surges within Tech people. Their team hasn't been scored on in the interhigh play this season.

A year ago, Washington schoolboy football graduated into a big league attraction when the Board of Education-Washington Post sponsorship of the Tech-Coolidge title game helped to produce a record crowd of more than 18,000. Children's Hospital profited by $20,000 from that contest. The Community Chest and the athletic funds of the Washington high schools will divide Friday night's receipts.

TECH ON FRIDAY night will be aiming at another satisfaction, in addition to the high school championship. It hopes to draw even with Central in the number of victories since the feuding began in 1902. The figures now show Central with 20 wins in the series, Tech with 19, and seven ties. Tech, with its superlative defense record, and Halfback Robert (Bugs) Thompson, is rated the favorite.

They call the shifty-running, triple-threat Thompson the Glenn Davis of high school football in Washington, and yesterday at the Touchdown Club he was introduced as such. Whereupon Navy Coach Tom Hamilton, also a guest of the Touchdowners, sought young Thompson out and allowed as how "I'd like to use you against Army Saturday if you're another Glenn Davis." According to Tech folks, there's no question on that score.

Tech's coach, Ed Solomon, who used to quarterback UCLA in 1928-30, hasn't trifled with anything less than a championship contender in the two years he has been on the job. Last season he had Tech in the disastrous 18-6 playoff against Coolidge for the title, and with eight veterans off that team he has molded Friday night's favorites.

FULLBACK CECIL GRAY is the heavy-duty man in the Tech backfield with Mel Kogod the blocking back, and 150-pound Flea Fletcher calling the signals. They operate from the single wing, with Billy Werber 3d ready to spell Thompson in the forward-passing job. Werber, a left-handed thrower, is rated the finest passer among the schools, and is winning more letters at Tech than did his illustrious father who played third base for the Red Sox, Yankees, Athletics and Reds.

Tech thinks it has the best end in schoolboy football in Washington in Jim McCauley, whom Coach Solomon calls "my fifth back." On an end-around play, McCauley scored Tech's only touchdown in the play-off last season, and this year against Coolidge he galloped 72 yards around the opposite end to a touchdown.

Certainly Tech can refute any charges of tramp athletes. At right end is Glenn Smith, an honor student since entering Tech, and a member of the ARO Club, limited to students with B1 grades. At one of the guard posts is Ed Cleary, otherwise known at Tech as the president of the important student council.

CENTRAL FOLKS aren't quite awed by the Tech team, however. Jankowski, Central coach, sees nothing hopeless about his team's chances of taking the title. "We held Tech to 0-0 last year when they were two-touchdown favorites, and we were on their two-yard line at the finish," he points out. "We've been aching for another crack at them."

At Central they don't think Tech's Thompson will be the best player on the field. That role can be usurped by Central's 16-year-old Jimmy Pantos, every bit as shifty as Thompson, they think. Young Pantos, who entered Central only last February, is the special pride of Coach Jankowski, who has been watching him excel at football and baseball with Boys Club teams since the age of nine.

Unlike Tech, a strict single-wing team, Central dabbles somewhat in the T-formation as well. Central has a threat, too, in Reserve Back Jimmy Panor, who has twice scored with 80-yard gallops on flanker plays. And Bill Denikos hasn't failed to boot a point after touchdown in his last nine tries. Central likes the whole idea of this chance to slap down Tech for the title.

Lou Receives 2-Year Pact, Veeck Says

Cleveland, Nov. 24 (AP).—Lou Boudreau today signed "what virtually amounts to a two-year contract to manage the Cleveland Indians," Tribe President Bill Veeck announced tonight, putting a stopper on persistent reports the star shortstop would be traded.

In answer to questions, Veeck elaborated on his brief statement by saying "virtually a two-year" contract meant the agreement" was noncancelable" and if Boudreau were fired before the two years expired he would be paid the contractual salary.

Salary Not Disclosed

That salary was not disclosed but described by Veeck as "substantially increased" over the stipend he received for piloting the Tribe last season.

Boudreau's 1947 salary has been estimated by local sportswriters at up to $50,000.

The decision to retain Boudreau in the managerial job he has held for six years will be popular with local fans who have bombarded Veeck with letters of protest since an announcement of two months ago that Boudreau would be traded if Veeck could arrange a deal he felt would help the fourth-place Tribe's chances to win an American League pennant.

Hottest prospect for such a deal at that time was with the St. Louis Browns and involved Shortstop Vernon Stephens and Pitcher Jack Kramer whom the Browns traded to the Boston Red Sox last week.

Other rumors had Boudreau figuring in a swap with the New York Yankees or a trade with the Detroit Tigers.

Still After Spence

Boudreau left for his home in Harvey, Ill., after the conference at the Indians' stadium office—a conference which lasted from 10:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

"We didn't spend more than 2½ minutes talking about salary," Veeck explained to reporters. "Most of the time you fellows have been waiting we have been talking of plans for the ball club next season."

The deal which brought Outfielder Walt Judnich and Pitcher Bob Muncrief to Cleveland from St. Louis last week was made with "Lou's full approval," Veeck said, and added that Boudreau also had been consulted in Veeck's efforts to get Outfielder Stan Spence from Washington.

Interhigh Rivals Wish Each Other Good Luck

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Tackle Bob Douglas of Central and Coach Ed Solomon and Halfback Robert (Bugs) Thompson of McKinley Tech were bosom buddies for two hours yesterday afternoon at the Touchdown Club dinner at the Statler Hotel.

But after they parted company, the Centralite and two Techites resumed the role of arch-rivals which they'll play Friday night in the interhigh football championship game at Griffith Stadium.

It happened this way:

Solomon and Thompson for Tech, and Douglas and Coach Jan Jankowski of Central were asked to take a bow at the Touchdown luncheon, and to say a few words about the big game, sponsored by the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

The four were seated next to each other at the head table. However, Jankowski had to leave early, so Douglas was placed in the position of having to ask the coach of the rival team to give him a lift back to Central. Solomon said okay.

Here's the way the conversation went from there on in:

Solomon—"I understand, Bob, that you're team is really up for this game."

Douglas—"Yes sir. We try hard all the time, and will do our best against you."

Thompson—"I understand, Bob, that you played a whale of a game at tackle against Western last week. That you broke up just about every play. Just go easy on us, will you."

Douglas—"Aw, shucks, I didn't do that well. But I always try. They tell me that you were a terror against Coolidge. Imagine scoring three touchdowns. I hope

Mr. Okun Has A Good Idea

Sol Okun set an example yesterday for other football fans to follow in connection with the big, championship Interhigh game between Central and McKinley at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

Okun reserved the same box seat for the Interhigh game that he occupies for Washington Redskin games.

Sam Breadon Calls News Conference

St. Louis, Nov. 24 (AP).—Reports persisted today that the St. Louis Cardinals and the National League club's minor league properties have been sold to a syndicate including Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, and Owner Sam Breadon called a news conference for 10 a. m. (CST) tomorrow presumably to make an announcement on the matter.

In announcing the news conference, Breadon gave no hint of its subject. The action, however, lent credence to unconfirmed and undenied reports that the club, winner of nine pennants and six world championships, had been sold.

Earlier Breadon told newsmen: "I can't say anything now, but I will have something to say later."

The reports placed the purchase price at $3,500,000.

Without disclosing its sources, the Post-Dispatch said Breadon was reported to have accepted an offer of that amount from a syndicate including Hannegan; the Skouras Brothers, movie magnates; Edwin W. Pauley, California oil man; and Sidney Salomon, jr., St. Louis insurance executive.

Sport Columnist Bill Corum, writing in the New York Journal-American, said flatly the club and all of its vast farm system had been sold for $3,500,000 to Hannegan, the three Skouras Brothers, and one or two St. Louis residents.

The Post-Dispatch said the deal was reported to include the 16 minor league clubs owned by the Cardinals and physical properties of the club's three most important minor league holdings—Columbus of the American Association, Rochester of the International League and Houston of the Texas League. Earlier the newspaper said the deal was said to include only these three clubs, the parent organization and physical properties.

News to Frick

National League President Ford Frick said at Lafayette, Ind., while he was attending a football dinner, that he knew "absolutely nothing" about the reported sale except what he had read in the newspapers.

With the exception of Pauley, all of the men mentioned as the purchasers either live in St. Louis or are former residents of the city. Hannegan and the 72-year-old Breadon, long-time owner of the Cardinals, are neighbors here.

The Skouras brothers, two of whom were in closed conference at their New York office, are owners of a Nation-wide chain of theaters. They began their careers in St. Louis.

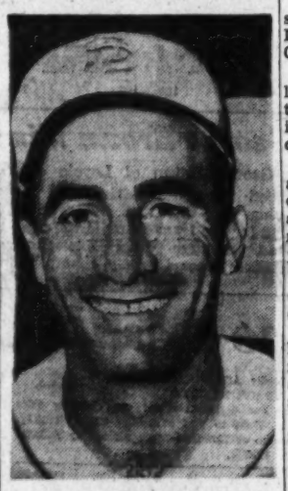
Griff to Ask Ruling On Priddy Deal

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Hollywood and a bit part in the movies has more appeal for Johnny Berardino than Washington and a job as regular second baseman for the Nats.

The 30-year-old Californian, acquired only Saturday from the St. Louis Browns for Gerry Priddy and a "lot of cash," yesterday said he had signed a 7-year acting contract and is "through with baseball."

* * * * * *



JOHNNY BERARDINO
It's movies for him . . .

When informed of Berardino's statement, made at his home in Los Angeles, Nat Owner Clark Griffith said:

"I'll ack Commissioner Chandler to investigate immediately. If the St. Louis ball club had any inkling that Berardino planned to quit baseball, the deal is off.

"If they didn't know a nything about his future plans, it's just our tough luck. We lose Priddy and the money," believed to be more than $25,000.

Priddy Toes

Even if the deal is voided by Chandler, Griffith said he would dispose of Priddy.

"I don't want that fellow," the Nat boss said of the infielder who reportedly led a player revolt against Manager Ossie Bluege last season.

Berardino, who batted .265 in 90 games for the cellar-dwellers in 1946, said in an Associated Press story that he had signed a seven-year contract with the Richard K. Polimer Productions.

Polimer, he said, offered him a contract after viewing his work in a bit role as a trainer in a racing picture, "The Winner's Circle."

"And I snapped it up," Berardino added. "When they start moving you around like a piece of furniture, it's time to get out. I wasn't even notified of the deal; had to read about it in the papers like anybody else."

Berardino declared he wasn't perturbed about losing his status as a 10-year-man in the majors which he would become next season.

"That steady paycheck will make up for it. Mr. Polimer thinks I have possibliities as a romantic lead, and we're going to keep the same name—Berardino is something like Valentino."

Johnny's role as a trainer is his first adult part. His previous movie experience came with the Pasadena Playhouse in offseasons when "I acted as a kid in some Hal Roach comedies."

Dagrosa Quits Holy Cross Job

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 24 (AP).—The resignation of John (Ox) Dagrosa, head football coach at Holy Cross since 1945, was announced tonight by Athletic Director Eugene W. Flynn. It will become effective after Saturday's game with Boston College at Braves Field in Boston.

Flynn said that Dagrosa submitted his letter of resignation to Rev. William J. Healy, S. J., and earlier in the day had a conference with Father Healy about the renewal of his three-year contract, said to call for a $7500 salary. It was understood that Dagrosa was offered a new one-year contract.

Congress Steps Into Armory Dispute, Wants Revenue Held

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Congressional District leaders today are stepping into the dispute between the Commissioners and the National Guard over control of Washington's armory and of the funds obtained from its nonmilitary uses.

Their immediate aim is to get clear-cut assurance that the money received from private use of the armory will not be spent until Congress early next year can decide by legislation what agency should have charge of the funds.

For a reporter, Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) and Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) will visit the armory about noon today.

Cain Is Fiscal Chairman

Cain is chairman of the Senate District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee, and is assigned to look into the armory situation by Senate District Chairman C Douglas Buck (R., Del.).

Dirksen is chairman of the House District Committee. Both have conferred informally with the Commissioners about the armory, with the present understanding that no legislation to settle the armory dispute will be taken until after the regular session starts in January.

Their visit to the armory was arranged by James R. Kirkland, Washington attorney and Senate District Committee counsel. He acted on Cain's request in planning the visit, and he will go with them to the armory.

Kirkland said the District Committee members are slated to meet at the armory with at least one Disric Commissioner, Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, engineer Commissioner, wih Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, head of the District National Guard, and with District fire and inspection officials.

Senator Cain said he wanted to see the armory first hand, and to get information on these points:

Gambino's 96 Is 5th in Scoring, Top Place Is 115

New York, Nov. 24 (AP).—Winding up his season with a five-touchdown splurge against Lake Forest, Chuck Schoenherr, 180-pound sophomore fullback for Wheaton (Ill.) College today held the collegiate football scoring lead in the Nation with 115 points.

In his nine games he scored 19 touchdowns and one point after touchdown.

He replaced Wesley Luther, the Minot, N. Dak., Teachers College back who amassed 112 points in virtual anonymity during his season, and whose feat was brought to light last week.

Darwin Horn, of Pepperdine, bucked across three touchdowns last weekend as his team downed California Tech, 46-0, to bring his total to 109. He has one more game left—against Loyola of Los Angeles December 5.

The only other century man was Tom Ward of Hillsdale, in Michigan, who added three touchdowns last week to boost his total to 108.

"Lu" Gambino of Maryland, leading Southern Conference scorer whose two touchdowns last week brought him to 96 points, will have a chance to challenge the 100-or-better boys in his finale this Saturday against North Carolina State.

Lions Meet Bears Tonight

The Washington Lions and Hershey Bears tangle at 8:30 o'clock tonight on Uline ice as the Lions return home after their brief but strenuous two-game road trip.

The Bears, champions of the American League, and the Lions have split a pair of games already this season, each winning on the other team's ice.

Pacing the visitors will be Capt. Gordie Bruce, Pentti Lund and Bobby Schnurr, their high-scoring first line. Goalie Red Henry, always one of the toughest men in the league to beat, will be in the Hershey nets.

The improving Lions, who put on their two best performances to date last week against St. Louis and Philadelphia, were again the victims of a schedule that called for three games in three nights.

After the tough Philadelphia game, the Lions were forced to play in Cleveland and St. Louis on successive nights. The leg weary Lions, after fast starts in both games, tired badly and dropped each test.

Tonight, however, they should be fairly well rested and ready to go. The Frank Porteous, Dan Porteous and Win Mousseau line, which has scored five goals in the last three contests, is expected to keep up its hot pace against the Bears. Along with this line, the return of Ken Schultz and Larry Archambeault to action has given the team far more punch.

Sammy Didn't Even Get His Pants Dirty Against Cardinals

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

IN A ROUNDABOUT way Sammy Baugh's pants yesterday were telling the story of the Washington Redskins' sensational 45-21 victory over the Chicago Cardinals at Griffith Stadium Sunday.

Sammy's pants were comparatively spotless because the Rotan rancher wasn't knocked off his feet once while throwing 33 passes, 25 complete and 6 for touchdowns on a muddy field. The only mud on them was where Sammy had wiped his talented fingers and sat on a muddy Redskin bench.

There was a story behind Sammy's story-telling pants. It opened with a Redskin lineman's worshipful remark as Baugh trotted from the dressing room to be presented a $3000 auto highlighing "Sammy Baugh Day."

"There goes the greatest football player of all time," said the lineman, and Coach Turk Edwards agreed with the statement: "If you guys have any guts at all you won't let a Cardinal put a hand on him all afternoon."

* * * *

THE REDSKINS ALMOST did just that. The same gang that had taken five straight lickings, six all season, drubbed the National Football League's best defense team something awful.

See SKINS, Page B-11, Column 3

Skins Draw First Choice in Draft

Already pleased with themselves, the Redskins were tickled with their luck yesterday when a draw from a hat in the NFL offices in Philadelphia gave them the 1947 bonus draft choice.

They thus get first chance at top collegiate player in the country before the league's system of last team choosing first goes into effect. Last year the Chicago Bears drew the bonus choice and picked All-America Bob Fenimore.

Hurry, Hurry, Hurry for Your Tickets to Biggest High Game

ONLY FOUR MORE days in which to buy your tickets to the biggest high school football game ever played in Washington, the Central-McKinley Interhigh championship contest at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

Answers to questions asked by football fans:

1—Are the seats reserved individually or by sections? They are reserved individually, the same as for Nats and Redskins games—strictly big league for a big-league attraction.

2—Are some good seats left? Tickets are going fast but many choice seats still are available.

Tickets are on sale at Griffith Stadium, the Fairway Sports Shop, 1328 G st. nw., and the lobby of The Washington Post (The Post's ticket counter will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily).

Prices for reserved seats are $1.80 and $2.40, including tax. General admission (unreserved) seats, $1.20, including tax, will be sold at the ball park only the day of the game.

Parents of students may purchase tickets at the high schools.

Students who hold athletic cards will be admitted for 25 cents if they purchase tickets at their respective schools by November 26, last day of school before the Thanksgiving holidays. Thereafter students must pay regular prices.

Students at private, parochial and county schools also may purchase 25-cent tickets, if they hold athletic cards. These 25-cent tickets will be available at the various schools.

Proceeds of the game will go to the athletic funds of the eight Interhighs, and to the Community Chest. The game is under the sponsorship of the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

Irish Take Top Spot Again

New York, Nov. 24 (AP).—Notre Dame's resounding 59-6 rout of Tulane sent the Fighting Irish back into the No. 1 spot in the weekly Associated Press poll of football writers in a close finish with the powerful Michigan Wolverines.

Of the 192 writers participating this week, 97 put Notre Dame in first place and 81 voted for Michigan with Southern Methodist drawing 6 firsts, Southern California and North Carolina, 3 each, and Penn State and Columbia, each 1.

Notre Dame's margin in the total point column, compiled on the basis of 10 points for a first place vote and so on down to 1 for a 10th place ballot, was even closer. The Irish had 1798 points to 1768 for Michigan which led last week with 140 of 246 votes.

How They Rank:

1—Notre Dame (97)		1798
2—Michigan (81)		1768
3—Southern Methodist (6)		1565
4—Southern California (3)		1327
5—Penn State (1)		1199
6—Alabama		799
6—Texas		737
8—Pennsylvania		703

March Chick, Outsider, Captures Bowie's Featured Colmar

Sun Herod Beaten Out In Stretch

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 24.—With the favorite, Joseph Dushock's Mahmoudess, practically left at the post, H. L. Straus' hard-running March Chick was the winner of the Colmar Manor Purse, featuring the final Monday's program of the local session. With Jockey Johnny Breen riding his second winner of the dismal afternoon, March Chick drove into the finish line a length and a quarter in front of Brookmede Stables' Sun Herod. In third position in the field of six was the Ridgewood Stable's Peace Harbor.

With the crowd of 7000 centering most of its play on Mahmoudess, March Chick returned a $9 mutuel. The much-raced son of Milkman wa clocked in 1:55 1-5, good time considering the track was muddy.

Sun Herod Early Leader

Sun Herod, with Apprentice Charlie Martens up, took the lead in the opening jump and was followed by Peace Harbor and March Chick going into the clubhouse turn as Mahmoudess' backers moaned.

At the far turn, March Chick and Peace Harbor moved together after the leading Sun Herod. Peace Harbor was caught between the pair and had to be eased back. Martens tried hard to keep March Chick from passing but the 6-year-old had the necessary punch and gradually disposed of the pacemaker to be going away at the end. Peace Harbor was a tiring third.

Mahmoudess was rushed by Jockey Willie Balzaretti in an attempt to overcome the unlucky break at the start. The gray mare was within striking distance at the half pole but faltered thereafter.

Victory Worth $2100

The victory was the second in a row here for March Chick and his fourth of the year in 21 outings. The Straus hope earned $2100 to bring his 1947 earnings to $16,800.

The big money victory of the day came in the third race when Gay Pilate, owned by S. H. Rogers, jr., of Washington, surprised the talent by staying in front all the way under a strong ride by Jockey Tommy Tommaro. The 2-year-old paid a $93 mutual and held to a beat C. D. Tarabicos' Resojet and Glenwood Farm's Glenwood Kid.

Jockey Breen rode his first winner of the day aboard Bbanet Stable's Trojan Fleet, bringing the son of Case Ace along the inside rail to win going away

G. W. President Likes His Team

The George Washington University football squad was scattered around on benches in its Griffith Stadium dressing room half an hour before the big game with Georgetown was scheduled to begin.

A locker room attendant walked over to Coach Skip Stahley, who was busy conferring with his assistants, and said in a low voice, "Dr. Marvin wants to know if he can have your permission to say a few words to the boys."

The surprised Colonial coach could only nod his assent. The attendant walked to the door and admitted the President of the University, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin.

The distinguished educator moved to the center of the dressing room and told the G. W. team, which had dropped seven straight games, how much he admired their spirit and how confident he was they could whip Georgetown.

Well, the Colonials didn't win the game, but they came pretty close.

Yesterday, Dr. Marvin, who has often been accused of being cool toward athletics, announced that he is treating the George Washington football team and coaching staff to a pre-Thanksgiving dinner at the Ambassador Hotel tonight.

His reason? He was just so pleased with the team's performance Saturday against Georgetown.

The Pants Tell Sammy's Story

Linemen John Sanchez, Fred Boensch, John Adams, Henry Harris, Doug Turley, Joe Hereshinski and others gave Baugh the best passing protection he'd ever enjoyed. But there were a few items, overlooked in the general excitement, that helped toward victory:

1. Baugh's brilliant quarterbacking, perhaps his best of his career. He juggled plays perfectly to get the most out of his aerials which set a new season record for pass completions, 151, tied his own marks for game completions and game touchdown passes, and proved the third most profitable effort in one game with 355 yards.

2. Baugh's greater use of 'lob' passes and laterals and his wider running while looking for a receiver. Three of Sammy's touchdowns tosses looked almost like pop flies and considerable deception was added to the Redskin T by Baugh's short laterals to scrambling Jim Castiglia.

3. A dressing room pep talk about "letting the fans down." It brought the Redskins out to protect Baugh while he completed his first seven passes of the game and didn't see one hit the ground until well into the second half.

4. The terrific play of Fullbacks Castiglia, Sal Rosato and Jack Jenkins, plus the usual "college try" of Dick Poillon, Eddie Saenz and Bob Nussbaumer. The first three times Jenkins kicked off to Chicago he went down and also made the tackle.

Congress Enters Dispute Over Guard Armory

ARMORY—From Pg. B-9

1. What can be done to make the facility of more use to the people of the District.

2. How much it would cost to provide the necessary fire exits so that the armory could be used to its fullest possible capacity.

3. What can be done to put the armory, if possible, on a profit basis, or at least on a self-sustaining basis.

Legislative Problem

Senator Cain said he believed the armory control problem was one to be settled by legislation rather than by the Courts.

One point to be studied today, it was explained, is that raised by the District's decision that the armory exits limit the seating capacity to 4825 persons. General Cox at one point proposed liberalizing this limit to 8200.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Guy Mason is slated to present to the Commissioners today a request that they authorize use of the armory for the winter basketball season. The request was presented in a letter by C. Max Farrington, director of men's activities at George Washington University; Rome Schwagel, graduate manager of athletics at Georgetown University and Hardy L. Pearce, representing the District High Schools.

47 Games Aranged

They cited tentative arrangements with General Cox to stage a total of 47 basketbal games in the armory from Decmebr 8 to February 25.

They asked the Commissioners to approve the program, with the understanding that the number of seats would not go above the official limit. They suggested that funds be turned over to and held by an agent. They sand Gen. Cox had expressed willingness to have the funds held by any one of three Washington bankers: Bruce Baird, president of the National Savings and Trust Co.; Robert V. Fleming, president and board chairman of the Riggs National Bank; and John A. Reilly, president of the Second National Bank.

that you got all that out of your system."

"Well, here we are at Central. Thank you very much Mr. Solomon, and good luck to you and Bugs too.

Wish Each Other Luck

Thompson—Thanks for all your kind words, Bob. And good luck to you too.

So the Solomon car continued on to Tech, and Douglas trotted into the Central High building to join the practice session.

But quite in contrast to what was said in the car, this is what the three principals had to say at their practices:

Douglass—"We'll be out to lick the tar out of Tech. Bugs is a nice guy, but he's scored all his touchdowns for the year. Tech has played its last game this season without being scored on."

Thompson—"To heck with that good luck stuff. I hope that we'll have all the luck. We're iut not only to beat Central, but to run up a decisive score."

Solomon—"Nice boy that Douglas. And a good player. Too bad Central can't win, too."

Faculty members were joining the students in getting into the spirit of Friday night's Central-McKinley Tech interhigh championship game at Griffith Stadium yesterday as the two teams went through brief indoor drills.

As pep assemblies were held at each of the two participating schools, talk of the possible outcome of the title game was ripe among the teachers.

Mrs. Jeanette Kern, English teacher at Central for 25 years asked one of the players? "Do you think we'll win. I hope that the fact that Central is underdog doesn't disourage you."

Andrew M. Vleit, acting principal at McKinley said, "most of our teachers have bought their tickets, and will be there rooting our fine team to victory. Sure, we expect to win. Look at our record so far. We don't expect to be disappointed."

Ingram Advocates Permanent Coach For Navy Teams

New York, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Adm. Jonas Ingram, former Navy football coach, now commissioner of the All-America conference, today advocated a change in the Navy football coaching system which he authored and a "tempered" schedule to improve Annapolis gridiron fortunes.

The retired naval officer suggested:

1. That Capt. Tom Hamilton, current Navy coach, be retired from active duty and named permanent head coach.

2. That young assistant coaches do sea duty during the off-season and return to Annapolis for five or six years to build for the future.

3. That the Navy schedule be softened and spread over the Nation.

St. John's-Gonzaga Tilt Set for Sunday

Football fans who have purchased tickets for the Gonzaga-St. John's game Sunday at Griffith Stadium may be wondering why their ducats state that the game will be played Saturday.

It seems that the tickets were printed before the two schools switched the days of the game from Saturday to Sunday. So, in this instance, ticket holders, don't believe what your stubs say—the game is definitely for Sunday.

DEAR FOLKS: At Bowie.

Bowie is the only track in operation East of California for the next three days. Seven favorites won last Saturday, giving Bowie a 51 percentage of public choices. Jockey Eddie Hopkins, who did well in New England, checked in and reports to Stanley Greene, jr. Jockey Smokey Anyon came down from Lincoln Downs and will ride for Earl Auld. He goes to Charles Town from here. Jockey Johnny Breen changed plans and will put off his departure for Florida until after riding Alan Clarke's Fritz Maisel in the Endurance and Double Jay in the Bryan and O'Hara. He has a good chance of winning both big events. Carson Kirk was leading the riders with nine winners when suspended. Nick Combest had eight going into today's session. Forty-six trainers have saddled winners so far at the meeting. Annapolis' Station WANN is broadcasting the feature race from here each day with Tom Carr at the mike. Want to get in the horse business? There's a sale of horses in training scheduled for the local at 10 a. m. Wednesday. A. J. Boyle, president of the Charles Town Jockey Club, phoned and said the track had not been sold. BILL.

WASHINGTON'S OLDEST FORD DEALERSHIP

USC, Michigan In Rose Bowl

To the surprise of practically no one, the University of Southern California was chosen last night by vote of the Pacific Coast Conference to represent the West in the Rose Bowl against Michigan.

Earlier in the day, the Big Nine representatives got together in Chicago and named the Wolverines as their choice.

On other Bowl fronts, however, the picture was still in doubt.

The Orange Bowl announced late last night from Miami that "feelers" are out to several teams, but no announcement will be made until after Thanksgiving.

It is known that Kansas, Virginia and William and Mary are on the list of possibilities.

The Cotton Bowl is still up in the air because of the possibility that the Big Six race may end in a tie. Host team in the Bowl is always the conference champion.

If Southern Methodist loses its final game to Texas Christian Saturday and the University of Texas defeats Texas A. & M. Thursday, the Longhorns and Mustangs will be cochampions.

In the event of a tie, the conference would have to determine the Cotton Bowl host. SMU voted this afternoon on their choice as a Cotton Bowl foe—should they play in the game. The result was not given, but it was known undefeated, untied Penn State was the squad's choice.

Court Upholds Area Award To Portsmouth

Richmond, Va., Nov. 24 (AP).—In its most far-reaching annexation decision since the Richmond-Henrico case five years ago, the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today upheld a Norfolk County Circuit Court decision awarding two large areas of the county to Portsmouth.

An opinion in the case was written by Justice A. P. Staples, former attorney general. It was his first opinion since he joined the court in October.

Under the Trial Court's decree, Portsmouth will annex as of December 31 two areas of Norfolk County. One includes some 2000 acres of residential property valued at approximately $6,500,000. The other includes some 1000 acres of industrial property, in which is located the naval reservation.

Norfolk County has opposed the annexation decree on a number of grounds—that the residents of the first area are unanimously opposed to becoming citizens of Portsmouth. That Portsmouth can offer them nothing which they do not have already, that only a couple of new fire alarm boxes are promised for the industrial area, that Portsmouth is financially unable to undertake the annexation and never has complied with previous annexation promises, and that the area to be annexed violated the law that such a territory must be compact.

The high court ruled against the county on every point.

Repeal Hearing Dec. 4

Manassas, Va., Nov. 24.—A public hearing on a request to repeal a county ordinance prohibiting Sunday sale of beer and wine will be held at 1:30 p. m. December 4 in the county courthouse here. Each side will be allowed one hour for discussion.

Catonsville Man 'Shoots Up' Tavern, Turns Gun on Self

Catonsville, Md., Nov. 24 (AP).—A 37-year-old man, who police said "shot up" a tavern, ended by firing a bullet into his own head early today.

Police Sergt. Robert L. Sullivan identified the man as Henry Rose, a metal worker. Rose was in a critical condition at a Baltimore hospital.

Sullivan said Rose entered the tavern, in the center of Catonsville, about 1 a. m. and asked to be admitted to a card game then in progress. He was told to wait until the game was finished.

Rose then produced a gun, Sullivan said, and announced he intended to "shoot up" the place. Four shots were fired, one of them narrowly missing the brother of the proprietor and shattering a plateglass window.

The second shot went through a partition, the third into a pinball machine and the fourth into the floor, the sergeant said.

Rose then turned the gun on himself, Sullivan said, the bullet passing through his head and almost striking the barman, William Chambers.

Sullivan said Rose was married recently and had been residing with his wife and nephew in Catonsville.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Associated Press Science Reporter

Baltimore, Nov. 24.—A new technique for repairing hernias that develop after a surgical operation—employing a screenlike tantalum mesh to cover the break—was reported today by a Johns Hopkins surgeon.

It's like covering a break in a screen door with ordinary screen wire, except that the tantalum screen is attached to human tissue beneath the skin to overcome bulging of internal structures through a break in the muscle covering and the muscle itself.

Such bulges, or hernias, sometimes occur, Dr. Amos R. Koontz told a reporter, when stitches in the muscle sheath and muscle weaken after an operation. They are most frequent, he said, in stout people whose muscle sheaths or "fascia" are weakened anyway through the infiltration of fat. Infrequently, they can occur without a previous operation.

Report Given at Session

Koontz told the opening session of the Southern Medical Association's forty-first meeting, in a preliminary report, that he had employed tantalum mesh in five cases of "ventral" (or "belly") hernias with "excellent results."

Hitherto, the doctor declared, techniques to repair ventral hernias have utilized muscle-sheath transplonts from another part of the body, or flaps of the remaining fascia or muscle-sheathing derived from oxen, but he said such methods "have not been uniformly successful."

The tantalum mesh—"woven like ordinary screen wire but consisting of finer wire and smaller meshes"—is attacshed to the fascia with stutures of tantalum wire.

Koontz said it's pliable and it bends so that activities of the patient are not resricted. And so far, he said, there is no evidence of "foreign body" reaction—that is, an infection due to the metal itself.

In preliminary experiments with dogs, he said, the surrounding muscle sheathing became intertwined, gradually, with the mesh, so that a "tough" fibrous covering was produced over the break, "and I believe this may happen in humans."

Work in First Stages

He said the work still was in the preliminary stage, but "I feel that it shows great promise in the repair of very large and difficult hernias."

Kiboontz told a reporter it was conceivable that the technique might also be useful in the repair of hernias resulting from a congenital defect—those in the groin—but he said that in such cases the torn fascia of the bone usually could be employed to repair the break.

Earlier Dr. L. Clarence Cohn, a member of the St. Agnes Hospital in Baltimore, reported women should get to a doctor within 24 hours, if possible, after noticing a lump or something unusual in the breast.

Only one in three of such cases will have a cancer anyway, Dr. Cohn said, but among those who do, this early action can greatly improve the outlook in the control of this malady.

Cohn said in a report that cancer occupies second place as a cause of death and that approximately 10 per cent of all cancer deaths are from malignancies of the female breast.

And he said that if such cancers are detected before they spread from the breast itself to the armpit, the chances of a "five-year cure" are upped from a gross rate of 13½ per cent to 81 per cent and opportunity for a 10-year-cure" increases from 11.3 per cent to 51 per cent.

(A 5 or a 10-year "cure" means that either 5 or 10 years passes without a recurrence of a cancer that his been attacked by surgery or "irradiation"—that is, X-ray or radium treatment.)

Dr. Cohn derived the lower percentages in each classification from an appraisal of 1240 cases of breast cancer over a 25-year period.

British Abolish Poore House; Aid Now Up to Nation

London, Nov. 24 (U.P.).—Commons voted tonight, at the height of the economic crisis, to abolish the poor house. In its place, the "national assistance" bill will make monetary help for the impoverished a national responsibility, though welfare work will be left in the hands of local authorities. It provides for training and educational centers for tramps and other vagrants. In effect, it makes the nation directly responsible for its poor, and ends the hated "poor law" that Charles Dickens in "Oliver Twist" and other novels so bitterly attacked.

Lawmakers View Oyster Dredging

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 24 (AP).—Fifteen delegates to the General Assembly from Eastern Shore and southern Maryland counties were guests of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission on a Chesapeake Bay oyster inspection trip aboard the State yacht Potomac today.

Beause of bad weather, the yacht returned to its Annapolis berth early in the afternoon.

The delegates saw several dredge boats operating off Stone Rock, but weather made it impossible to board the smaller craft.

Senators from tidewater counties will make a similar trip December 5 and 6.

Thin Man Hunted In Market Theft

Ferndale, M., Nov. 24 (AP).—At least one of the thieves who broke into an Annapolis Road Supermarket over the weekend and escaped with $5000 in loot must have been either very young or very thin.

Entrance was gained, Anne Arundel County police reported, by cutting a 9-by-15 inch hole in the roof.

The thieves made off with a 300-pound safe containing about $1600 in cash, plus numerous war bonds and pieces of jewelry, the proprietors reported.

Also missing were 20 cases of whisky, valued at $1000, and 3 cases of cigarettes.

45 Active Singers Now Are Enrolled; Organized in 1850

By Mark Ethridge, Jr.
Post Reporter

The first concert of the Washington Saengerbund since 1940 will be held Sunday in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The Saengerbund, Washington's oldest singing society, specializes in German and English folk music, but can handle operatic choruses with equal ease.

In existence since 1850, the society is composed of about 45 active singers from all occupations, well divided among first and second tenors and basses, but all joined together with a love for singing and informal good times.

Each Saturday night for the last year and a half, the group has gathered in the basement of Mrs. John Schuster's home at 1716 31st st. se. Completely equipped with beer steins that seem always to remain full, they have practiced so that the individual voices, like the beer, have blended into one great brew.

Schwalb Is President

President of the organization is Jacob Schwalb, of 1850 Biltmore st. nw., who, when he isn't singing, is an architectural sculptor. A first tenor, Schwalb is a youngster in the organization, having been a member for only 12 years.

Most of the others have been members for a much longer time. Rudolph Schneider, 82, the honorary president of the organization, has been a member since he was 19, through both lean and fat years. Schneider is a maker of working models for inventors. He lives at 619 H st. nw.

Far years for the organization were mostly its early ones. The group sang for Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot in the revolution of 1848, when he came to the United States in 1852. Shortly after Lincoln's assassination, the group sang a memorial concert in the Capitol rotunda.

By 1893, the Saengerbund had won three first prizes in Northeastern competition with singing societies. In that year the group bought a house at 314 C st. nw., and kept it for almost 30 years.

But anti-German feeling and the introduction of prohibition temporarily stopped the Saengerbund. They could get few people to attend their concerts, and membership dropped. New members were even harder to get. Finally, in the early 1920s, the house was sold, and the group halted its public activities.

Club Formed in 1934

In 1934, Carl Stober, first bass, of 2111 North Rolfe st., Arlington, organized the Men's Singing Club, and got for its director Max Gundlach, who lived in Baltimore. Gundlach would come down for each rehearsal, and the Men's Singing Club grew rapidly. The first concert was held in February, 1934, in the Knights of Columbus Hall, with 50 singers participating.

Three years later, when Schwalb was president of the group, he got members of the old Saengerbund together with members of the new singing club, and they joined forces under the old name.

A year later, the Saengerbund was again at its peak, and the amateur singers won a plaque in competition with 150 singing societies.

In 1940, the group again went into semiretirement. It maintained its name, and held occasional rehearsals. President of the organization during the war years was Alfred Kopf, a first bass when he sings and a machinist for the Baullaufe Manufacturing Co. the rest of the time. A member since 1927, Kopf lives at 1715 21st st. North Arlington.

Then, a year and a half ago, Schwalb again became president, the basement was coerced away from Mrs. Schuster, and Gundlach was again made director. He now has to commute from Philadelphia.

The program for the coming concert, which will start about 6 p. m., Schwalb said, is a memorial program in German, dedicated to members who have died or were killed in the past seven years.

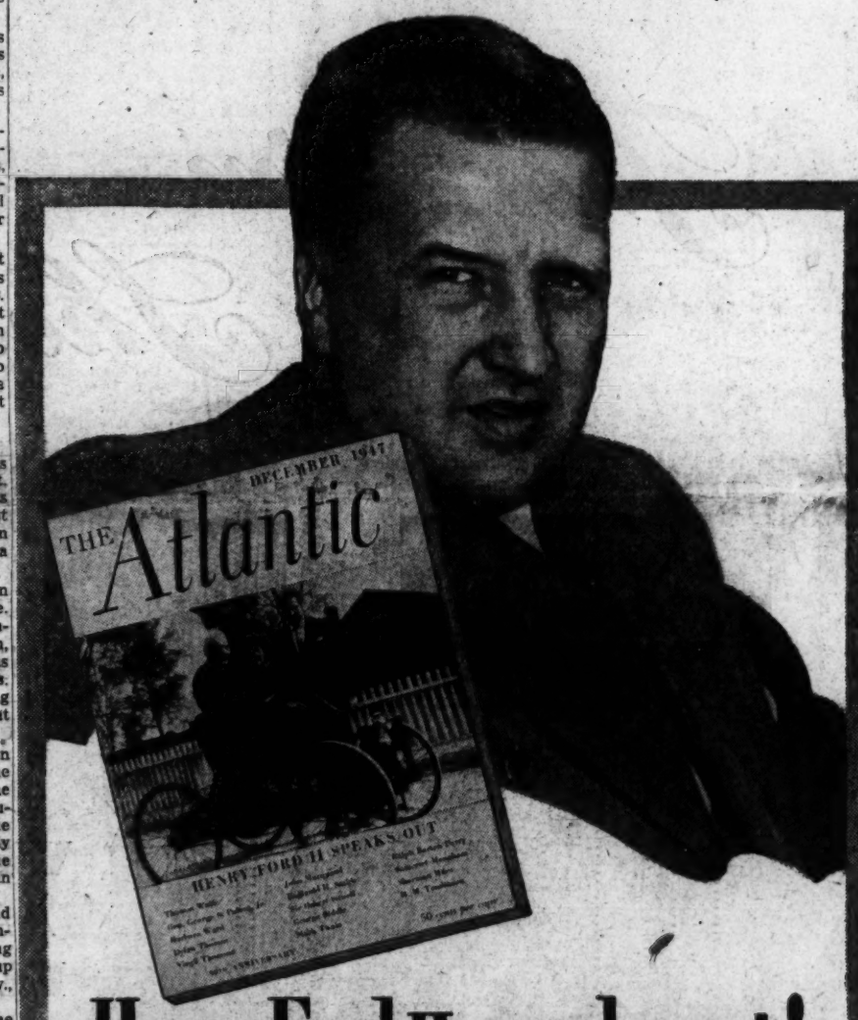
It will include a funeral song by Silcher, titled "Bardenchor," and selections from Grose, Mendelssohn, Breu, Kern and Gelbke. Accompaniment will be provided by the Si Murray orchestra, and a dance will be held at the hall following the concert, Schwalb said.

Gilliam Pleads Guilty in Death Of Girl Friend

Floyd Gilliam, 22-year-old trash collector of 1320 Corcoran st. nw, yesterday pleaded guilty of second-degree murder before Associate Justice Edward M. Curran in District Court.

Gilliam had run amuck with a .32 caliber pistol at his home last June 2, killing his girl friend, Alberta Boyd, 22, of 3101 Garfield st. nw., wounding his mother, and striking his sister over the head with the gun.

According to police, the shooting climaxed a family argument involving "dates." Gilliam will be sentenced at a later date.



Henry Ford II speaks out!

With startling frankness and in his own words, Henry Ford II raises the curtain on the Ford Motor Company's revolutionary program for industrial expansion.

For the first time, Mr. Ford takes the American public into his confidence to tell them of his plan for the future security of the 130,000 men and women of the Ford organization.

This is a human article—a prophetic article—an article which may well set a management pattern for other American industries. Don't miss it.

Family Service Unit of Chest Comes to Aid

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

She was worried about herself. She had held job after job, only to find that she couldn't get along with people—nobody liked her.

And so she had moved on to another job. It had been tough, and she was lonely and confused. She went to the Family Service Association for advice on how to handle her relationships with people.

She had just started on another job, and this time it had to work. So her question, plaintively asked, was:

"What's wrong with me?"

So FSA social workers set out to find the answer to her question. Finding out didn't necessitate spending any money on the girl. FSA made use of its own trained personnel to get to the bottom of her problem. FSA is a Community Chest agency.

They found the answer in her childhood. There had been several children in the family and the mother had not been well. Sometimes the girl had gotten good care and affection. But when her mother had been ill, she had received little or no care, and she had come to feel that her mother's affection had been withdrawn from her.

Frightened Them

So she grew up with the idea that all people were that way. And when she met someone new, whom she liked, she was so possessive with them, so hungry for affection, that she simply drove them away from her because of her geat need for them. She frightened them, and they withdrew. And all her adult life it had been the same story—a possible friend, a feeling that that friend was deserting her if he or she even talked to anyone else, and then the eventual withdrawal and rejection by that friend.

Once the girl realized what was wrong with her concept of people, she was able to curb her possessive tendencies. She was able to make and hold friends. She had seen her blind spot.

But without the Family Service Association, or some similar agency, she might not have seen it.

At the FSA, persons trained in social work have been able, frequently even without direct financial assistance, to straighten people's lives out for them. The agency, of course, uses funds to aid individuals and families in unusual economic situations resulting from illness, accident, or other causes.

Plight of Alcoholic

One of these "other causes" cases arose out of the plight of an alcoholic. Everybody knows that alcoholism is a disease, but no one has figured out a positive cure for it. Sometimes mental therapy works. Sometimes it doesn't.

But most people who deal with the problem agree that the alcoholic himself must have enough determination to fight his problem. Then, if he gets enough help, he can beat it.

In this case, a man with a wife and two children had become an alcoholic, and was so concerned that he went to the FSA. He went over a sizable period of time and at the same time he received periodic treatments at Dr. Leopold Wexberg's alcoholic clinic.

He had gotten to the point when he came to FSA that he was spending all the family income on alcohol. His kids didn't have proper clothes to go to school. There wasn't food. His children were developing animosity to him because of the things he did when he was drunk, and because they were failing in their grades at school.

Afraid of Wife

The father was afraid his wife would leave him. The FSA talked to him, learned that he drank because he felt worried, ineffectual, was afraid he couldn't support his family. His worry had led him to drink. But his worry actually stemmed from the fact that during his childhood he had been "overprotected" by a mother who had done too many things for him, and had never developed in him a sense of responsibility.

So the FSA helped him out. They gave him enough money to see that his family ate and had clothes, and then, gradually, they asked him to assume more and more of the financial burden of caring for his family. But at each step along the way, the man had the assurance that he could assume the financial tasks. Now he is completely cured, and supports his family without outside assistance.

Supposing he hadn't been helped? Supposing his problem hadn't been solved. No one knows what may have happened, but it is probable that his wife would have left him and, since she had no work resources, probably would have to go on Public Welfare rolls, for which the taxpayer pays. The man himself probably would have lost his job sooner or later, and been a community burden either as an alcoholic, and a chronic jail case, or, perhaps in desperation, even as a criminal.

What did happen is intangible. You can't see it, or feel it, or put it in the bank. But would you rather have the tangible? Another statistic in public welfare? Another jail expense? Another divorce action?

The Family Service Association is one of the agencies which your Community Chest Federation contribution helps to support.

Margaret Truman Tells Of Washington Concert

By Elizabeth Maguire

HOME for Thanksgiving week, Miss Margaret Truman made a surprise visit yesterday to her mother's press conference, which is held weekly by Mrs. Edith Helm. Self-assured and gracious, Margaret obligingly answered a number of questions about her career and future plans.

She laughed at the President's recent comment that he preferred grandchildren to a prima donna in the family. "I hadn't heard that one," she said, "but it sounds just like father."

Margaret likes to face a large audience. Instead of quailing, she feels a challenge to do her best, she said.

The President's daughter has two dresses which she wears to sing in—one white and one pink. The dresses were designed by Mme. Pola in New York, and a third one is now in the making.

The concert at Constitution Hall on December 22 will be the last in a series of 20 given by Miss Truman. Asked if there would be a party after that concert, the young singer replied she didn't know. "But if there is," she added, "it will be mine, and it will just be for some of the gang."

When asked if her mother and father would attend the Constitution Hall concert, she said: "I don't know whether it has been announced or not, but they had better show up." "Anyway," she added, "I know mother will be there."

The ease with which her parents can attend a concert in Constitution Hall, Miss Truman explained was one of the reasons she was eager to give a program in Washington.

On tour, Miss Truman follows a rigid schedule of 8 to 10 hours sleep, no desserts and no rich foods. She doesn't smoke, because smoking, she says, does not go with singing. About two hours before each concert she has a steak and a baked potato.

Margaret has a pleasant time on her concert tour, meeting old friends and friends of friends. She is always presented with flowers, which she gives to the Children's Hospital of the different cities. In one town she was specially pleased when her Pi Phi sisters, instead of sending flowers, sent a contribution in her name to a children's fund.

Miss Truman said she had no plans for the future, except that she will continue with her career. She has no plans for a teacher in New York, or a new teacher. Her concert schedule averages two or three a week. Audience reaction, she says, is about the same in one city as another.

Mrs. Truman's Schedule

Today Mrs. Truman will receive those Amabssadors and Ministers and their wives who asked to see her during the summer while she was away. In the evening she will attend the Philadelphia Orchestra concert at Constitution Hall.

Saturday Mrs. Truman and the President will go to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia. On December 2 Mrs. Truman will attend the Christmas bazaar at the British Embassy for the benefit of the Pinhoe Community Center for Child Health Clinic of Devonshire, England. That evening the diplomatic reception will be held at the White House. To conform with the flour and egg conservation program no cakes will be served at evening receptions this winter.

Monday, December 8, at 4 o'clock, Mrs. Truman will receive Columbian women of George Washington University. There will be about 500 in the group. The following day Mrs. Truman will attend a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel given by the Near East Foundation.

The evening of December 9, at 9 o'clock, the President and Mrs. Truman are holding a reception for active members of press and radio. Cabinet members and other officials will also attend.

Mrs. Mesta Is Hostess At Press Party

By Genevieve Reynolds

CAMERAS clicked. Bulbs flashed. Secret servicemen formed a cordon around 2300 S st. nw. Inside Miss Mary Margaret Truman swirled in a gay waltz with one of the White House aides. Some 300 newswomen and their escorts sipped French champagne with the town's topnotch officials.

The glamorous fete was Mrs. George Mesta's annual party yesterday honoring members of the American Newspaper Women's Club and the Women's National Press Club. Sharing honors with active scribes were the associate members of the ANWC.

By far one of the gayest parties of the season, Mrs. Mesta showed how to give everyone a good time and yet keep all refreshments according to the line advocated by the Citizens Food Commitee. Specially prepared potato flour was used in lieu of wheat products for sandwiches.

Several Cabinet wives who are associate members of the American Newspaper Women's Club took turns pouring tea while their husbands mingled with the crowd. At the tea table were Mrs. Clinton Anderson, Mrs. Robert Hannegan, Mrs. Kenneth Royall, Mrs. John Snyder, Mrs. Tom Clark, Mrs. Lewis B. Schwellenbach and Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice.

Many of the associate members brought along their spouses. Others came with escorts. Glimpsed among those present were Representative Frances P. Bolton, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, Mrs. William N. Doak, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Freer, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Hempstone, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Luther Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. Felipe Munilla, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Miss Etta Mai Russell, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley White.

Missouri Scores Again

General Bradley Christens Streamliner; Jewels Await Eric Johnston in Siberia

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NOW THAT GEN. OMAR BRADLEY has been appointed Chief of Staff to succeed General Eisenhower, Missouri takes another bow. Hailing from the small town of Moberly, the general received his unique Christian name because there were so many other Bradley's scattered around the neighborhood. Determined to distinguish her only child from an assortment of Jack, Joe and Bob Bradleys, his mother named him after Omar Gray, editor of a Missouri weekly newspaper. Between high school and West Point appointment, young Bradley worked for the Wabash Railroad at 13 cents an hour in its tank shop. Yesterday, as sort of an Horatio Alger climax, local boy made good by christening the Wabash's new streamliner, "The City of Kansas." The christening was done "with mirrors." General Bradley, at his Washington desk, pushed a special button activating a robot arm which, in turn, smashed a bottle of champagne (we presume) on the streamliner's bow!

Remembers the Score

FRIENDLY, universally liked, General Bradley is suprisingly gentle for such a hard-hitting wartime commander. A phenomenal memory has materially aided his career. Offhand, he can recall every American League pitcher since 1915; remember the score of every great football game during the same period. Forty-seven divisions were under his overseas command. He not only knew each division commander and assistants but each morning could spot their positions on a map, tell in almost as intimate detail about the opposing German divisions, the foibles of their commanders. Heading the American Veterans, General Bradley constantly toured hospitals; even if there were a thousand casualties he'd make a personal bedside visit to every one. He would ask each soldier where he came from, where he he had been wounded. Then to the GI's amazement, the general would outline his particular sector of the battle, the confronting obstacles, even neighboring divisions.

GENERAL BRADLEY

Four-Star Hitch-Hiker

EVERY GENERAL, especially one nicknamed "The GI's General," is subject for a string of stories. Best known Bradley tale was during the Normandy invasion. On cold Omaha Beach, the general spotting a coatless GI, stripped off his four-star jacket, tossed it to the soldier with a casual "I can always get another." During the landing he refused to take along his personal jeep, hitchhiked miles on the running boards of 2-ton trucks rather than commandeer a vehicle. After the invasion had been effected and his jeep arrived, General Bradley worked up a horror of motorcycle escorts. Motorcycle MPs, spotting his four stars, would fall in front, officiously clear traffic by blaring sirens. Once six escorts, tooting importantly, strung out and Bradley ordered his driver to twist into a lane, hide behind bushes until they buzzed out of sight. "After all, ammunition trucks are far more important than I," he grumbled.

General Bradley spent only two nights in Paris during the war. Some weeks after his troops arrived he went to the French capital to confer with General Eisenhower. Come nightfall, other officers sallied forth to "do" the town, but Bradley went to a Red Cross Club, sat around all evening with GIs, drinking "cokes," signing autographs, swapping stories.

"The Mary Q"

SOME SIX OR EIGHT months ago General Bradley was assigned a special plane. The same C-47 he had used in Europe, he was inordinately fond of the ship grown battered in his service. It had flown the Atlantic twice, dropped into every European country. The plane had worn out two sets of wings, four sets of engines, but the homemade cabin was convenient, the radio exceptionally good and on its nose was painted "The Mary Q"—after his wife, Mary Quail Bradley. The plane was disreputably splotchy. The major in charge of repairs, despite the pilot's angry protests, painted out the name. Rules, he explained succinctly. The pilot called the general, who told him to forget it. One day months later, when it became certain General Bradley would be next Chief of Staff, the legend "Mary Q" mysteriously reblossomed on the C-47's nose. The major had made a heroic, last-minute gesture to climb aboard the band wagon!

How to Refuse a Gift

GENERALS and lesser lights offered embarrassingly handsome gifts solely because of high position should take a tip from movie czar, Eric Johnston. Not so long ago, brilliant Mr. J. made a trip to Russia on Stalin's invitation. After some time he found himself in Novo-Sibersk, guest of Siberia's political boss. A tough guy named "Mike," he took a shine to the decidedly untough Johnston. One evening Eric Johnston found a pile of envelopes addressed to him on his desk. To his amazement each contained a handful of different gems, sapphires, emeralds, turquoises, amethysts.

ERIC JOHNSTON

Though Johnston protested, his host insisted a Siberian could never take back a gift.

"Aren't they fine enough? Scatter them into the Atlantic from your plane if you don't want them!"

The Siberian blithely ignored Johnston's explanation that he could never pay the United States customs tax. But next morning ohnston hit upon an idea.

"You always obey Stalin?" he asked.

Mike replied he'd rather be shot than disobey.

"All right," said Johnston. "You know Stalin wants me to come back. If I took these stones the Americans would never let me come back. Therefore, in persuading me to accept them you'd be disobeying Stalin's orders!"

The Siberian knew when he was licked but had a parting shot in his locker. "Until your return these stones will remain here and multiply," he beamed. Nobody knows how the stones are getting on. A few months ago word trickled from behind the iron curtain that Mike had been liquidated.

Flying Researcher

WE ARE always looking for women with unusual jobs because, invariably, they are interesting. One to add to our collection is "Kattie" Spaatz, elder daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Carl Spaatz. Kattie, who's traveled a lot and been with the Wacs, holds down the impressive title of Eastern research representative for Movie Directors John Ford and Meriam Cooper. What she does is digest a mass of literature, delve in such places as the Library of Congress. When she gets a vast amount of material assembled, instead of mailing it, her bosses insist she fly with it to California. Other plums to the job include location trips. Last summer she stayed in Mexico while Ford and Cooper were filming "The Fugitive," comeback vehicle for Dolores del Rio.

BRAVE WORDS. Around the bar at the United Nations' Delegates Lounge a pale little story is circulating. A forlorn Senator was floundering beyond depth with a bunch of United Nations foreign visiting firemen. Searching for a common meeting ground they inquired politely how he felt about UNESCO. The Senator, rising to his political toes, never hesitated. "Brave little country, brave little country!" he clucked sympathetically.

Thanksgiving Dinner at White House To Follow Traditional Pattern

By Lucia Brown

A 20-POUND turkey, the gift of a friend of President Truman, will be the piece de resistance for Thanksgiving dinner at the White House, Mrs. Mary Sharpe, the housekeeper, said yesterday.

As in millions of other American homes, preparations for the feast will start early in the day. Members of the household staff will be busy making molded fruit salad, baking fragrant mince pies, stuffing turkey with oyster dressing, and arranging colorful table decorations.

The menu for the meal, which will be served at 7 p. m., will be as follows:

Roast Turkey	Oyster Dressing
Giblet Gravy	Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potatoes	Buttered Peas
Braised Celery
Molded Fruit Salad	Mince Pie
Cream of Mushroom Soup
Coffee	Candy Nuts

Although the Citizens Food Committee relaxed its rules a bit for Thanksgiving Day and included pumpkin pie on its suggested menu, President Truman's household will continue its egg saving even on this day by eating mince pie.

Though it follows Thanksgiving tradition fairly closely, the President's menu will be in interesting contrast with that of the first Thanksgiving back in 1621.

The First Thanksgiving

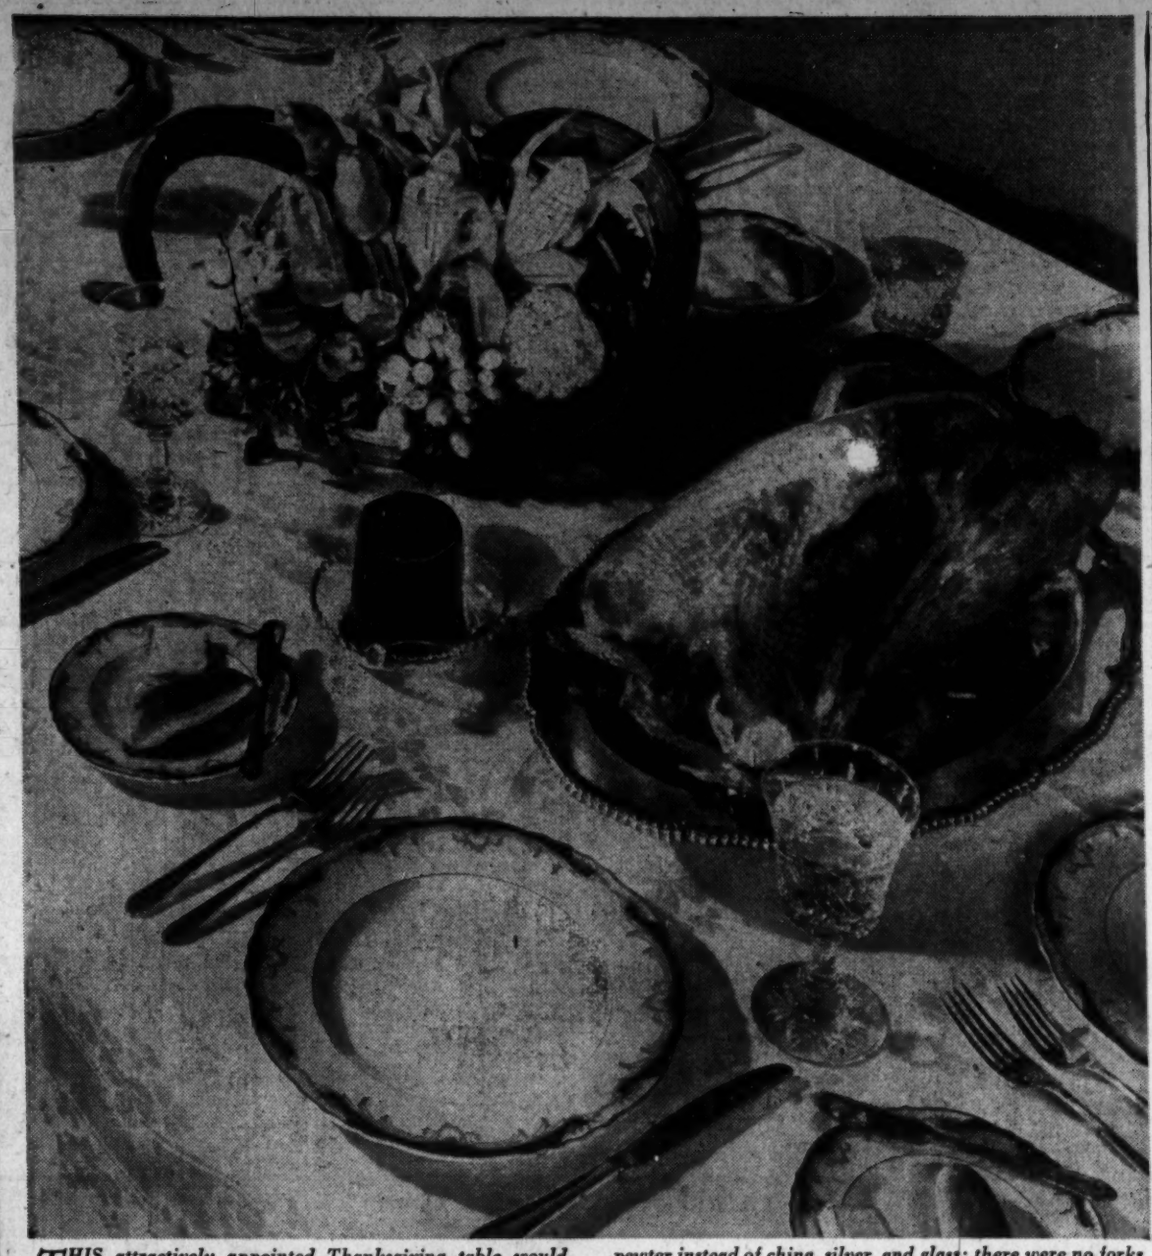
According to old letters and records, the following dishes were among those served at the celebration in Plymouth: Huge bowls of clam broth, roast fowl, venison, eel, wheat bread, corn bread, leeks, watercress and other "sallet herbs," wild plums, grapes, dried berries, sweet cakes and nuts. Our Puritan ancestors washed down the meal with wild grape wine, "very sweete and strong." The feasting lasted for three days, with the 50 Pilgrims entertaining 90 Indians as their guests on this occasion.

Turkey, which will be eaten by the President and most other Americans Thursday, wasn't the "fowl" on the menu for the first Thanksgiving, some authorities claim. They say the birds eaten were roast wild duck and geese.

Cranberry sauce, considered almost indispensable on today's Thanksgiving menu, definitely wasn't included in the first one. Rosy red cranberries were found dotting the New England bogs when the Pilgrims landed, but apparently it took them a few years to learn to cook them in an appetizing manner.

Also missing were potatoes, either sweet or white. Though just as American as the other Thanksgiving foods, potatoes had a long trip to make up from South and Central America before they arrived on the Thanksgiving menu. They were cultivated in Virginia in the early seventeenth century, but their first recorded appearance in New England was in 1764.

Celery, which will be served cooked at the President's dinner table Thursday, is a fairly recent addition to the list of traditional Thanksgiving foods. Though it grew wild in many places in this country and Europe, it went unnoticed by the epicures for centuries. Finally, however, it was discovered and gardeners began cultivating it. In a Thanksgiving picture by Winslow Homer, published in Harper's Weekly in 1858, a tall glass stand of celery has a prominent place on the table.



THIS attractively appointed Thanksgiving table would make quite a contrast with the one from which the Pilgrims ate that first Thanksgiving dinner in 1621. True, the Pilgrims had plenty of fine white linen, for it was cheap in Holland when they left there. But they used silver and pewter instead of china, silver, and glass; there were no forks then, only knives and spoons; and as for that colorful vegetable centerpiece—the Puritans would have served it cooked!

PEAS, asparagus, and other out-of-season vegetables—brought garden-fresh to the table by quick freezing processes—add a modern note to today's Thanksgiving menu

THOUGH the Pilgrims didn't serve it on that first Thanksgiving back in 1621, pumpkin pie has become a traditional dessert for Turkey Day through the years. President Truman's having mince meat pie for a change this year, but many other Americans will be eating wedges like those pictured above—with or without the whipped cream. Pumpkin is one of the many native American foods associated with Thanksgiving Day. Long before the Pilgrims landed, the Indians were planting this golden-yellow vegetable in their fields of maize along the Atlantic Coast. It early became an article of diet in the Plymouth colony,

Tomorrow's Peace Plate

For a simple night-before-Thanksgiving dinner Citizens Food Committee suggests an easy oven dinner. On the menu are:

Easy Oven Dinner
Baked Potatoes Relish
Stewed Dried Apricots or Sliced Bananas
Heated rolls

EASY OVEN DINNER

1 pound hamburger
2 tablespoons onions, finely chopped
2 tablespoons green paper, chopped
¼ cup cornmeal
1 teaspoon chili powder
1½ teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg
¼ cup fat
½ cup milk
1½ cups canned tomatoes
¼ cup flour
6 medium potatoes, pared and cut lengthwise in ½-inch slices
¼ cup melted fat

Combined first 10 ingredients and mix together. Form into 12 balls. Roll in flour and brown in ¼ cup hot fat in skillet. Add remaining flour and tomatoes. Cover and bake in very hot oven (450F.) 35-45 minutes.

Bake the potatoes along with the meat balls in a shallow baking pan. Dip the potato slices in ¼ cup melted fat and arrange them in pan. Bake in very hot oven (450F.) 35-45 minutes, or until potatoes are tender and brown. Turn once during baking. Serves six.

Wellesley Fund Reaches $1,000,000

The first million dollars in the $7,500,000 Wellesley College seventy-fifth anniversary fund campaign has been secured, Mrs. Harold H. Burton, local chairman of the campaign, announced today. President Mildred McAfee Horton notified Mrs. Burton of the million-dollar milestone.

Conveying her thanks on behalf of the college for the support of alumnae and friends of the college, Mrs. Horton added that it was most appropriate that the million-dollar mark should be reached just prior to Thanksgiving.

Washington has contributed $20,000, or 13 per cent of its $150,000 quota, and the Washington Wellesley Club will be working industriously between now and June, 1950, to attain the final goal.

The $7,500,000 fund is being raised to meet Wellesley's most urgent needs. Two million dollars will be earmarked for faculty salaries; two million dollars for scholarships which give aid to 25 per cent of Wellesley's students; $1,500,000 for a freshman dormitory, and two million dollars for a new library which will afford special facilities for independent study and research.

Has Anyone Told You?

RICH IN THE Scandinavian influence is the massive new silver pattern "Northern Lights." It's the first sterling pattern introduced by its manufacturer, one of the leading silver companies, in seven years. There is deep carving on the back as well as the front of each piece. In the fork and spoon, the carving of the handle is repeated at the base of the shaft.

REFRESHING SLEEP with no fuss or feathers is assured by the new air pillow made of "vinylite." The pillow can be inflated to suit individual tastes—made firm or soft, plump or slim. It's a boon to hay fever and asthma sufferers who are allergic to down and dust. Being easy to store when deflated, it's handy for use on the studio couch used as a "spare" bed for unexpected guests.

A NEW "SUNLIGHT" INGREDIENT which is said to solve the age-old problem of whitening clothes has just been added to a leading brand of granulated soap. The manufacturers say thousands of tests have proven the new ingredient prevents the usual tendency of white clothes to yellow. It also brightens colors.

Short Cuts for Good Cooking

Cleaning vegetables with a wire scour pad is a trick you will want to try, suggests Better Homes & Gardens Magazine. It rubs carrots smooth and clean with a minimum of waste. It scrapes new potatoes much easier and faster than a knife. Keep a special wire pad on hand just for vegetable cleanup; rinse well under the faucet after each use.

Whipping thin cream is easy if you chill it in the refrigerator freezing tray until partially frozen, or of a mush consistency. Beat as you would regular whipping cream.

Makes Dishwashing Easier

Boil the discolored coffee pot for a short time in a strong solution of borax and wash in the usual manner. It will come from its bath beautifully clean.

When finished with dishes that have contained eggs, flour or milk, put them to soak in cold water. Dishes that have contained sugar or greasy articles should be soaked in hot water.

Soak the soiled meat grinder in water to cover, alternating hot and cold, and then hold under the cold water faucet so that strong stream can run through the perforations. Now wash as usual and the job will not be irksome.

Just the Right Card to Carry Your Greeting

Christmas Messages Are Back Again In Wide Assortment of Designs, Fine Papers and Colorful Trimmings

By Bessie Hackett

HAVE you seen this year's array of Christmas cards?

They're beautiful . . . artistic . . . vividly colored . . . and they're going fast . . .

So tarry not! That's a tip from the Postoffice Department, which urges that Christmas cards be selected and addressed "before the rush of Christmas activities begins so that names and addresses will be written clearly and accurately, ensuring prompt delivery." Cards for out-of-State delivery, say postal authorities, should be mailed by December 10, those for local delivery by December 15.

And if you're interested in statistics, it is estimated that 1½ billion cards will be exchanged by Americans this Yuletide—an average of more than 40 per family. And more than 50 million dollars worth of stamps will be sold to carry these holiday greetings.

The Personal Card

THOSE of you who've been thinking of "personalized" greetings but haven't done anything about it yet, are getting help from some of the local stores. At least one place we visited said they were accepting orders until about December 6 and suggested the customer could take the envelopes home to address while the name was being printed on the cards.

Those partial to real art will find exciting contrasts presented this year by the American Artists Group. Newsworthy is the publication of famous masterpieces from the National Gallery of Art as a companion feature to the cards created by contemporary American artists.

Reproductions from paintings in the Mellon and Kress collections include Raphael's famous "Alba Madonna," Fra Fillipo Lippi's "Madonna and Child," Petrus Christus "The Nativity." Interpreting the religious theme, our living American painters reflect differences as striking as those found in the old masters. Lauren Ford fuses the spirit of her own Bethlehem, Conn., with the spirit of historic Bethlehem to present her Madonna and Child in a typical New England farm setting. And there is a beautiful new painting by Rockwell Kent, who contends that the Christmas card has "brought the artists and the people together on the happiest and friendliest occasion of the year." He captures the spirit of starlight serenity over expansive farmland, guarded by distant mountains.

Religious Group Is Favorite

OUR OWN favorite in the religious group are the new Renaissance cards. Inspired by the windows of European cathedrals and copies of hand-illuminated documents, the manufacturer has assembled a collection of unusually beautiful parchment-like greeting cards. Through a special hot-stamping process, the design is relieved in foil, with gold predominating. Sometimes as many as five colors are used on a single card. The text weaves scroll-like through the design. One reads simply, "Gloria in Excelsis Deo." Another bears the old English greeting:

"Heap on more wood!
The wind is chill;
But let it whistle as it will,
We'll keep our Christmas merry still!"

Men who prefer Christmas greetings with masculine vitality will find a wide selection covering every phase of the sports world. Jon Corbino, Sheldon Pennoyer and Andrew Wyeth have captured the exhilaration of skiing; nostalgic joy is in store for hunters who receive one of the cards by J. D. Knap, Hans Kleiber, Paul C. Burns or William H. Schaldach; C. W. Anderson enthusiasts will enjoy his new pictures of colts and thoroughbreds, and fishermen will appreciate the seascapes by John Whorf, Edward Lewandowski and Anthony Thieme.

Not to be overlooked is the collection by Mary Robertson Moses, better known as Grandma Moses. This 86-year-old little woman who was born on a farm near Greenwich, N. Y., didn't start painting until 10 years ago, when she was stricken with arthritis. Her authentic reproductions of the American scene—as remembered from her youth and observed through her window—have earned her several New York art shows.

Nostalgia for New Yorker

NO CARD will touch more poignantly the heart of a New Yorker far from home than Yvonne Pene du Bois' painting of skaters at Rockefeller Center; Marc K. Heine's watercolor of Gotham's skyscrapers tilted at crazy angles and topped with burning candles; Erika Weihs' "Madonna Over the City," or Dimitri Kessels' photograph, "City at Dusk."

Even if you've already decided on the cards you want, give yourself a treat and ask to see the Christmas panorama of America, depicting the holiday mood throughout our great country—from the gift-hung Christmas tree and carving the turkey to the traffic cop at a snowy intersection.

Cards for children have been specially processed to appeal to touch as well as sight. Teddy bears, elephants, reindeer and other animals are covered with soft, furry composition and some of the large cards are fashioned to stand alone.

Besides the cards with artistic appeal, all the best-loved designs are back . . . the grinning snowmen . . . Santa Claus traveling by train, horse-drawn engine, bicycle, airplane and reindeer . . . poinsettias . . . red candles . . . the Wise Men and Star of Bethlehem.

Shortages Seem Over

SHORTAGES of fine paper, printing facilities and manpower, and decorative materials have been largely overcome. Cards with plastic panels or all-plastic ones have increased fivefold and a process has been developed for printing on slick surfaces.

De luxe Christmas cards . . . such as those great big endearments to "Sweetheart," "My Wife," or "Mother" . . . feature puffs of satin with rich detailing which can be traced to a wartime process for printing aviators' maps on silk and rayon. There are also special greetings for Couple to Couple, My Boss, Secret Pal, Friend With a Christmas Birthday, etc.

In the lower-price brackets a note of luxury is achieved with the use of sparkle dust, screens of frosted paper, real lace at windows, bits of feather, cotton wool, or yarn, and inset rhinestones.

Yes, Christmas cards have come a long way in the 100 years since the first one was designed in London in 1842 by William Maw Egley, an engraver's apprentice. Today they have become one of the world's most delightful social customs. And this year's variety makes it possible to remember friends and relatives with "just the right card."

Author Sulkin Experiencing 'Happy Letdown'

"Writing a book is like having a baby," declares Edith Sulkin, author of "Continent in Limbo." "When the task is finished there's a happy letdown."

The petite, brown-eyed, blond-haired writer went to Europe in 1946 to join her husband, who was northern European representative of the United States International Book Association "I went to take American books over to Europe," she laughs, "and ended up by bringing a book back."

Her main purpose in writing the book was to bring international events to the level of the layman by presenting individual problems. She tells the human side of the people of England, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia.

Born in Moscow, Mrs. Sulkin left Russia when a small child and lived in various countries on the Continent. Educated at Queens College in London, she speaks four languages in addition to English. These are Polish, German, Russian and Czech.

Mrs. Sulkin, who will be one of four guest speakers at The Washington Post's Book and Author Luncheon today, 1 p. m., at the Statler Hotel, describes herself as "a permanent refugee" because she has lived in so many different lands.

Princess to Share Her Trousseau

Princess Elizabeth is sharing the trousseau sent her by American designers with other British girls who are being married during November.

In a letter to the New York Dress Institute, the princess thanked members for the "strikingly generous present," and described her plan of sharing her "good fortune."

"I feel," the letter reads in part, "that in the present time of difficulties and restrictions suffered by so many, I could not keep all the dresses for myself, and I should like to share them with other British girls who are, like me, being married during this November. I will keep and wear five of the dresses myself, and both I and the other brides who share my good fortune will long remember a present which is so typical of the kindness and generosity for which Americans have always had such a high reputation."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man Insists on Sharing Infant-Care of His Firstborn, a Son; and Yet 'Sees Red' When Baby Is Wet, Angry or Resistant to Feeding

DEAR MARY HAYWORTH: Our youngster, Mark, 9 months old, is very bright for his age and his outstanding trait is a sunny disposition. When I care for him, he is a darling; but as soon as my husband takes over, it is just plain bedlam.

He wants to share in our child's upbringing, with which I agree, but I deplore his methods. If Mark cries for any reason, my husband sees red. If baby's diaper is wet, he smacks him. If baby touches anything he shouldn't, he yells at him. If he is feeding Mark and Mark is crying, he continues to force food into his mouth.

If I try to intervene to make peace, he shoves me aside and drops baby into his crib from a height of one or two feet. I have had our physician lecture him, after which he is gentle for about two days; then the rough stuff starts again. Our friends and relatives are appalled at the way he does things.

A College Man, Generally Liked

THIS has been going on since Mark was born; and it is difficult to understand why a man with a college education, liked by all, would do these things. It is natural that I would take the baby's part, when he can't defend himself; but I am afraid he will develop a neurosis and a special dislike for his father.

I do my best to work out a schedule that leaves the least possible baby-care to my husband; but there is always something, and if he handles the baby at all and baby starts to cry, my husband's short temper triggers off trouble.

When he is sufficiently calm to talk intelligently, he agrees that what he does is wrong; but he can't give a concrete answer as to why he does these things. He always promises to do better next time; but next time is always the same. He has an open mind to everything but his child. Can you help us to see where the trouble lies, and what to do about it? C. G.

Why His Ambition To Be Wet Nurse?

DEAR C. G.: In all probability the trouble lies in your husband's trying to make like a wet nurse, for which role nature never intended him, and to which role he is most unsympathetic by temperament, moreover.

It is commendable that he wishes to share in the child's upbringing; but he doesn't have to trade pants for skirts, figuratively speaking, or play bull-in-the-china-shop in woman's domain, to do that.

At its natural solid best, a father's share in a child's upbringing in infant years consists in giving the mother economic security, social protection and peace of mind in fostering the babe's physical and emotional well-being. The success of her undertaking depends in large measure upon his performance in that respect.

Man's Behavior Is Destructive

OF COURSE, if he has a "way" with helpless creatures, and relieves his wife of baby-tending at a specified time—say an hour—daily, thus giving baby special awareness of his dependable presence and tender interest, he contributes doubly to baby's sense of family security—so essential to healthy growth—and likewise enriches his personal experience.

Your husband's performance is destructive, alas. He is fighting you and baby, too; doubtless because on the unconscious level of feeling he is profoundly humiliated, and therefore deeply resentful, that you and baby so little appreciate, and indeed so unanimously deplore, his misconceived efforts to be—or to make like—the world's prize papa.

Your championship of baby's yowling resistance to his nervous, clumsy and frightening (if well meant) busybodyism is an intolerable affront to his ego, I suppose; and that's why his determination to "help" grows more tense, and his reaction to frustration increasingly ugly — and seemingly inexplicable, even to him.

Neurotic Ego Is Involved

THE $64 question is why he is so ego-involved in wanting to figure as the dominant parent in his son's experience from date of birth; and why so enraged by his failure to please in the role of wet-nurse.

The fact that he has been "liked by all" in other relationships suggests that perhaps he places undue neurotic prestige-value upon, and strives irrationally for, "first" place in everyone's affection, and feels terribly ego-threatened if such strivings are blocked on any front,—as by his son in this instance, who knows by instinct that dad wasn't cut out for the woman's work he insists on muffing.

For advice: (1) To both of you, read "The Rights of Infants," by Dr. Margaret Ribble (Columbia University Press). (2) To father, in the name of common sense, relax. Leave infant-care to mother, since you've got no knack for it. Wait your proper turn to get close to Mark,—i. e., when he begins to walk and talk. That's the way most robustly male good fathers do. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

A Catch-All

Whenever there is danger of food cooking over in the oven, such as a juicy pie, sticky cinnamon bun, etc., slide your cookie tin in the oven under the pan. It will be much easier to wash off the tin than to clean out the bottom of the oven.

A Rubber Drainboard

A rubber drainboard or a rubber mat placed over the enameled drain will dull the sound of washing dishes and lessen hazards of dishwashing a great deal.

Esther Williams' curves are proof that swimming will fix anything—it slims off bulges, develops curves and takes the kinks out of nerves

Working Girl Needs Double Life To Hold a Job and Husband

By Ida Jean Kain

Lean back in your chair and relax, girls. Make believe you have nothing pressing to do for the next little while. Kick off your shoes if you like, and get in a mellow mood to enjoy the delightful interview I had with Esther Williams . . . in her bare feet!

"You don't mind if I don't wear my shoes, do you?" Adding, "It's so good to leave off these high heels."

Mind! We were off to a perfect start—this couldn't be a stuffy story.

As she sat tailor-fashion on the cherry-red velvet davenport, we covered a lot of conversational territory in a brief 30 minutes, and with the greatest of ease. I got to know the real Esther—and she's quite a girl. She has a relaxing trick that works like a charm. When pressed, she makes believe she has all the time there is. Using this technique, when she has just 45 minutes for a siesta, she pretends she has all afternoon—and that way drops off to sleep.

Perhaps I'd better mention, just in passing, her figure. I've named other girls as having the best figure in the movies. I take it all back. Esther has the best figure I've ever seen, on land or sea. If all you girls could see her curves, swimming pools would be crowded. She said to tell you that swimming will fix anything that is wrong with anyone's figure. If you're too plump, it's slimming; if too thin, it develops. If you're stooped, it mends your posture, takes up the slack in the triceps and perks up the pectrals and puts a neat padding over the collarbones. What more could you ask!

Esther is 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 126 pounds, measures—bust 36, waist 26, hips 36. She's bubbling with health and looks as if she ate three square meals a day, which she does. She never diets. Pinned down, however, this streamlined star doesn't overeat. She said it's so easy to shrink your stomach and not to be overly hungry. And owing to swimming training, she never formed the habit of eating sweets. See . . . it's habit.

Her Idea on Divorce

When I brought up the subject of divorce in Hollywood, Esther took exception to my excluding the rest of the country and remarked that today's divorce rate everywhere is alarming. I think she has hit upon a plan that could help working couples stay happily married. Her advice to the working girl is to lead a double life and at 5 o'clock stop being a career woman. This goes for executives who give orders all day, for movie stars who play the role of glamour girls, and for all 9 to 5 girls. A complete switch from business to domesticity lets you forget the workaday cares and helps you star in the role of wife. As you know, Esther is Mrs. Ben Gage in private life. If she ever forgets, Ben says: "Honey, you're home now—remember? Put on your carpet slippers and relax." She does.

Later that day at a reception, Esther, in a gold-colored lame suit and high heels, looked every inch the glamorous movie queen . . . but still so natural and friendly that a little old lady said to her: "We just love you out in Oklahoma!"

Heavy Dumplings

Take a tip from an old housekeeper and if you are certain hubby will be home at a given time, wait until he arrives before you steam those dumplings, because if your calculations are not correct and he is late the dumplings will be heavy from overcooking. After all they only take from 10 to 15 minutes to cook.

Teach Boys to Be Proud to Stand Tall

If your son has grown so tall he towers above his schoolmates and boys of his own age, he is apt to be self-conscious and awkward. Teach him early that it will not be long before his body will fill out proportionately and he will be glad of his height. Be sure he stands straight and carries himself well as he is apt to slump a bit to cover that "too tall" feeling.

Don't Fret About Shortness Of Old Fur Coat This Year

DO THE NEW hemlines mean that fur coats have to be longer, too? Emphatically no, according to famed fur designer Esther Dorothy.

Miss Dorothy, whose fur creations annually make fashion history, is opposed to the shin-banging fur coat on the grounds that it looks heavy, cumbersome and blizzardy. She particularly warned women whose fur coats were bought last year or before, not to try to have them lengthened.

"Lengthening fur coats is a very complicated business and not at all necessary with the present wide variety of lengths which are considered smart," she said. "All lengths from 30 inches to 46 inches are right if they are becoming to the woman's own height and legs."

Rather than worrying about the length of an old fur coat, this well-known expert suggests experimenting with shoulder pads, either removing them altogether or thinning them down about half.

"Soft shouldered fur coats are more elegant and feminine and removing the pads does not affect the shape or skins of the coat," Miss Dorothy said.

AN EXCITING lift can be given your old fur coat by adding another fur as banding to cover worn fur collar, cuffs and even the hemline, Miss Dorothy revealed. Having strongly sponsored such combinations as ermine and mink, sable and broadtail, ermine and Alaska sealskin and white mink with Persian lamb, the designer said.

"It is hard, if not impossible, to add new skins to old of the same animal and blend them well. But a completely new and very elegant effect can be gained at comparatively little cost by adding a contrasting fur to the edge of a plain fur coat. Any good furrier can do it in a short time and with delightful effect."

Your Questions on Homemaking

How can I remove perspiration stains from a royal blue crepe dress? E. McC.

If the perspiration stains are fresh, dampen them and hold over the fumes from an open ammonia bottle. If they are old, sponge lightly with vinegar. Colors changed by perspiration cannot always be restored, however, particularly if the stain is an old one.

I have some white corduroy of good quality that I wish to dye royal blue for baby's overalls. Will a home-dyed fabric wash successfully? S. W. R.

Yes, if you boil the fabric in dye-bath and are careful to rinse out all the surplus dye afterward, you'll find that dyed materials will launder satisfactorily.

Can you tell me how to clean and polish hand-wrought copper? S. S.

Use a good quality metal polish and apply it with a soft cloth. Let polish dry thoroughly. Rub with a clean, soft cloth to a deep luster.

I thought you might like to know that there's an "of-the-month" club especially for children, located here in the Washington area. It's the Toy-a-Month Club, and the address is the Professional Building, Hyattsville, Md. For $1 a month plus postage, a new toy will be sent to your child each month. The toys, I understand, are selected by a capable child psychologist, who picks out a toy each month for boys and girls in each age group from infancy to 9 years. R. G.

What is the best way to bleach a white wool beret? I tried a chlorine bleach, which turned it yellow. M. B.

Most of the dye-removing bleaches sold at drug stores will bleach white wool satisfactorily. Another good safe bleach that leaves woolens soft and fluffy is a solution of 1 level teaspoon sodium perborate with 1 pint hydrogen peroxide. However, since chlorine bleach can be quite injurious to wool, you may have damaged the fibers in the beret so badly that its good looks cannot be restored.

To E. H. C.: Can you write me what the white Christmas tree is made of? Then I'll be better able to advise you.

I just bought two lamp shades which are of silk crepe material, I think. These shades are covered with cellophane. Would it be advisable to remove this outer wrapping or leave it on as a protection against dust? Several people have informed me that it will cause streaks to form on the shade. T. L. M.

Cellophane coverings keep much dust from getting on shades, but there are several dangers in leaving them on for a prolonged period. Often heat causes the cellophane to shrink. If it's wrapped tightly around the shade, it will make it buckle. If the shade isn't colorfast, it may fade in streaks, or dust may sift through cracks in the cellophane and make streaks. There are certainly arguments on both sides in the matter of leaving on or taking off cellophane. If the shades were mine, I think I'd loosen the cellophane if its tight, leave it on until it begins to look a bit dusty and dingy, then remove it.

Will you tell me how to clean real Carara marble? I have two statues I brought from Italy and don't want to run any risk with them. C. N. P.

Dampen a soft cloth with raw linseed oil and wipe soil off the lamp bases. Then wipe off the oil thoroughly with a clean soft cloth. Rub with a small quantity of paste wax to restore luster.

How can I remove rust stains on a white eyelet blouse? V. M. E.

Sprinkle stain with salt, moisten with lemon juice, and expose to direct sunlight. Keep moist with lemon juice until stain disappears.

Several readers with extra pieces of china to sell have written to this column recently. The china includes: Eight demi-tasse cups and a saucer and creamer in the Floreal pattern of Noritake china; almost a full set of china marked "Royal Sometuka-Nippon"; Noritake china in the Oxford pattern; four saucers marked "B & Co., France—I Bernard & Co., Limoges," decorated with pink roses, blue flowers and gold bands, and two demi-tasse saucers marked "Escolier de Cristal—Paris." Any readers interested in this china may contact those who wish to dispose of it through this column.

Concentrated cod liver oil was spattered on washable wallpaper. We tried removing it with a cleaning fluid which only made the spatters spread so they are larger than they were. Then I tried soap and water with no luck. Is there any way to remove the spots? D. W. C.

Make a paste of Fuller's earth and carbon tetrachloride. Apply thickly to the spots, thinning out at edges beyond soiled area. Let remain until thoroughly dry. Wipe off carefully with a cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride. Repeat the treatment if necessary. Caution: It is wise to test this treatment on an inconspicuous area first, as certain pigments "bleed" when carbon tetrachloride is applied.

How can I refinish a wooden salad bowl to which a newspaper stuck? I imagine it would be best to clean the inside thoroughly and leave it alone to absorb the oils and seasonings, but the outside and painted decorations look very bad. G. S. K.

Have you been able to remove the bits of newspaper? If not, try soaking with wet cloths. Washing with plenty of soap and water should remove any printer's ink stains it may have on it. If it's appearance is then presentable, wax the outside with paste or liquid wax. If the painted designs are badly damaged and you're feeling enterprising, you can take them off with paint remover and redecorate the bowl.

Can you refer me to a bulletion of information on refinishing ordinary furniture? I have an assortment of pieces such as bookcases, coffee table and stand that I would like to bring into some harmony for use in a room together. I suppose painting would be a solution, but I'd prefer bleaching or staining.

The University of Maryland Extension Service issues a bulletin entitled "New Touch on Old Furniture" (No. 49) which should be helpful to you. One copy will be sent free of charge if you write to the university extension service at College Park, Md. There are also a number of books on the subject in the public libraries and in local bookstores. One of them is "Revive Your Old Furniture," by Louise Sloane (published by Studio Publications, Inc.). There are also chapters on furniture refinishing in "The American Home Encyclopedia," by Dorothy Pace (Caxton House), and "America's Housekeeping Book," compiled by New York Herald Tribune Home Institute (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York).

What is the correct place to put embroidered initials on plain dresser scarfs? J. K. S.

The most usual places for putting embroidered initials on dresser scarfs are: (1) at one end of the scarf about 2 inches up from the hem in the center, and (2) in the center of the scarf, about 2 inches back from the front hem.

Mrs. Gallico Wants to Know

How, Oh How, Can Man Prevent Little Woman's Tidying Spree

By Paul Gallico

Without seeming to appear a professional carper with regard to the female of the species, for whom, as I have pointed out before, I have nothing but the highest regard, I wish some student of human nature or married gent would inform me what it is that compels the little woman to go straightening up the desk of her ever-loving mate so that papers which have been left in carefully calculated disarray are committed to neat and handy little piles, labeled and ticketed in such an efficient and housewifely manner that they vanish forever from the ken of man.

I cannot find papers on a neat desk. I cannot keep my beloved, my helpmeet, my life's partner from making order thereon. I have tried threats and cajolery, brandished clubs, pikes, halberds and morgensterns before her and conversely made offers to shower her with diamonds, emeralds, furs, country estates, yachts and motor cars, if only she will keep her delicate pink fingers out of the finely ordered chaos I maintain on my workbench.

Nothing helps. Some inner compulsion that animates woman is stronger than she. Sooner or later I will arrive home from some brief trip to recognize at once something hideously foreign about my study and my wife in hiding. It has happened again.

Can't Find a Thing

There must be in your midst, my readers, some who have a photographic mind for the location of every article, bill, manuscript, letter contract, document and billet-doux buried 10 deep, or scattered helter-skelter over a table top, but who become blank and helpless in the face of ordered files, neat heaps, and folders labeled—"bills," "receipts," "important mail," "orders from nice editors," "rejections from blind, illiterate editors, etc. Once such a tabulation has been made, I am through. I cannot find a thing. I won't even look for it.

It is an entirely different matter when you are in an office and everything is kept neatly filed away and all you have to do is push the buzzer and say, "Miss Twiggens, that letter I wrote last March to Wumble & Sons about the subcontract for batteries for electric eels, will you get it for me, and their reply please?"

Invade Man's Domain

But to return to this passion for tidying up a man's domain, some ladies not content with merely straightening up the top of the desk invade the drawers, and "put things" away and "change things around a bit for the better," so that the carbon paper is now where the old bills used to be, the pencils erasers and clips have been transferred from the left side to the right side, the stationery has been scattered and the ink has vanished completely. It takes a man six to eight months to memorize the contents of desk drawers and where to reach for things when he wants them. In 10 minutes the Little Woman can destroy his system utterly.

And this, mind you, is the same illogical angel who screams for the police if you so much as set foot across the threshold of her boudoir, or invade the middle drawer of her vanity table in search of a nail file or safety pin, and who calls for the fire department and the rescue squad if she catches you even hovering about her kitchen or her pantry.

Search not for the high, the low, or the middle justice in these matters for there is none, and as far as I know, not any workable deterrent either, unless you know of one not yet tried.

If you know of an answer, kindly advise.

Spur to Child's Development Is Nutritive Diet and Praise

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It's a strange parent who does not, by wishing if not by action, tend to hurry her child into its next stage of development. Watching a baby's personality and intelligence unfold calls for patience. Parents are eager to have the baby smile at them, pull itself to a sitting and then a standing position and voice its thoughts in words.

Eager for the baby to sit upright, they pull it upright and then show their disappointment when the baby folds up in the middle or topples to one side.

As soon as the baby stiffens its knees and can be raised to its feet because its knees are rigid, they take this as an invitation to teach him to walk. So with hands under arms they propel him around the room, exulting when he touches the tips of his toes to the floor.

And, as for talking, their worry and dismay are genuine when they cannot get him to repeat words or when he uses an imperious finger to show them what he wants and keeps his mouth closed stubbornly.

All development is variable. Most children can sit up at the age of 6 months, with nothing but their own rigid backbones as support. But there are well and healthy children who cannot manage this before the eighth month. And propping them up and making them sit in no way increases their capacity to do this.

Many a baby walks around his pen at 7 months and walks at 10, while other healthy children are content to sit until they are well past 1 year and may not be walking independently until their 14th month. No one can make a child walk, nor is it necessary to teach him how to walk. Given the physical strength and the opportunity to be active, the know-how of walking is inborn. The child will walk when he knows he has the strength to do so.

Talking is an art that some children, especially girls—and no digs intended at women—manage earlier than men. But some children can say five words at 1 year and 200 at 2 years, and others get along with grunts and gestures and little else until well past the second year.

The best any parent can do is to give the child an environment that is rich in interest and stimulation, a diet that is high in nutritive values, and then use praise and admiration to inspire the child to do the utmost of which he is mentally and physically capable.

Handling the Child Tattler

Tattling must be coped with immediately if there is to be harmony among the children of the household. It is usually started by a feeling of rivalry between the children and naturally kept up if mother will listen to one child and then punish the other for the thing repeated. It is better to ignore a few offenses until the children see nothing will be gained by their telling on the other. Tattling causes an ugly feeling throughout the home.

Will Always Fit Nicely

Baby's woolen shirts are very apt to stretch out of shape around the neck along the shell-stitch scallop. If you will take a narrow white lingerie ribbon and run it through the shell stitch and then stitch it in place on the sewing machine, the little neck will hold its shape until the garment is worn out.

Aprons for Your Guests

If you have no maid and you wisely make your entertaining informal so that your friends come out into the kitchen and help with the dishes, by all means provide them with dainty aprons to wear over their dresses. Remember they are more apt to be in better frocks than the one in which you have cooked and would like to go home free of spots.

Landlord Seeks Couples and Babies As Best Tenants

Portland, Me., Nov. 24 (AP).—Families with young babies make the best tenants, says Gunder Rasmussen who advertised for one today on the basis of considerable experimenting.

"Preference given to families with one or two babies," Rasmussen, a contractor, builder and real estate broker, said in his advertisement about a five-room flat.

Until a year ago, Rasmussen owned a six-apartment building in which only mothers just home from the hospital with babies or expectant mothers were eligible for occupancy. He reached these conclusions:

"The mothers are almost always at home. There are no drinking parties. The young fathers are devoted and very responsible. The rent money is always ready."

"And no one complains about babies crying if the others have babies," he added.

The vacant five-rooms-and-bath apartment he is advertising is in the dwelling he occupies. There are also three one-room apartments—all occupied by men.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Grandpa and Bill Both Fooled by Disappearing F St.

"My grandfather tells me that there is no F st. in Southeast Washington," writes 10-year-old Johnny Bennett of 518 13th st. ne.

"When I asked him why, he said he didn't know, and suggested that I write to you. How about it?

Well, Johnny, I didn't recall any F st. in Southeast, either. But when I looked at the big map in our city room, there it was—in four segments.

First, it runs for one block between 1st and 2d sts., where it loses itself in South Carolina ave.

That's the last of F st. until it suddenly pops up on the other side of the Anacostia River for a brief appearance between Fairlawn and Minnesota aves.

Then it encounters the broad expanses of Fort Dupont Park, and again vanishes.

But 'way out at Texas ave., F st. resumes again, and runs to 46th st. And its fourth and final segment is between St. Louis st. and the District line.

In other words, Johnny, when anybody tells you, "Oh, yes, it's easy to find your way around Washington," remember that the proper answer is:

"Sure it is—if you carry a 6-foot map with you."

TO ERR IS HUMAN

Mrs. S. D. P. calls my attention to a recent transposition of the pictures of Dale Evans, a movie actress, and Maj. Gen. Clifton Cates, new commandant of the Marine Corps.

The mistake made the captions under both pictures quite pointless, of course—and called to mind similar errors, also made in print shops manned by mere humans.

The night of the Hauptmann verdict I stopped press on a Midwest paper when I noticed a transposition of "The Infant Victim" and "The Brutal Killer."

And one of the legends of the newspaper profession is the story of what happened when the old icehouse in a certain city burned to the ground on the same day the mayor's wife died.

Under a two-column picture of the departed lady, there appeared the errant caption:

"Old Eyesore Gone at Last."

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. A. L. Townshend, 3731 Morrison st. nw., and F. J. Acosta, 2814 31st st. se.: Thanks for the tokens. They're on their way to Children's Hospital.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Year-old male dog, part German shepherd, part airedale. His one fault is his fondness for chasing cats." (Pleasant 8566.)

ARE HUGHES KIDDING?

Harold Hughes of 1324 Fort Stevens dr. nw. submits the following cartoon and asks:

"Is this what your office looks like?"

HALF OF TWO BITS

When we ran an item about an old coin several days ago, the headline asked whether anybody had change for a 3-cent piece.

H. K. Hickman of 2001 Branch ave. se. says, "Sure, I'll change it; how would you like it?"

If you like variety, you can take six half-cent pieces, minted in 1805, 1806 and 1809.

District Liner Hickman also offers to make some novel change for a quarter. For instance, you can take a nickel and a 20-cent piece minted in 1875.

Or, if you prefer, you can have your two bits in one-bit pieces—two 12½ cent coins which were issued in 1807.

After a recital like that, the British system of pounds and shillings seems relatively simple.

NOTE OF THANKS

"Thanksgiving time is an appropriate time for me to say 'thanks' to you," writes Marie A. Ruddell of 6402 Ridgewood ave., Chevy Chase, Md.

"I'm one of the recipients of your Give-Away items. Some time ago Mrs. Rosenberg offered some size 4½ shoes through your column, and I got two pairs of smart, comfortable shoes from her.

"She wouldn't accept anything from me—not even a coin for the children's piggybank. So I'm taking this occasion to thank her for her unusual generosity."

What's even more unusual, Marie, is that anybody in this day and age can remain appreciative for more than five minutes.

ADD SIGNS

A. D. K. of 2222 Eye st. nw. is fascinated by the sign in the window of a shop near 3rd and H sts. nw. It says:

"We Set and Sharpen Hand Saws."

"Can't you just see them," asks our correspondent, "a-settin' and a-sharpenin'?"

And then, of course, there's the oldie used by many a laundry:

"Don't kill your wife—let us do the dirty work."

PUNSTER'S LAMENT

My bathroom mirror sends to me
Reflections of my deep-laid sorrow.
For in that glass I plainly see
What's hair today is gone tomorrow.

NEW YORK.—Further exposes in the Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers story—which first broke in this space 24 days ago—will concern the award of Army & Navy "E's." General Meyers was on the "E" Board . . . Two days after Beatrice Lillie arrives here December 9, she'll start recording an album of songs from "Inside U.S.A." to beat the January 1 ban on recordings . . . Former Gov. Ellis Arnall is completing his second book. It will be called "What the People Want" . . . Alfred Hitchcock is coming to N. Y. to select a supporting cast of young actors and actresses from the Broadway stage for the James Stewart picture, "Rope."

BUSINESS DEPT.: At the White House Press Photographers dinner, Jimmy Durante did his usual routine—tearing the piano apart and flinging the pieces about with much commotion. Durante then explained that he couldn't do an encore because he had to catch the 11:40 train . . . When President Truman started to make his informal address, he was interrupted by much noise and commotion from somewhere behind him. "That's just Jimmy," said Truman, "doing it to the train."

FOREIGN DISPATCH: The Rome Daily American tried to penetrate the Soviet zone of influence. The editors first sent copies of their newspaper to a Bucharest news vendor. He replied by stating that he liked the paper but couldn't sell many copies because of the reason enclosed — a typically censored copy of the Rome Daily American, from which so much had been cut that it looked like a paper doily.

The editors tried a different system: They sent a copy to Yugoslovia's Minister of Information every day for two months, and then inquired if the paper could be sold in Belgrade. The Minister replied that it was a fine newspaper, and he could see no objection to its sale and distribution. The editors spent eight weeks trying to arrange a way of transporting the papers to Yugoslavia. Then, before a single copy was sent, a letter arrived from another Yugoslav Minister ordering them not to send any more, because unsold copies were piling up on newsstands and people refused to buy any.

ART DEPT.: The Associated American Artists in California will open its new Beverly Hills gallery December 6. It will be a three-day event attended by every screen star in Hollywood . . . The opening will be televised. The board of directors will warn all the stars, as they arrive, that if they are under contract to a studio they'd better use a side entrance because studio contracts prohibit a star from making unauthorized television appearances.

THICKER HAIR WITHIN 6 MONTHS!
—with treatments that are pleasant as a shampoo!

R. W. Farrell, Trichologist
Just think of it! Persons accepted for treatment can be absolutely sure of wonderful thicker hair within only 6 months! Think what a difference in your appearance. Think what a worry off your mind! And treatments are so pleasant, too. No greasy salves. No sticky ointments. No foul-smelling chemicals. HAIR EXPERTS' scientific treatments are clean and refreshing as a shampoo!
Yes I take the short, weak "fuzz" of the cases accepted for treatment and stimulate it so that within six months it is replaced with strong hair on its way to normal healthy growth.
OUT Go the "Hair-Killers"!
A thicker head of hair for you calls for two things: First, we must clean out the hair-ravaging forces in your scalp. Second, we must revive the scalp's natural urge to produce hair (remember, you can't stop a normal healthy scalp from growing abundant hair!). Imbedded dandruff and bacteria swarms beneath the scalp must be routed. The hair-destroying "bottle bacillus" pityrosporum ovale, must be fought. Clogged hair-passages must be reopened. "Sleeping Blood Circulation" must be awakened, and roused to hair-growing activity.
Thicker Hair for a Lifetime!
To accomplish these results, we use new Vigo-Liquids, Special Scalp Germicidals, and HAIR EXPERTS' exclusive "Two-Way Stimulation" technique. Once your scalp has been revived to hair-growing activity, you follow the simple professional Rules of Scalp Hygiene which we teach you and you can confidently expect to maintain your thicker, healthier, better-looking hair for life!
Your Hair Is a Priceless Asset! Don't Gamble—See Us at Once
We urge you, please do not delay—Follicle Shrinkage might set in, virtually wrecking your hopes! Do as thousands of smart, modern, up-to-date people are doing—take hair treatments! You'll actually enjoy HAIR EXPERTS' brisk "scalp workouts"—administered by friendly attendants in cheery private offices. Clip out our phone number and address now and phone or come in today. Let's get acquainted, and let's get started!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Friendship Train Still Growing

By Drew Pearson

Aboard the Southwest Special Friendship Train.—A lot of my editors are probably wondering when I am going to quit collecting food and get back to being a newspaperman (so, also, is my wife). However, when the people of the Southwest announce that they've been blessed with a big wheat crop and want to share it with others, and when they go out and raise some 150 carloads of wheat with no urging from anyone and no help from their Government—then that, in my opinion, is news. Furthermore, it's invigorating, stimulating news that I got a lot more kick out of writing about than I do peeking through keyholes in Washington.

Pearson

One of the hardest things to tell in print, however, is the enthusiasm, the generosity, and the enterprise of the American people when it comes to giving food for friendship. This was the most spontaneous movement toward world brotherhood and friendship this country has probably ever seen and behind it is the belief that, whereas battleships can win wars, food can help win the peace.

Warm, Thrilling Response

For two weeks now I have been riding three different sections of the Friendship Train, from Sunny California, through snowy Wyoming, across the brown plains of Kansas and through the smoke begrimed industrial cities of Pennsylvania. But regardless of geography, weather or industry, the response has been equally warm and thrilling.

This has not been government aid from diplomat to diplomat, but from people to people. Every conceivable cross-section of American life has cooperated. Railroads and railroad employes, small towns and big towns, all religions, all races, rich and poor—all turned out at the railroad stations to help build the bridge of friendship between Europe and the United States.

In Fort Worth, Tex., big-hearted Amon Carter, who usually gives away broad-brimmed Texas hats, this time gave away 15 carloads of flour (along with other Fort Worth residents) and had the flour bags especially stamped with messages to the French and Italian people . . . In Secaucus, N. J., the farmers, under the leadership of Mayor John J. Kane, sold pigs and contributed the cash equivalent of one pig each to the Friendship Train—total $2800 . . . David C. White, a big wheat farmer 20 miles south of Dodge City, Kans., gave five carloads of wheat because, as he expressed it, "in the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew, Christ says—'as ye have done unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.'" . . . Dick Long, managing editor of the Wichita Eagle, practically quit being a newspaperman in order to organize this Southwest Special of the Friendship Train . . . Hundreds of newspapers used up tons of precious newsprint telling their readers about the train, and scores of radio stations sacrificed valuable advertising to do the same.

Children Make Sacrifices

In Sedgwick County, Kans., the school children collected waste paper, ran errands, saved their money until they raised enough to buy one whole carload of wheat (and that's a lot of wheat) . . . In Philadelphia, the children of the John Bartram High School contributed seven times as much money as the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association—Joe Grundy's high-tariff outfit which used to write United States tariff laws . . . In Grand Island, Nebr., the teamsters' union, headed by Bill Noble, furnished 20 men to load cars . . . In Trenton, N. J., Mrs. Laura Marsavitz, a teacher in a Negro school, had won a war prize for making parachutes. The prize was a Bible. When the train passed through Trenton she came to the station with her school children and asked that the Bible be sent with the train to Europe.

In Newton, Kans., the Mennonite Church scoured the adjacent wheat-growing counties until 28 cars of wheat and flour were attached to the Friendship Train.

Down in Texas the eight district managers of the Lions Club worked so intensely that carload after carload came in from all over Texas—Long View, Odessa, Austin, Amarillo, Plainview, Lubbock, Sherman, Beaumont. Other service clubs, plus local radio stations and newspapers, worked with them. The Rock Island Railroad and the Missouri Pacific helped the Santa Fe by bringing these off-the-mainline cars to Wichita, where the Santa Fe Southwest Special started. In Pennsylvania, the Reading Railway also cooperated with the Penn R. R. in hauling off five cars.

And so on and on . . . The roll-call of American generosity is too long to tabulate here but its bills of lading spell out just one thing—the heartfelt desire of millions of Americans to help and to live at peace with their fellow men.

Let Us Give Thanks

By James J. Metcalfe

Let us be humble in our hearts . . . And most sincerely say . . . A word of gratitude to God . . . On this Thanksgiving Day . . . Let us be grateful for our health . . . And for the strength of mind . . . To serve our neighbors of the world . . . And being good and kind . . . For all the peace and friendship that . . . Prevail on land and sea . . . And for the common happiness . . . Of opportunity . . . Let us be thankful for our homes . . . Our children near and far . . . And every little dream that tries . . . To touch a silver star . . . Let us give gratitude to God . . . For every song we sing . . . And for the wondrous beauty and . . . The joy of everything.
